CALL NEBRASKA DOUBTFUL; SEE HOOVER GAINING

Republican Chiefs Are Encouraged.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—President Hoover's Des Moines speech may have regained thousands of wavering votes in the corn belt, as the Republican leaders are asserting, but even the Republican leaders are wondering whether anything short of a sensational rise in the price of wheat can save Nebraska to the Republican cause.

Republican headquarters here have received scores of letters from county chairmen and others in various parts of the state reporting a change of sentiment among the farmers following the Des Moines speech. Some of the letters stated that before the Des Moines speech it was virtually impossible to distribute Hoover buttons, but that since the voters had heard and read the speech they are asking for buttons.

Report Prospects Improve.

These straws have greatly encouraged the Republican managers, who say that there is no doubt of the steady improvement of Hoover prospects ever since the acceptance speech. But they admit that there is still much ground to regain before there can be any reasonable assurance that Nebraska will go Republican. Privately they concede that Nebraska is an exceedingly doubtful state today, with Roosevelt probably many thousands of votes ahead of Hoover.

The Democratic leaders concede that the Des Moines speech probably made the president some votes, but nowhere near enough to affect the result. They are predicting a Roosevelt plurality of 100,000 or more. The Republican leaders scoff at such figures declaring it wholly unlikely that Roosevelt will carry Nebraska by more than 25,000; in which event they believe they can elect their candidate for governor, Dwight Griswold, over "Brother Charley" Bryan, the Democratic incumbent. If Hoover manages to win the state it will probably be by less than 10,000, they admit.

Hostile to Party in Power.

The state of mind of the Nebraska electorate is distinctly hostile to the Hoover administration and the party in power. The universal testimony is that the farmers and the unemployed in the cities are sullen beyond all reasoning with. They are evincing no great enthusiasm for Roosevelt, but manifesting every intention of swatting the "ins." of whom Mr. Hoover is the most distinguished, on election day.

The farmers of the state, who reduced their wheat acreage 22 per cent in accord with the urgings of the farm board and have obtained an unusually small crop on even the reduced acreage, are getting only 30 cents a bushel, or were before the Des Moines speech. For some unaccountable reason wheat dropped still lower the day after the Des Moines speech and has kept on going down, greatly impairing the influence of the President's views on the way to cure the ills of agriculture.

Farm Board Blamed.

The farm board experiment is widely blamed for the plight of the wheat producer and the President helped himself only partially by promising the repeal of the stabilization features of the act. It is evident that so long as the farm board exists at all it will bear the brunt of the farmers' grievance.

The corn crop is a bumper one, and as a result 10 cent corn is the prospect this winter. The widespread feeding of cattle and hogs for market on cheap corn is therefore destined to be the next development. The farmer who buys feeders at 5 cents and sells the fattened stock at 9 or 10 cents a pound can make money. The stock raising industry is about the only bright spot in the state's economic condition at this writing.

Farmers Debt Ridden.

The debt ridden farmers appear to have lost faith in almost everything—the farm board, price stabilization schemes, the party in power and even the protective tariff. When the Hoover administration came in they were demanding ample protection of their own products but a reduction in the protection on the products they consume. They got the Smoot-Hawley tariff which boosted the protection on both classes of products. For the manufacturing industries the increased

28 Dry, 42 Evasive, Poll Discloses.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A prohibition poll among 417 candidates for congress in twenty-three states, conducted by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, reveals that 347 candidates of all parties are for straight repeal 42 are evasive and 28 are opposed to repeal.

MRS. C. H. SABIN.

The wets among the Democratic candidates out number the wets among the Republicans, two to one. Out of 228 replies from Democratic candidates, only one was opposed to straight repeal. Out of 170 replies from Republican candidates, on the other hand, 105 were for repeal, 42 evasive, and 23 opposed to repeal.

Sees Wet Majority.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the organization, said yesterday in making the returns of the poll public, "I am convinced that the majority of the people of the country want to be rid of prohibition, and it seems to me that these returns indicate a large wet Democratic majority in the 73d congress."

All candidates for the house and the senate are being polled on the following question by the chairmen of the various state divisions of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform:

"If elected, will you support a resolution for the straight repeal of the 18th amendment and the restoration to each state of its power to regulate the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating beverages within its own limits, such resolution to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection?"

Summary of Replies.

	Yes.	No.	Evasive.	Total.
Republicans	105	23	42	170
Democrats	227	1	0	228
R. and D.	3	2	0	5
Socialists	3	1	0	4
Farmer-Labor	5	0	0	5
Liberal	2	0	0	2
Progressive	2	1	0	3
Totals	347	28	42	417

Besides Mrs. Sabin, other national officers are: Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, New York, first vice chairman; Mrs. Archibald B. Roosevelt, New York, secretary; Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, New York, treasurer, and Mrs. John W. Cross, Cleveland, assistant treasurer.

POLL CANDIDATES

The Illinois delegation in the 73d congress is certain to be the wettest in the history of the state. This conclusion was reached as the result of a poll of the nominees for the senate and the house of representatives announced yesterday by Mrs. George E. Brennan.

She acted as the spokesman for the Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. The Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, headed by Ralph M. Shaw, joined the women's organization in recommending sup-

2 California Towns Hit by Earth Shocks

Brawley, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A severe earthquake shock, the eighth in two days, shook Brawley and El Centro at 2:45 p. m. today at the height of an intense rainstorm which resulted in the derailment of a Southern Pacific passenger train, flooding of highways, and damage to irrigation canals.

The earth tremor, most distinct of the forty-eight hour series, sent residents of the two towns rushing into the downpour. Insecure buildings were deserted for shelter in substantial structures.

Train Derailed.

The storm, which lasted all night and today and extended over most of southern California, seemingly centered in the Imperial valley region.

The accident to the train, the Golden State Limited, in which no one but an unidentified itinerant was injured, occurred at 1:30 a. m., 12 miles southeast of Niland, Cal.

Proceeding to Los Angeles from Chicago by way of El Paso, the train struck a stretch of 40 feet where the railroads had been undermined by flood water pouring down from the Chocolate mountains.

The locomotive, express car, baggage car, club car, and a day coach were derailed, but remained upright, six Pullmans were detached and rerouted to Los Angeles through the Imperial valley and all other trains were compelled to adopt that detour.

Near Record Rainfall.

The downpour approached record proportions after the quake. At 1 p. m., a reading by the Imperial valley weather bureau showed precipitation of 1.5 inches, greater than the entire preceding rainfall of the year.

No serious crop loss was reported, damage to irrigation ditches being confined, according to first reports, to the northern end of the district.

Drivers of motor stages plowing into Brawley through the water reported many tourists were stalled on the flooded highways. Water reaching to steering wheels was rushing across depressions in the roads, they said, and a 17 mile detour from the Imperial county line toward Indio was almost entirely under water.

JUDGE RELEASES TILLIE SCHWARTZ FROM BRIDEWELL

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green announced last night that he had made a trip to the Bridewell and ordered the release of Mrs. Tillie Becker Schwartz, owner of a hat shop at 847 North Michigan avenue, whom he committed for 15 days on Friday for violation of probation regulations.

"I think Mrs. Schwartz has been punished sufficiently by the two days she spent in jail," said Judge Green. "I'm releasing her so that she may observe Yom Kippur."

Mrs. Schwartz was convicted of reckless driving in January by a jury before Judge Green, and was first sentenced to a year in jail, but was granted probation on the plea of Police Captain John Ryan, the prosecuting witness. The judge instructed her yesterday to appear before him omorrow, when he said he would place her on probation for 60 days more.

Robert G. Dreiske, 32 years old, died early yesterday in a vain attempt to rescue his infant son from the flames which destroyed the Dreiske cottage at 1311 Burton avenue, Ravinia.

Dreiske had pushed his wife, Catherine, and Sheila Langlands, 13 years old, a school girl, who lived with them, to safety through a window in the burning home. Then he apparently was overcome as he tried to grope his way to safety with his son, Robert Jr., 13 months old, in his arms.

Firemen later found his burned body on the floor of the bedroom in the three room cottage, a few feet from a window. The body of the child lay nearby.

Stove Fires Wallboard.

Interior walls of the cottage were composed of an inflammable variety of wallboard. The fire, according to Fire Chief E. C. Hoskin of Highland Park, appeared to have been caused by a coal heater in the kitchen. Dreiske left the draft open when the family retired and the overheated pipe apparently set fire to the wallboard though which it passed, Chief Hoskin said.

The Langlands girl was awakened about 4:30 a. m. by the smoke. Dreiske was aroused about the same time, and thrust her through an open window to safety, she testified later at a coroner's inquest. He also helped his wife to safety. Neighbors, aroused by Mrs. Dreiske's screams, called the fire department.

Flames Envelop Home.

The cottage was enveloped in flames when the fire fighters arrived. The firemen played a hose into the bedroom, where Mrs. Dreiske told them she had last seen her husband, and were enabled to enter the room with gas masks within a few minutes, but Dreiske and his young son were already dead.

Dreiske was an accountant employed by the William A. Baehr organization, consulting engineers at 232 South Clark street. He was one of the fifteen children of Hermann Dreiske, retired Chicago coal and lumber merchant, who now lives at 242 Roger Williams avenue, Ravinia.

Save Life of Baby When Bone Lodges in Windpipe

John Carstens, 21 months old, choked on a piece of bone Friday in the home of his parents at 6402 27th place, Cicero. He was hurried to the county hospital, where his life was saved by inserting a tube in his windpipe through which he could breathe. Dr. Richard A. Perritt operated yesterday and removed the bone.

Robert Rogers, 10 years old, of 5653 Magnolia avenue, was crushed to death late yesterday when he was caught between a freight elevator and the shaft wall in the rear of the Denifer apartment hotel at 1040 Balmoral avenue. His companion, Gordon Witt, also 10, of 5538 Winthrop avenue, witnessed the tragedy. Both attended the Swift elementary school.

During the afternoon Robert and Gordon started out on a search for empty gingerale bottles, their plan being to sell them at a neighborhood drug store and earn money to go to a movie.

Stop at Freight Elevator.

They walked to the rear of the hotel and stopped at the freight elevator to discuss their procedure. They heard someone approaching and, fearing it was the janitor, they concealed themselves on a 20 inch ledge at the elevator.

Apparently to deceive the janitor Robert stepped into the elevator and pressed the button which automatically starts it. The lift slid upward. At the same time the elevator doors moved into position. Robert leaped for the ledge but the doors caught his leg.

Dragged to His Death.

Robert was dragged upward screaming in sight of his panic-stricken companion. The latter's cries attracted the attention of Joseph Kanapa Jr. of 5404 Kenmore avenue, who called police. Police and firemen arrived a few minutes later. Robert was still alive but unconscious, and they worked frantically with axes and picks to break through the concrete wall to release him. Dr. Arthur E. Diggs of 5339 Kenmore avenue stood by to assist if possible.

By the time Robert was released from the elevator he was dead. For several minutes rescuers believed the boy was conscious because of screams coming from the shaft. These cries, it was learned later, were from young Witt, who still clung in terror to the narrow ledge.

The Rogers boy was the son of Mrs. Helen Rogers. Gordon is the son of J. O. Witt, a salesman.

KILLS HIS FRIEND FIRING AT BIRD; ENDS OWN LIFE

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Carl Lang, 17, of Indus, Minn., shot and killed himself with a rifle in remorse after accidentally killing Amos Anyder, 20, also of Indus, while the two were hunting in the woods on the Minnesota side of the border near Emo, Ont., today. Snyder was shot through the heart at a distance of 90 feet when Lang fired into the brush at a bird.

Colin Kennedy, 18, another member of the party, went to a near-by farm to summon a physician, and when he returned with the doctor they found Lang lying across the body of Snyder. He had shot himself in the forehead.

Police Trap Burglars One Minute After Radio Alarm

At 7:50 o'clock last night Lieut. Thomas O'Hare and his Cragin squad received a radio call that burglars were breaking into the store at 2856 North Cicero avenue. One minute later the police arrived and seized Raymond Krause, 21 years old, of 2922 North Kilpatrick avenue, and John Blaze, 23, of 5051 Nelson street. On the way to the station the pair confessed five other burglaries, the police said. Ten minutes after the radio alarm they were locked up.

GREECE DETAINS UTILITIES CHIEF ON U. S. ORDER

Discover Wife Sent Him $25,000.

BULLETIN.

ATHENS, Oct. 10.—(Monday.)—(AP)—Samuel Insull, former Chicago power magnate, was detained by Athens authorities today at the request of the American minister. The question of his extradition to the United States was pending.

His detention took place while he was sitting calmly drinking coffee on the terrace of the Hotel Bretagne and basking in the bright morning sunshine which was pouring down on the ancient Greek capital.

It was understood the American minister had asked Greek authorities to detain him pending receipt of a formal request for extradition from Washington.

Athens police were previously aware of Insull's presence here, and they knew an application for extradition had been made at Paris by American authorities before he left there. They felt powerless to take any action, however, until the request came from the American legation. As soon as this was made they quickly detained him.

[The Tribune's Paris correspondent cabled this morning that Samuel Insull made the trip from Milan to Athens on the Orient Express. He arrived in the Greek capital Sunday noon.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—One mystery in connection with the flight of Samuel Insull, Chicago utility magnate, was cleared up by information obtained by THE TRIBUNE tonight from private sources regarding the $25,000 reported to have been cabled Insull at Athens.

According to THE TRIBUNE'S informant, this money was not cabled from the United States, as was originally believed, but was sent here through the Morgan bank by Insull's wife.

This information seems to bear out the indication that Insull believes he is safe from extradition in Athens. The extradition treaty between the United States and Greece has been signed, but was never formally promulgated.

Eludes Italian Police.

Meanwhile, a TRIBUNE correspondent in Milan learned that both Insull and his son, Samuel Insull Jr., had purchased railway tickets there. Insull left Milan immediately and is known to have crossed the border about twenty-four hours before the Italian police were asked by the United States to apprehend him.

Meanwhile Samuel Insull Jr. returned from Milan to Paris this morning to rejoin his mother. THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent was the only newspaper man at the railway station to meet him. He seemed surprised but not visibly perturbed.

Hands Out Statement.

"How long will your father stay in Greece? Who sent him that $25,000? What are your plans?" were a few of the questions fired at him.

Young Insull grinned and in reply pulled out of his overcoat pocket a typewritten slip of paper which, in about 100 words, managed to get across the impression quite clearly that he had nothing to say about any thing, particularly the movements and whereabouts of his father.

He seemed in excellent humor and chatted cheerfully as he walked up the railway platform carrying his suitcase. Every attempt to question him, however, was met with the reply:

"See my statement. That's all there is, there isn't any more."

Asked if he would comment on the weather in Milan, he said with a grin:

"I can't comment on anything. I have been instructed not to say anything and if I make any statements I'll get into trouble. The only thing you can quote me on is that it's hard to find a porter in a French railway station on Sunday."

Asked the reason for the typewritten handout, Insull declared that he had anticipated a grilling by the press and wanted to forestall any charge of possible favoritism by issuing one statement for all newspaper men approaching him.

So determined was he not to commit himself on anything that he refused to say whether he was going to the Hotel Lincoln to rejoin his mother. But he offered to give his address to the taxicab driver in a voice loud enough for every one to hear—which he did. It was the Hotel Lincoln.

Arriving at the hotel he engaged a room next door to his mother and went upstairs.

Young Insull spent practically the entire day at the hotel with his mother who, according to hotel employes, has been confined to bed for the last two or three days as the result of the nervous strain she has undergone. Insull left the hotel for lunch and dinner, remaining away from the hotel for a considerable length of time on both occasions and successfully eluding newspaper men.

His attitude toward newspapermen, who one by one picked up the news of his return as the day wore on, was as curious as everything else in the whole strange affair. Adopting the tactics employed by his father before his departure, he cheerfully responded to all telephone calls and demands for interviews, but put off all questioning by distributing the typewritten handout. This document read:

"Having previously stated that I have no comment to make regarding Mr. Samuel Insull's affairs, I am not herewith making any such statement. This is in answer to inquiries.

"My position, as referred to, applies to Mr. Samuel Insull's movements and whereabouts along with his other affairs.

ESCAPES ITALIAN POLICE

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Copyright 1932 By The Chicago Tribune.]

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 9.—Behind the barrier of the Balkans, whence extradition is the subject of infinite delays if not impossible, Samuel Insull may stage a long fight against returning to Illinois to face trial on indictments against him for embezzlement and grand larceny.

Insull escaped extradition from France on Wednesday by his precipitate flight from Paris to Italy. In turn he escaped being detained by Italian police by an equally hasty flight from Italy, getting across the Italian border into Jugoslavia before the extradition request arrived here.

Probably assisted by friends here and by a deceptive screen of silence which he had arranged at the Hotel Touring, Insull slipped out of Milan on Friday for Athens. His son, Samuel Insull Jr., remained in Milan until Saturday night, when he took a train to Paris.

Hotel employes at first said that the two Insulls had left together for Paris, but later admitted that the father had slipped out of the hotel and left Italy as soon as his transportation had been arranged.

What seems to have happened is that while police throughout Italy were keeping a careful check on Insull's movements here and knew his whereabouts, they were unable to act because a formal request from the American government to detain Insull did not arrive until after he had skipped across the border.

Insull and his son remained in complete exclusion here from Thursday until Saturday. Insull has several friends here, including Giorgio Polacco, formerly conductor of the Chicago Civic opera, who tonight were unaware that Insull had been in Milan until informed by THE TRIBUNE.

In his police declaration, which is required of travelers, Insull said he was born in London, but was an American citizen. He described himself as "president of companies" in Chicago.

AID TO INSULL ADMITS SENDING CODED CABLES

Secretary to Appear Before Grand Jury Today.

John F. O'Keefe, for years confidential secretary to Samuel Insull Sr., yesterday admitted having sent four cablegrams within the last week, which, in the opinion of Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows, were responsible for the dikat of the fallen utilities magnate from Paris to Athens. But O'Keefe steadfastly refused to disclose the text of the coded cablegrams, even upon threat of indictment as an accessory after the fact of larceny and embezzlement, with which Insull is charged.

Prosecutor Bellows, a member of State's Attorney Swanson's "Insull staff," went to the home of O'Keefe at 2914 Logan boulevard and personally served him with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury at 10 o'clock this morning.

Shows Up Too Late.

This was done because O'Keefe, after having been served with a forth with summons to appear Saturday night and explain the coded messages which were obtained from the Western Union Telegraph company with a subpoena duces tecum, waited two hours and then showed up after the grand jury had gone home. Upon reaching the Criminal Courts building he announced that he would not appear again without another subpoena.

O'Keefe accepted service of the summons and said he would appear this morning, but efforts of Prosecutor Bellows to find out anything by immediate questioning were futile.

"You are in a position to be very helpful to the state," Bellows told O'Keefe. "We are more interested in the men higher up than in you, and even though you may have played a minor part in the collapse of the Insull companies you will receive consideration if you cooperate with us. Did you send any cablegrams to Samuel Insull?"

Admits Sending Cablegrams.

O'Keefe at first said he did not remember, but when reminded that the first of the four cablegrams bore his signature and was sent on Oct. 3, while the newspapers were saying Insull would be indicted the next day, he admitted sending this one and later added that he had sent the other three. The second was sent on Wednesday to Samuel Insull Jr. in Turin, Italy, and the other two were sent to young Insull on Friday, addressed to the Touring hotel, Milan, where he separated from his father, returning to Paris while Insull Sr. went to Greece.

"What were the messages?" asked Bellows.

"I don't remember. I could not tell you without seeing the cablegrams," said O'Keefe.

Hasn't the Code.

Q.—Will you come with me to the Criminal Courts building now and decipher them? A.—I haven't the code.

Q.—Where is it? A.—I don't know.

It was at this point that the prosecutor informed O'Keefe that his apparent reluctance to cooperate with the authorities might result in his indictment.

"I shall call in cryptograph experts, men experienced in deciphering communications from spies during the world war, and if we learn that you are aiding and abetting Samuel Insull in his attempted escape you will be indicted," said Bellows.

Under further questioning O'Keefe stated that the code was a private one and that so far as he knew the telegraph company did not know it. He expressed the opinion that it would not give an expert much trouble.

Bellows was met at the door of the O'Keefe home, on the top floor of a three flat brick building, by Philip O'Keefe, a brother. He asked Prosecutor Bellows to wait while he inquired whether John O'Keefe would receive him. After 30 minutes, during which time it is believed O'Keefe called his lawyers, the prosecutor was admitted. Upon leaving Bellows was asked where he might be reached later in the day.

"I don't know," he told O'Keefe.

Asks Insull Be Deported.

The fact that Insull has sought asylum in Greece, a country with which the United States has no treaty for the extradition of fugitives, will not save him from being returned for trial on the indictments voted by the grand jury last Tuesday, according to Bellows. He said he had asked Gov. Emmerson to request authorities in Greece, through the intervention of the state department at Washington, to deport Insull to Italy, where authorities have already been asked by the state department to arrest him.

Late last night the state's attorney's office was informed by Lieut. Gov. Sterling that the request had been transmitted to the state department at Washington.

Mr. Bellows cited the case of Pembroke W. Pitt, wealthy grain broker who fled from Baltimore to Naples and then to Athens in 1911, after he had been accused of defrauding banks of almost half a million dollars. Greece honored a request of the United States government to deport Pitt to Italy, and he was then extradited to this country, according to Bellows.

To Confer with Staff.

State's Attorney Swanson said he would confer with his staff today to determine upon "a course of procedure" in his fight to bring Insull back from Europe. He said it might become necessary to send one of his assistants to Europe to conduct the extradition proceedings, but that he believed Insull should be located first.

Besides O'Keefe, nine other present and former officials of the Insull companies have been requested to appear before the grand jury today. O'Keefe and P. J. McEnroe, secretary-treasurer and vice president, respectively, of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities, Inc., however, are considered the most important.

The answers of these two men in the past have been "unsatisfactory," according to the state's attorney.

The others summoned are G. E. Olmstead, Kansas City, former assistant treasurer of Middle West Utilities company; A. L. Peterson, Chicago, former assistant treasurer of Middle West; E. V. Graham, Chicago, vice president of Insull, Son & Co.; C. W. Daniels, Chicago, fiscal agent of the Insull interests; L. B. Harrington, Louisville, Ky., president of the Kentucky Utility company; Hallan Huffman, Chicago, another Insull fiscal agent, and J. A. McPhail, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., president of the Great Lakes Power company.

O'Keefe and McEnroe, as well as Harold L. Stuart, president of Hasley, Stewart & Co. and chief financier of the Insull enterprises and a director of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., are to appear before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley tomorrow for a resumption of the hearings to discover assets of this company and Corporation Securities.

Martin's Attorney Returns.

Attorney Ely Aaron, counsel for Martin J. Insull, brother of Samuel Sr., who is at Orillia, Ont., under $50,000 bond pending the outcome of his extradition hearings, returned to Chicago yesterday with "no statement to make for a day or so." Martin Insull was indicted with his brother on charges of larceny and embezzlement and was seized on a fugitive warrant at Orillia.

Charles McCulloch and Edward N. Hurley, receivers for Middle West Utilities, left the Illinois Central station in a private car yesterday for a 3,500 mile tour of inspection of the operating companies for which Middle West is a holding company. This concern is endeavoring to obtain a loan of $21,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to rescue its eastern units from bankruptcy.

BELIEVE INSULL EXTRADITION IS UP TO GREECE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—While state department officials maintained silence, it was indicated in authoritative source today that whether Samuel Insull can be returned to this country from Greece is a question that can be settled only by the Greek government.

The question centers on whether an extradition treaty with Greece, signed by this country and ratified by the United States senate, is in force in Greece, where it has been published in the official journal, a step ordinarily making an agreement or domestic legislation the law of the land.

However, for some reason as yet unexplained, Greece has never exchanged with this country the documents of ratification of the treaty, a part of diplomatic procedure usually gone through before an agreement becomes effective.

After this exchange, the customary action is for the chief executives of the countries to proclaim the agreement in force. Members of the staff of the Greek legation here could not be reached for comment.

MARTIN INSULL BEGINS TO WORRY ABOUT THE RENT

Tells Press He's Ready to Go to Work.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ORILLIA, Ont., Oct. 9.—Martin J. Insull today resumed the routine of his retirement in this little village on the fringe of virgin north woods. On his first holiday after an arduous week that included forty hours in the Simcoe county jail, the dethroned emperor of a crumbled utility empire took his customary morning stroll followed by a motor ride in the afternoon.

It is this quiet and secluded life that Insull is seeking to continue while extradition proceedings are under way to bring him to trial on larceny and embezzlement charges growing out of the collapse of the two billion dollar utility labyrinth.

Extradition Hearing Delayed.

Indications are that the extradition hearing will not open for another two or three weeks. In the bail hearing yesterday at the county courthouse in Barrie, in which Insull was released from custody on $50,000 bonds, Edward J. Bayly, deputy attorney general of Ontario, acting in behalf of Cook county, said it would be at least a couple of weeks before depositions are prepared in Chicago.

At 10 o'clock this morning Insull left Miss Anne McLean's boarding house, where he has lived with Mrs. Insull since last June. He was clad in a brown tweed suit with knickers and green golf socks. This afternoon he left with his wife for an auto ride with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barker of Highland Park.

Talks to Newspaper Men.

Tonight Insull was in conversational mood as he was called upon by newspaper men. But neither would he discuss the pending extradition proceedings nor the charges against him in Chicago.

The decorous Miss McLean answered the door when the American reporters called.

"I don't know whether Mr. Insull cares to see you," she said. "You know we don't care for Americans around here."

The reporters entered and stood at the door while she mounted the stairs to announce them to Insull. He came skipping down the stairs, two steps at a time.

Enjoys the Country.

"I was on my way to the lake country north of here last June when I came to Orillia," he related. "I was out of a job and started on a vacation with Mrs. Insull. She had suffered bruised knees in a fall before we left Highland Park—they were paining her. We stopped in Barrie to see a doctor and he advised her to go to a hospital. We came here instead. I like it here. It's a beautiful country and I like to walk and I like to motor."

"Would you take me for a ride?" an interviewer asked.

"You know I don't own a car and taxis cost money," he replied. "I must be thinking about how to pay the rent here. Of course, I can go to work. I'm not afraid of work."

TIPPERARY TWIST
A Fabric That Will Wear Almost Indefinitely—Without Showing It

It is daily being rediscovered that price alone is no criterion of value. Rather it is what you get for the price that counts.

Here, then, is a four-ply Irish worsted that tailors beautifully, retains its shape remarkably, wears almost indefinitely, without showing it.

Patterns and colorings have a virile, outdoor look, and the lines of the suits into which we have tailored it are vigorous yet mature and with adequate dignity for business wear.

Suits of this fabric are exclusive with us in Chicago. Their new price we consider a real achievement.

AIRPLANE MOTOR WRECKED IN AIR; TWO LAND SAFELY

Marriner Guides Crippled Ship to Earth.

Les Marriner, former heavyweight boxer and one time star tackle on the University of Illinois football team, brought an army pursuit plane down in a harmless forced landing yesterday near Wheaton, after the propeller of the plane had broken in the air, wrecking the motor.

Marriner, who lives at 4718 West End avenue, and his companion, A. H. Harris, 4635 South Homan avenue, escaped injury, but a Wheaton police squad car, returning from an investigation of the accident, struck another automobile, inflicting minor injuries on the police chauffeur and a 4 year old girl who was riding in the other car.

Officer in Air Corps.

Marriner, who is a lieutenant in the army air corps reserves, took the plane up from the Municipal airport. The plane is a two place Curtiss Falcon, powered with a 425 horsepower Curtiss D-12 motor. It is about two years old. Marriner had flown west past Wheaton and was on his return trip to the airport, flying at an altitude of 2,000 to 3,000 feet, when the propeller was shattered.

Marriner glided to a safe landing in a field on the farm of George Fortman, a mile southeast of Wheaton. The only damage done by the landing was a dent in one wing, received when the plane went through a barbed wire fence. The motor, however, wrecked itself by racing after the propeller smashed.

Four Lane Highway.

The squad car crash took place while Wheaton police were returning from the accident on Roosevelt road, a four lane highway at that point. Ellis Hale, driver of the squad car, said that he had swung to the inner lane to pass another automobile when a third car, driven by W. A. Simpson, 2105 South 2d avenue, Maywood, swung out in his path. In the collision Hale was severely bruised and Simpson's young daughter, Barbara, was badly cut by broken glass.

SOCIETY AVIATOR HURT

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special]—Reginald Langhorne Brooks, a nephew of Lady Astor and one of the most skilled airplane pilots in the country, was seriously injured this afternoon when his plane crashed at the close of a stunting exhibition at the autumn air meet of the Long Island Aviation Country club. Brooks was rushed to the Nassau hospital at Mineola, where it was announced that he had suffered a compound ankle fracture and a possible skull fracture. Attending doctors at once ordered an X-ray.

The flyer, who has frequently won stunting contests in air meets, went up near the close of the program in his monocoupe, a fast and tricky cabin monoplane, equipped with a Warner engine with which he has won many races. His performance included among other maneuvers a series of stunts in which he flew inverted. He had intended to conclude the exhibition with an "upside down landing."

In this maneuver the pilot climbs to a thousand feet or higher, half rolls his plane and then starts his glide for the ground in the inverted position. Its successful conclusion demands that he roll his plane from the inverted to the normal position just before setting it down on the ground.

Today Brooks glided to within perhaps 50 feet of the ground before starting his roll, according to witnesses. Before he could complete the turn his plane crashed into a telephone pole which he was unable to see because of the inverted position of his machine.

Pair of Gunmen Rob Three Drug Stores in 20 Minutes

Two gunmen, riding in an automobile, robbed three drug stores on the south side within 20 minutes last night. They took $203 from John E. Bixby, manager of the drug store at 6801 Stony Island avenue. Fifteen minutes later they robbed a store at 7201 Exchange avenue, taking $102 from the cash register after threatening Clifford Green, the manager, and a clerk. The third holdup was in a store at 2259 East 73d street, where they took $50 from Robert Walquist, the manager.

EX-'TIGER GIRL,' KITTY MALM, TO ASK FOR PAROLE

Kitty Malm, who in 1924, at the age of 19, was known as "tiger girl" and was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, is to have a hearing today or tomorrow before the parole board. Attorney Harry N. Pritzker, who, as an assistant state's attorney, prosecuted her, announced yesterday he will ask her release. He will act as a citizen, not as her attorney, he said. Bishop George Craig Stewart, head of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, will send an archdeacon to help her get a parole.

"At the time of her trial I offered to agree to 14 years imprisonment if she would plead guilty," Pritzker said "Her lawyer refused and a jury fixed the penalty at life. She was the companion of Otto Malm, her common law husband, in many crimes. She surrendered after his arrest and admitted everything. Malm killed a night watchman at a store he was trying to enter. He pleaded guilty and was given life.

"Miss Elsie Walther, formerly of the Church Mission of Christ, became interested in Kitty, who is a model prisoner at Joliet," Mr. Pritzker continued. "She has served more than eight years and obtained an education. She grew up without opportunities and was a mother at 16. Miss Walther has interested others, including Bishop Stewart, and it was agreed that I should recommend her parole."

KILLED BY WIFE IN QUARREL.

Joseph Compin, 36 years old, a Negro, was fatally injured yesterday when his wife, Bessie, struck him with an axe during a quarrel in their home at 1127 West 13th street. He died in the county hospital.

GRONAU'S WORLD CIRCLING PLANE SENDS OUT S O S

Forced Down in Indian Ocean, Radio Says.

MANILA, Oct. 10 (Monday).—(AP)—Distress signals from the plane of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau were picked up here today saying the plane had been forced down by a broken water pump in the Indian ocean northwest of Swettenham, in the Straits settlement. The plane was being tossed around in the rough sea.

The position of the plane as given in the distress signals was 14:20 north latitude and 97.10 east longitude. This is about 200 miles north of Rangoon.

Capt. von Gronau, a German flier, left here Sept. 30 with his three companions in continuance of their leisurely flight around the world which started from Berlin several weeks ago. They intended to complete the world flight in Berlin late this month.

CROSSES TWO OCEANS.

Capt. von Gronau's route took him across the north Atlantic ocean in a series of short flights, thence across the United States and Canada, and up to Alaska. The crossing to Asia was made via Bering strait and then the flyer followed the Kamchatka peninsula and the Kurile islands southward to Tokyo.

From there the route led by way of Shanghai and Hongkong to Manila. Von Gronau completed the first direct flight from Hongkong to Manila in making this link of his world tour.

After a short delay in Manila because of bad weather, the flight was continued via Borneo. When Capt. von Gronau and his three companions left Manila recently they had covered more than two-thirds of the distance around the world from their starting point of Isle of Sylt, Germany.

Stopped in Chicago.

Capt. von Gronau was accompanied by Second Pilot Gert von Roth, Fritz Albrecht, radio operator, and Franz Hack, mechanic, when he took off in his "Greenland Wal" seaplane on July 22.

The flyers made successive stops without mishap in eastern Iceland [Seydisfjoerdur], Reykjavik, Iceland; Julianehaab, Greenland; Independence Harbor, Labrador; Montreal, Ottawa, Detroit, Chicago, Lac du Bonnet, Manitoba; Lake Cormorant, Manitoba; Prince Rupert, B. C.; Dutch Harbor, Alaska; Kanaga island, Attu island, Paramushiro island [Kuriles], Nemuro, Japan, Tokio, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, and Zamboanga, P. I.

Capt. von Gronau started the flight, his third across the Atlantic via the northern route, to demonstrate the feasibility of the northern crossing for commercial purposes. After reaching Canada, he announced his intention to continue around the world.

Fight for Life of Barber Believed Shot by Bandits

A blood transfusion was undertaken yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital in an effort to save the life of John Joganic, 29 years old, a barber at the student branch Y. M. C. A. at 1804 West Congress street. Joganic was pushed from an automobile and shot in the back early yesterday by one of two men at Madison and Loomis streets. Friends could give no theory for the shooting, except that Jaganic was slightly deaf and may have been shot by bandits whose commands he misunderstood.

COSTS OF DIVORCE CUT IN HALF DURING LAST THREE YEARS

Although costs of legal separation in Cook county have diminished by 50 per cent during the last three years, the lowered cost has failed to halt the dwindling divorce rate, according to statistics for the first nine months of 1932.

Reports submitted by Thomas O. Wallace and Frank Zintak, clerks of the Circuit and Superior courts, show that divorces have dropped 12 per cent compared with the same months last year.

At the same time County Clerk Sweitzer has disclosed that weddings during the nine months of 1932 have declined 12 per cent as compared with 1931. Marriage licenses granted in 1932 amounted to 19,716, as compared with 22,436 during the first three quarters of 1931.

During the boom years divorce was steadily on the increase. In 1925 there was an average of one divorce for every 3.75 weddings. By 1930 this ratio had changed to one divorce for every 4 marriages and today there is an average of one divorce for every five marriages in Cook county.

In 1929 the average cost of a divorce, as computed by Gus Weidemeier, chief statistician of the Circuit court, was $450. Today the average cost is about $200. With a little bargaining a prospective divorcée can better these figures.

The decrease in alimony amounts to almost 10 per cent. Judges are inclining more to the view that alimony should be granted only to those women who have children, holding that the female partners of severed marital relationships can shift for themselves if there are no children.

RETIRED FIREMEN HONOR FOUR WHO FOUGHT '71 FIRE

Four veteran firemen who helped battle the great Chicago fire of 1871 were the guests of 500 members of the Retired Firemen's association at the Great Northern hotel yesterday. The four are believed to be the only survivors of 295 firemen who fought the conflagration. Last year there were fourteen survivors.

"We spent two nights and a day fighting that fire until it finally burned itself out at Wright's grove, Fullerton avenue and Clark street," recounted Isaac Adler, 91 years old, of 6913 South Shore drive, the oldest veteran.

The other three survivors at the gathering were George Leady, 87 years old, of 5520 Bishop street; Charles Schroeder, 86 years old, of 2106 Fremont street, and Nicholas Weinland, 86 years old, of 1634 Larrabee street. Each gave a vivid picture of the fire

Light upon the subject of real values in furniture
In these days of frenzied merchandizing, those stores which, over long periods of years, have sold only merchandise of true intrinsic merit, and at such considerately moderate prices as are in the interest of store and patrons alike, unmistakably justify the confidence of all their customers, past, present and future.
In the sixty-three years of its existence, through boom times and panics, no one has ever purchased at Scholle's a piece of furniture that was not in excellent taste, of quality workmanship and of outstanding value at the price—and Scholle's has always been here, and will continue to be here, to back up its guarantees.
It is not without reason that so many patrons say: "I have a feeling of assurance when trading at Scholle's."

SAYS U. S. WAS AIDED AS EUROPE WITHDREW GOLD

Klein Asserts It Revealed Financial Strength.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The United States has no quarrel with foreign nations which withdrew nearly one billion dollars in gold from this country from June, 1931, to July, 1932, said Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, in an address here tonight.

DR. JULIUS KLEIN. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Instead of finding fault with the foreigner, he declared, the thought uppermost in the American citizen's mind should be one of gratification that the tide receded "leaving the solid rock foundations of our fiscal structure still firm and unimpaired."

Significance was found in Dr. Klein's choice of "the defense of the dollar" as the topic of his talk. Since President Hoover's recent Des Moines speech there has been a feeling in some quarters that he was perhaps overemphatic in two respects—in describing how close to the edge of the gold standard the United States itself had been pushed, and in painting the picture of what might happen economically if the Democrats should come into power and adopt the Garneresque program of the last session of congress.

Defense of the Dollar.

Administration speakers naturally are willing to let the picture of a Democratic victory pass for what the voter wants to see in it. But considerable pains are being taken to allay post-facto fears aroused by the President's recital of the financial crisis.

In describing the defense of the dollar, Dr. Klein likened it to the allies, last great defense at the second battle of the Marne. The result of the battle, he said, had been "eminently satisfactory to all Americans."

He did not imply a malevolent intent on the part of foreign nations to assail the American gold stock which amounted to almost five billion dollars at the end of August, 1931. Nevertheless the withdrawals began. Then they subsided only to start up again last May.

"We may admit frankly that some foreigners commenced to entertain a bit of skepticism with regard to the solidity of our American financial fabric," Dr. Klein said. "This was the period when congress was wrestling with the knotty, thorny problem of balancing the budget."

Assails Inflation Bill.

Then he aimed a shaft at members of congress who had sought passage of huge relief and currency inflation bills.

"There were threats," he recalled, "of huge expenditures running into billions coupled with the appalling possibility of a flood of flat money."

President Hoover stood firm for a balanced budget, Dr. Klein declared, and "through the staunch courage of American officials and legislators and through the inherent, impressive strength of American finance, the dollar has been most decisively defended. We have demonstrated beyond dispute our fidelity to the gold standard. It is unlikely that serious inroads upon the gold stock of this country will be made soon again. Our net loss of gold in a thirteen month period had been exactly 908 million dollars—but our eventual position remains perfectly sound."

According to recent statements of high treasury officials the United States could today withstand a considerable further gold drain, though they scouted the prospect of such movement developing.

In Position for Drain.

Since their low point of last June 15, gold stocks in the United States have increased by 292 million dollars and now stand at $4,201,000,000, or 441 millions lower than a year ago.

Through the freeing of gold under the terms of the Glass-Steagall bill, which permitted the substitution of government securities for eligible paper in the backing of federal reserve notes, the United States is in a strong position to withstand a raid on her gold supply, it was said. Approximately 516 million dollars in government securities are now held by the federal reserve banks against notes.

SPAIN TO TRY OUT 'FISH LUNGS'; SUB LIFE PRESERVERS

MADRID, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A Spanish laborer, Adrian Alvarez Ruiz, announced today the marine ministry had agreed to an official test of his invention consisting of a submarine cylinder equipped with the equivalent of "fish lungs."

Ruiz claims his invention is capable of sustaining human life in a submerged position indefinitely.

The inventor declined to discuss the details but said his invention consisted of three compartments which filter oxygen from water, furnishing fresh air to the occupant of the cylinder. He said he had remained beneath the surface eight hours in his invention.

VICEROY'S TERMS STAND IN WAY OF GANDHI RELEASE

SIMLA, India, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lord Willingdon, the viceroy, has received numerous telegrams requesting the release of Mahatma Gandhi, and is understood to have agreed to the nationalist leader's freedom, but on the condition that his civil disobedience campaign be called off.

As Gandhi has, according to reports, told several close friends that civil disobedience is "a part of his religion," the prospect of his release seems remote.

tariff was effective, enabling them to maintain higher price levels on their products than they otherwise could; for the producers of wheat and other surplus products the protection was ineffective. Farm product prices declined despite the increased protection and the farm board's stabilization operations.

Displeased by Tariff.

The farmers found themselves receiving less for their products while paying as much, if not more, for the manufactured products they consume. Hence, the tariff as well as the farm board fell under their displeasure.

In the primaries this year the Democratic vote was 156,648 compared with 82,808 in the 1928 primaries, while the Republican vote was 127,190 compared with 155,279 four years ago. The Democratic managers are confident that the influence of Senator George W. Norris [Radical Rep., Neb.] in leading insurgent Republicans into the Roosevelt camp will be decisive. The Republican leaders say his influence for any candidate but himself has been proved negligible, notably in 1928 when Norris supported Smith, who lost the state by 150,000. Senator Robert B. Howell [Radical Rep.] is supporting Hoover, but somewhat luke warmly so far.

Women May Save Hoover.

Many Republican leaders think the drys and particularly the women vote, always an important factor in Nebraska elections, will save Hoover in this state, which they declare is overwhelmingly dry (politically) outside of Omaha and a few German and Bohemian counties. Representative Edgar Howard is the only one of the three Democratic congressmen who is standing on the Democratic repeal plank. Of the two Republicans, M. B. Baldridge in wet Omaha goes farther than the Republican plank, espousing repeal, while R. G. Simmons in a rural district is running as a dry.

EXPECT TO MAIL SCHOOL SALARY CHECKS TODAY

School board officials hope to be able to place checks for half a month's pay in the mails tonight, to be delivered tomorrow morning to teachers and other employes of the board of education.

Funds for the $2,401,220 pay roll were assured last week when downtown banks agreed to buy $2,165,000 worth of 1931 school board tax warrants from the city treasury, which will accept an equal amount of 1932 school warrants and turn the cash over to the school board. The mechanics of the transaction had delayed the pay day.

The banks want warrants in denominations of $1,000 and up, which are expected to be finished by this morning by a banknote printing company. As soon as they are ready Charles E. Gilbert, secretary, and Lewis E. Myers, president of the school board; Assistant City Controller Petterson, and a proxy for Mayor Cermak will sign the warrants and deliver them to the banks.

They hope that this transaction will be completed by afternoon, so that the pay checks, already made out, may be placed in the mail.

ROSS IDENTIFIED AS SWINDLER BY A WOMAN OF 85

John A. Ross, 42 years old, an octoroon, was identified at the detective bureau showup yesterday by Mrs. D. E. Green, 85 years old, of La Porte, Ind., as the man who defrauded her of $1,450, most of her life savings, after promising to marry her.

Ross was charged with operating a confidence game. Postoffice inspectors are to look over a number of letters which he wrote to Mrs. Green to learn whether he is guilty also of using the mails to defraud.

Ross was arrested a week ago following an investigation by THE TRIBUNE of charges that he had inserted an advertisement for a white housekeeper in this newspaper, and had made improper proposals to women who answered the advertisement. Mrs. Green reported her case to the police after she recognized a picture of Ross which was published at that time.

HOOVER DELAYS DECIDING TOUR INTO FAR WEST

Awaits Details of Reaction to Recent Speeches.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—President Hoover does not plan to make a definite decision on the question of whether he will wind up his 1932 campaign with a whirlwind speaking tour across the continent until more definite information is available regarding the actual reaction in terms of votes of his invasion of the central states this last week. More definite reports on Republican prospects in California and other western states and the reaction of this part of the country to the speeches delivered by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, also is awaited.

As a result of the White House decision to await a clearing up of the political atmosphere following his trip to Iowa, the conclusion of the Roosevelt western speaking tour, and developments in New York state, the President and his advisers are anxiously awaiting detailed reports from workers in the field.

Eye on Straw Polls.

The Republican leaders also are planning to keep a sharp eye on the various straw polls during the next week to see if the President's Des Moines speech and his platform appearances in Iowa, Indiana and Ohio have had a marked effect on the direction of the political winds.

Up to the time President Hoover went to Iowa the reports reaching the White House from the highly important states of the middle west were far from encouraging. Since that time the reports brought personally to Washington by party leaders or communicated to the White House by telephone or telegraph have been much brighter.

President Hoover, according to his political advisers, now believes that by hard work and several appearances personally in the disaffected areas he can swing several of the middle western states into the Republican column before election day.

May Influence California Trip.

The President was represented, however, as anxious to have all information possible regarding the actual effect on the voters of his midwestern trip, climaxed by his farm speech at Des Moines, Ia., prior to making up his mind about the California trip many Republicans are urging him to make. If possible the President would like to confine his efforts during the final weeks of the campaign to the central part of the country and the east.

The far western trip will not be made, according to information given out here, unless the President is convinced his appearance in California and Washington state is absolutely necessary. He wants also to be assured that such a trip would be successful. Political advisers of the President also point out that Mr. Hoover does not wish to take a chance of spoiling the effect of his speeches by delivering more than he has time to prepare with the greatest care.

Addresses Lawyers Wednesday.

In the political lull scheduled for the coming week the President will make one speech, however—that before the meeting of the American Bar association next Wednesday night. He is to talk on law enforcement, and while he is expected to steer clear of political pronouncements, ears will be attuned to catch any words he may possibly have to say concerning prohibition.

Today the President began his preparation of the address he will deliver in Ohio, probably the latter part of next week. No information has been given out regarding the particular subject. Indications are that the President will deliver another and more pointed attack on the Democratic legislative record in the house last winter. He is expected also to assert that the type of legislation advanced by Speaker "Jack" Garner, Democratic vice presidential candidate, represents the legislative program which the Democrats will advance if placed in power.

In previous speeches the President has attacked Speaker Garner and other Democratic leaders for advocacy of the public buildings pork barrel, the Goldsborough price inflation bill, and other measures which the President asserted would have wrecked the country's finances if allowed to become law.

Fires in 2 Montana Towns Cause $300,000 Damage

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Business district fires in Butte, Mont., and Missoula early today caused damage estimated at $300,000. Four Butte business establishments were destroyed by fire which swept a three story building. The loss was estimated at about $100,000. In Missoula the Hammond block, a city landmark, was destroyed in a $200,000 fire, the origin of which had not been ascertained.

John Hartnett, 34 years old, a chauffeur of 3400 Augusta boulevard, was taken to the Lutheran Memorial hospital last night suffering from a bullet wound in the right leg. The bullet shattered the leg bone. Hartnett told Warren avenue police that he did not see or hear the shot fired. He said he was standing at Jackson boulevard and California avenue when the bullet struck him.

Slingshot Vandals Break Windows in Two Cafes

Windows of two downtown restaurants were broken early this morning by slingshot vandals. They shot a stone through the window of the Ontra cafeteria at 231 South Wabash avenue at 12:58 o'clock, and three minutes later put a hole in the window of Klein's restaurant at 304 West Jackson street. Police are investigating.

Bandits Rob Drug Store Just Before Closing Time

Four bandits stole $375 in a robbery of Liggett's drug store at 400 West North avenue shortly before closing time last night. They got away in a car driven by a fifth man.

GOV. ROOSEVELT BEGINS SECOND TRIP ON OCT. 18

Plans Talk at Springfield on Bureaucracy.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Leaving New York City Oct. 18 on his second campaign journey, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will drop a few messages of cheer in the south, a land regarded as already won to the Roosevelt cause, and then he will foray off to Illinois and Indiana to try for some votes he may really need.

On the way home the Democratic nominee will do some more missionary work in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and western New York.

The tentative itinerary of this new trip, revealed here today, has the governor in Springfield, a logical battleground for downstate Illinois votes, on either Oct. 22 or 23, the dates on the trip being in some doubt as yet.

May Discuss Bureaucracy.

It is probable that the governor will select this spot for a speech he regards as one of the most important of his entire campaign, a discussion of what plans he has for routing the bureaucracy out of Washington, and for cutting down the federal operating budget by a full one-quarter. The governor has been advised that the struggle for governmental economy as a means of ending the depression has largely been directed from the Chicagoland area.

Mr. Roosevelt will also visit Indianapolis on this trip, and there have been some suggestions that he may discuss his position on the soldiers' bonus in that city. The Democratic presidential nominee has indicated he would take his stand on this issue before the end of the campaign, and it has been argued that Indianapolis, the national headquarters of the American Legion, would be a logical place for such an address.

Tentative Schedule.

The tentative schedule to be followed by the Roosevelt special train in the southern good will journey, with the dates subject to changes, is as follows:

Leave New York City	Oct. 18
Leave Baltimore	Oct. 18
Leave Raleigh, N. C.	Oct. 19
Leave Atlanta, Ga.	Oct. 19
Leave Warm Springs, Ga.	Oct. 19
Leave St. Louis, Mo.	Oct. 21
Leave Springfield, Ill.	Oct. 22
Leave Indianapolis, Ind.	Oct. 22
Leave Wheeling, W. Va.	Oct. 23
Leave Pittsburgh, Pa.	Oct. 24
Leave Buffalo, N. Y.	Oct. 25
Leave Rochester, N. Y.	Oct. 25
Arrive Albany, N. Y.	Oct. 25

The fact that the schedule does not list any full stops in the border states of Kentucky and Tennessee, which were Hoover states in 1928, caused some surprise here, but it is expected that the Roosevelt train will be halted in various cities of those two states for brief appearances.

Governor In Good Health.

Gov. Roosevelt will spend one day at his farm at Warm Springs, where he has established a large sanitarium for the treatment of victims of infantile paralysis.

The Governor, himself a victim of that disease, was won to the beneficial effects of the waters and climate at Warm Springs, during the time he was struggling for the recovery of the use of his legs, and he organized the sanitarium colony which has proved highly successful.

The governor would have tarried longer at the springs, except that it was feared by some of his advisors that the Republican propaganda machine would have ground out rumors that he was forced to rest there from the rigors of a strenuous campaign. Actually the governor appears in the best of trim, in high spirits and having lost none of the vigorous delivery which marks all his speeches.

The governor has one more trip planned, taking him to New England. He will be at Groton, Mass., where two of his sons are in school, and make a speech in Boston on Oct. 31. On the week-end before election he will make closing addresses in Brooklyn and New York City.

The governor discused details of his southern trip today with Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana.

STERLING ADHERENTS BOLT 'MA' FERGUSON; BACK G. O. P. NOMINEE

Austin, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, the only woman who has ever held the office of governor in Texas, today was assured a place as the Democratic nominee on the Nov. 8 election ballot, but a bolt in her own party promised bitter opposition.

Hardly had the Supreme court ordered her name placed on the ballot, ruling on questions arising from a contest suit of Gov. R. S. Sterling, before the League of anti-Ferguson Democrats at Dallas, ignoring her plea for unity, announced it would support Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, Tex., the Republican nominee. Organizers of the league were leaders of the Hoover-Democratic and ultra-dry factions which swung the state's electoral college votes to Herbert Hoover four years ago.

The league asserted "the issues transcend all party lines." It is headed by Cato Wells of Fort Worth, commissioner of Indian affairs in the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

FRANK M'ERLANE BODY IS BROUGHT HOME FOR BURIAL

The body of Frank McErlane, known as the city's cruelest gang leader, who died in a hospital at Beardstown of pneumonia, was brought home for burial yesterday. His death from internal causes was a surprise to police and gangsters, who expected his end would come in a gunfight or in the electric chair.

The body arrived at the undertaking parlors of Cornelius Kelly, 6315 Wentworth avenue, and was then taken to the family home to 6941 Anthony avenue.

From the parents and his brother, Vincent, there was no announcement of the time or place of burial.

Chief of Detectives Shoemaker sent a squad to the wake last evening and said several squads would attend the funeral. He said they might make important arrests if gangsters appeared at the funeral.

Mother Ill, Renew Hunt For Missing Chicago Girl

Search for Miss Bertha Amy Komiss, who disappeared on Aug. 15 in Muskegon, Mich., was renewed yesterday as a result of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. A. I. Komiss, 7 years old, 1457 Winnemac avenue. Mrs. Komiss is in Michael Reese hospital, where physicians say that her ailment, aggravated by grief over her daughter's disappearance, may result fatally.

DICK PERRY TALKS HIMSELF INTO SAVING $27.23 On His Car Insurance

"MY NEIGHBOR insured his Cadillac in Liberty Mutual and saved $27.23 last year. Why didn't I do that? Why did I give my car insurance to Jim B....., my broker, when I could have bought it direct and saved $27.23?

"Of course, Jim's a friend of mine and I like him, but what did he and his company do to earn that $27.23? Nothing except to promise me personal service, quick settlements and strong protection, and I could have gotten all that from Liberty Mutual. My neighbor tells me that in case of accident, Liberty Mutual takes the matter out of your hands and you seldom ever hear of it again until it's all over. He says they settle 99% of their cases without court trial. That shows fairness and promptness and keeps you out of court. Jim can't do any better than that.

"Liberty Mutual is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the world, with assets of $23,154,675; Reserves for Liabilities of $19,215,036; and a Surplus of $3,939,639 (June 30, 1932). Well-managed, too. Its directors are conservative business men—all policyholders in Liberty Mutual. They hold down expenses and watch the company's investments with experienced financial judgment.

"And since Liberty Mutual sells you your policy direct, it pays no commissions to brokers or agents. The average insurance company spends three times as much as Liberty Mutual spends to sell an automobile insurance policy. And, Liberty insures only one careful driver out of every four car-owners—avoiding many ruinous losses from reckless driving.

"No wonder Liberty Mutual has been able to set aside large surplus and reserves and return large dividends off standard rates to policyholders every year for 20 years! It pays you its savings, plus the dividends that go to stockholders in other companies. This would have amounted to $27.23 off standard rates on the insurance on my Cadillac car.

"Of course, Jim would get no commission from the Liberty for they pay no commissions. Too bad, but $27.23 will buy a lot of things I want. I'm not going to just hand it over to my broker and his company on a silver platter. Liberty has over 100,000 satisfied policyholders and I am going to join them. I'll call up Liberty Mutual right now before I forget it."

Call up or call at one of the Liberty Mutual offices below today. A trained representative will give you all the details about insuring your car and will not annoy you with high-pressure selling.

Or, send coupon below for information as to how you could have reduced the cost of your car insurance as shown above.

WABASH & ADAMS

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

200 MEMBERS OF U. OF C. FACULTY INDORSE HORNER

Alumni Canvass Graduates for Democrat.

Indorsement of Judge Henry Horner for governor by 200 members of the faculty of the University of Chicago, headed by President Robert Maynard Hutchins, was announced yesterday as one of the independent activities in behalf of the Democratic nominee.

ROBT. M. HUTCHINS

The indorsements of this overwhelmingly large number of the university organization came from the University of Chicago Alumni Independent Horner for Governor organization, which has instituted a program intended to present the issues of the state election campaign to every graduate of the university.

Majority Republicans.

John F. Hagey of the class of '98 heads this new unit in the election battle. James Weber Linn, '97, is chairman of the executive committee, and Stillman Mitchell Frankland, '32, is the secretary. The executive committee is composed of one or more representatives of every class from 1895 to 1932, a majority being Republican in their normal affiliations.

"Many graduates, Republicans and Democrats alike," read a letter sent out to the complete list of alumni yesterday, "believe that unless Judge Henry Horner is elected governor in November, the social and financial stability of the state will be in danger.

"This committee is not conerned with your views on national issues. Our belief is that Horner is not only a fit man for the governorship, but also is unusually able and demonstratedly trustworthy and that, with conditions what they are in our country, we must have a fit, able and trustworthy man in charge of state affairs."

President Hutchin's Statement.

Inclosed with this letter sent to each graduate was a pamphlet containing statements by President Hutchins and sixteen members of the faculty giving their reasons for supporting Judge Horner.

"On the basis of Judge Horner's excellent record as a public servant," said President Hutchins' statement, "I shall support him for the governorship. The state of Illinois needs able, honest, and progressive leadership. Judge Horner will supply this need."

WALKER HAILED BY TAMMANY AT PIER RECEPTION

Tug Whistles and Bands Sound Welcome.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special]—James J. Walker returned to New York today in the rôle of the man who came back—too late. His friends in Tammany hall, however, went the limit to prevent reminders of his transformation from "Mayor Jimmy" to Citizen Walker from becoming too painfully vivid.

JAMES J. WALKER.
[Du Bois Photo.]

His friends—and among them were those doughty political partners, John F. Curry and John H. McCooey—arranged a sort of channel-swimmer reception for him when he sailed into New York harbor aboard the Europa and stepped ashore on the unfamiliar Brooklyn waterfront a little before noon.

Faithful Out Early.

They had pulled political strings and hired bands and tugs. They routed the faithful from their beds and mobilized them on pier 4, at the foot of 58th street, Brooklyn.

A fireboat escorted the big ship on its journey to the pier, shooting its jets of water into the air, with the Tammany tugs and a lone police boat trailing in its wake.

Mr. Walker showed by his happy smile that he thought it was swell. He was beaming with happiness when he walked with nonchalant, jaunty step down the gangway into the arms of his wife, who had waited for him at the pier. Some 2,000 other persons rushed the gangplank and mobbed him, sweeping a line of thirty policemen away.

Women Kiss Him.

Roses were flung at him by those on the outer fringe of the crowd. Women hurled themselves at his neck and kissed him, sobbing: "My hero." One elderly woman fainted in the crush.

In an interview on the Europa's sun deck, under a barrage of feverish photography, Mr. Walker, who resigned his office as a result of the Seabury graft inquiry, declared he enjoyed the relaxation which comes with the laying aside of official cares and immediate political aspirations.

Mrs. Hutton Gets Hospital Holiday for Her Birthday

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Rev. Aimee-McPherson-Hutton left Hollywood hospital after four days today, but it was announced at her home that she will go back to the hospital again tomorrow for treatment for carbuncles and continuation of clinical examinations to determine the reason for her recent frequent collapses. The evangelist left the hospital today against the advice of her physicians for the purpose of eating birthday dinner at her home at Angelus temple parsonage and attending church services at which a children's chorus was to sing hymns of her writing and give her flowers.

AUSTRALIA SAYS JAPANESE SEEK PORTUGUESE ISLE

(Copyright 1932: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, England, Oct. 9.—The Daily Herald received a dispatch from Canberra, Australia, today saying that Australian government circles had been stirred by the report that Japan was considering negotiations for the purchase of the Portuguese section of the island of Timor in the Malay archipelago, 400 miles north of Australia.

Japan in the past has made overtures to buy the Australian mandate over New Guinea.

20 INJURED AS IRISH FACTIONS RIOT; GUNS USED

De Valera Rule Attacked by Sinn Fein.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 9.—While the Sinn Fein was meeting here today to repeat its pledge of undying opposition to government by England, a clash occurred at Kilmallock, County Limerick, between the new "white army" and Fianna Fail [government] supporters. Twenty persons were injured.

A former minister of the William T. Cosgrave government, Gen. Richard J. Mulcahy, was addressing a meeting when the procession of Fianna Fail, with the banners reading "We Want De Valera" marched past. "The Army Comrades," known as the "white army," tried to prevent the interruption of the meeting and in the melé 20 shots were fired, none finding a mark. Then sticks and stones were used.

Sinn Fein Holds Convention.

The Sinn Fein organization, which still protests the existence of the Republic of Ireland, held its annual convention here. Brian O'Higgins, president of the "Glorified Irish People," declared that loyalty to forlorn causes was responsible for continuance of Ireland's assertion of independence from England.

"There is no peace, no freedom here while England occupies our chief ports and English is the language of the people," O'Higgins said. "We swore an oath to the republic in 1916 and refused to break it in 1922 at the establishment of the Free State, an English made institution."

The Sinn Feiner recalled a "decree of the republic" in 1923, signed by Eamon de Valera and P. J. Huttledge, who are now ministers of the Free State today, in which acceptance of the treaty was declared void and the present dail was declared an illegal assembly. That, said O'Higgins, was never revoked. It means that the present dail and subordinate institutions are illegal, and even if they were manned by saints it would be the duty of the Sinn Fein to repudiate their usurped authority.

De Valera Hits at Farmers.

President de Valera, in a letter published today, charges, by implication, that the Farmers' league intends to hamper the coming negotiations with Great Britain. The league's letter, signed by Chairman Frank MacDermott, which provoked De Valera's reply, requested restoration of the oversea markets, protested the inability of farmers to pay land annuities, and expressed the futility of the Free State government suing for nonpayment.

CROATS IN ARMS AGAIN TO BREAK JUGO-SLAV RULE

Arrest Pernar for Inciting Revolution.

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The arrest of Ivan Pernar, second in command of the Croatian independence movement, was revealed today simultaneously with Croatian reports of renewed violence in this long and bitter struggle.

Pernar is the right hand man of Vladko Machek, successor to the slain Croatian leader Stefan Raditch, who was shot down in parliament in Belgrade in 1928. Pernar himself still carries a bullet in his lung as a memento of that shooting. He was arrested with eight others in Belgrade yesterday.

The charge against the Croatians is that they were circulating leaflets inciting to revolution. The arrest was confirmed in official communiques from the Jugo-Slavian capital.

Resist Gendarmes.

Messages reaching here from Croatian sources at Zagreb today said unrest and disorders on an increasing scale had appeared in parts of Croatia and Dalmatia.

According to these reports, revolutionary Croatian volunteer troops known as "the Ustasi," who have been harassing gendarmes and other representatives of the Belgrade authority in the Lika district, have extended their operations into northern Dalmatia.

Between Benkovach and Sebeniko, four gendarmerie barracks were reported bombed, while skirmishes in Lika resulted in the capture of five Serbian gendarmes who were being held as hostages.

Since the patriot Raditch and two other Croatian deputies were shot down, several deaths and many acts of violence have marked the trail of Croatian efforts to gain their independence from the united Jugo-Slavia of King Alexander, which is composed of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes.

Violence this year began with the attempted assassination of Mile Budak, a Croatian patriot, in the streets of Zagreb on June 7. Riots accompanied demonstrations in Croatia on June 20, the fourth anniversary of the slaying of Raditch.

But the Croatian movement is not the only trouble that the dictatorship of King Alexander has confronted recently. A group of Serbian democrats have bitterly opposed the dictatorship, and communism has caused rebellion in a section of the army. Two army officers were sentenced to death for a military revolt at Marburg in July.

RUSSIA TO OPEN GIGANTIC WATER POWER PLANT

DNIEPROSTROY, U. S. S. R., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Government officials and communist party leaders were among thousands of persons arriving here today for the formal opening tomorrow of the world's largest hydro-electric plant. Newspapers of the nation hailed the construction of the plant as the most brilliant achievement of soviet industry and outstanding proof of the ability of the socialist system to achieve its aims.

Tomorrow's ceremonies are expected to include the bestowal of the order of the Red Star on Col. Hugh L. Cooper of New York, who designed and supervised the construction and who is here. He would become the first foreigner to receive that decoration, given only for outstanding achievements in defense of the country.

Six members of his staff are expected to receive the order of Lenin. The plant is equipped with American machinery. It is the major project of the five-year plan which is to be concluded by the first of the year. The development represents an investment of 220,000,000 rubles (nominally $110,000,000) and will have an ultimate capacity of 756,000 horsepower with an annual production of 2,500,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity. It will supply electricity for 16,000,000 people in an area of 70,000 square miles, including the Donetz coal basin and the huge Dniepropetrovsk metal works.

port of the candidates listed as favoring the repeal of prohibition.

Text of the Question.

"If elected," read the question submitted to each candidate, "will you support a resolution for the straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the restoration to each state of its power to regulate the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages within its own limits? Such resolution to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection."

In listing the Republican and Democratic nominees the women's organization used the designations "W" and "D" as indicating "wet" and "dry" and added the classifications of "N. R." and "Rep." as meaning that the candidates did not reply or said they would abide by the Republican national platform.

For the purpose of clarity the abbreviation "Plat." is substituted for the organization's "Rep." in the following list and indicates that the nominees thus designated declined to state their own positions and confined themselves to the prohibition plank in the platform adopted by the Republican national convention.

"The Women's organization and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment," said Mrs. Brennan, "urges all their members throughout the state to retire those candidates whose previous records, taken with their failure to reply, show their sympathy with the dry laws. We must elect to congress on Nov. 8 men pledged to repeal or face a wait of another two years for action on the matter."

TAG DAY TODAY, TO HELP CITY'S NEEDY CHILDREN

Ten thousand women will be in the streets bright and early today. In their hands will be coin boxes which they expect to fill with money to support 50 organizations for dependent children during the coming winter.

It will be tag day for the Chicago Children's Benefit league. This organization sponsored the first regular tag day in Chicago and each year has supported its coöperating institutions, chiefly through the proceeds of the tag day.

"Small contributions from many people are more valuable this year than ever before," according to Mrs. Wildred Reynolds, president, "and it will be the small gifts upon which the success of our tag day will depend. For all of the charities are indorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"It is on the children that the burden of this depression is descending," Mrs. Reynolds continued. "This burden must be relieved. This annual tag day gives an opportunity to everyone to help."

A goal of $125,000 has been set as the amount needed for the 50 charities. Each organization will be responsible for the spending of the money raised by its own workers. The league officers receive no salaries.

TWIT ROOSEVELT FOR PICKING REED TO ANSWER RIVAL

G. O. P. Recalls Wilson's Feud with Missourian.

In the name of the Republican committee—which, incidentally, hasn't had a meeting for weeks and weeks—Hoover headquarters in Chicago yesterday issued a statement seeking to take a large wallop at James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri.

JAMES A. REED.

It was based on a coupling up of a recent tribute by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to the memory of Woodrow Wilson, and the charge that the New York nominee for the presidency recently "enrolled one of Wilson's implacable foes"—Reed—"to perform for him one of the big chores in his campaign."

"It was James A. Reed," read the statement, "who stood out as the most bitter opponent of the ideals of Woodrow Wilson. It was of James A. Reed that Wilson wrote he would 'not willingly consent to any further association with him.'

"William Gibbs McAdoo, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson and the man who made possible the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, said of James A. Reed on March 3, 1924: 'He is the man who, because of his disloyalty to the Democratic party, was in 1920 thrown out of the Democratic convention of his own state, Missouri.'

"'He is the man who for weeks hampered a Democratic President and the Democratic party in the senate in their efforts to achieve for the country a great federal reserve act.'"

The statement thereupon recalled some further Wilson criticisms of former Senator Reed, and continued:

"Why has Franklin D. Roosevelt so far forgotten the spirit of Woodrow Wilson as to pick the most deadly enemy of the living Wilson to reply for him to the great speech which President Hoover delivered in Des Moines last Tuesday?"

FIRE ROUTS 12 FAMILIES.

Fire for which a 2-11 alarm was sounded yesterday attacked the vacant fourth story of a brick apartment building at 223 East 43th street.

Riley, president of the Mid-Southside Business league, will lead the discussion at the African M. E. Zion Ministerial association at its meeting Wednesday night at Oakley boulevard and Langley avenue.

GERMANS CHEER MONARCHISTS IN DAY OF SPEECHES

Ex-Royalty Numerous at Steel Helmet Fetes.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9. — Monarchists stepped into the limelight in Germany today. While Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm and his two brothers, Prince Eitel Freidrich and Prince Oscar, and the Princess Oscar [Ina Marie] shared ovations with Chancellor Franz von Papen in Berlin, the Crown Princess Cecile was addressing women at Madgeburg.

The Steel Helmet, veterans' organization, provided the setting for the appearances of the former imperial family.

The Berlin Steel Helmet had invited the Hohenzollerns and members of the cabinet, as well as thousands of other guests, to the Movie Palace preview of the film, "Steel Helmet Marches," and "Labor Volunteers to the Front," showing the remarkable achievements of labor volunteers under the guidance of the Steel Helmet.

"Fight Not in Vain."

While thousands were applauding the film, von Papen stepped to the front of the balcony and cried out, "For thirteen years Steel Helmet has struggled to found the basis for a new nation—it shall not have fought in vain." Steel Helmet leaders repeatedly have stressed that "Germany's happiest days were under the monarchy."

In Magdeburg the crown princess spoke under the auspices of Steel Helmet to its women's auxiliary, the "Queen Louise association."

Franz Seldte, founder of Steel Helmet, spoke of the needs of the day: strong government, independent of parties; full military independence, and reconstruction of the empire.

Germany's "Happy Days."

Reinhold Quaatz, closest associate of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, "the kaiser's henchman," speaking to a public meeting, declared, "The idea of the state, as it lives in the German people today, is a monarchy. The days of the strong monarchy were always days of happiness for Germany. Work on the reconstruction of Germany must aim toward the restoration of a Hohenzollern kaiser."

Welt am Montag, newspaper reporting the Quaatz speech, asserts that this is almost "incitement to high treason." The same paper quotes the Hitlerite, Dr. Wilhelm Frick, who charges that political circles in Berlin are actively working for the restoration of the monarchy and aim to proclaim President Paul von Hindenburg regent to prepare the ground for the revival.

Nazis, Reds Clash; One Dead.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Political passions flamed over the week end in scattered sections of Germany and the casualties included one slain and three wounded at Lohrsdorf. Five were wounded in three clashes here. The clashes usually found Nazis and Communists participating, in advance of the general election called for Nov. 6.

DANDRUFF
Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get plain, ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents. This simple remedy never fails.

MUSSOLINI GIVES ORDER TO SETTLE ALL LABOR ROWS

Sets End of This Month as Deadline.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Oct. 9. — Prime Minister Mussolini, as minister of corporations, aided by Under Secretary Bruno Biagi, has given a new impulse to this department of the government. He has ordered all pending conflicts between employers and workers settled by the end of October.

Labor conflicts on a provincial or national scale which apparently had little prospect of speedy settlement number 32. They are concerned with modifications of group or collective contracts involving wages and conditions of work in the theater, metallurgical, clothing, food, paper, construction, and textile industries.

70 Local Conflicts.

Labor conflicts on a local scale in which no settlement has been reached total 70 in the various industrial centers.

Under the Fascist corporative system settlement cannot be reached by strikes or lockouts which are forbidden by law. The normal course of settlement is first to try to reach a conciliation before the local corporative authorities. If this fails, successive appeals are made to the provincial corporative authorities and then to the national.

If still no settlement is reached, the case is laid before the specially constituted labor magistrates whose pronouncement is supposed to be binding. In practice, however, it was the custom to submit a matter even after labor magistrates had handed down their decision to the ministry of corporations. Recently it had been the custom of both workers and employers to seek a settlement from the ministry, out of a certain mistrust, whether justified or not, of the labor magistracy.

Prescribe Old System.

The new measures being put into effect at the ministry of corporations by Mussolini and Biagi call for a return to the former system of settling these labor differences so as to free the ministry itself for other kinds of activity, such as furthering and developing the syndical organization.

From what appears in recently published figures, the syndical organization of the workers has not yet reached its full development and needs many adustments. Many workers are not included in its ranks.

Figures on syndical organization, recently issued, showed membership running from 50 per cent in industrial groups down to 40 per cent among the artisans.

BRITISH LINER IN PORT AFTER SHIP COLLISION

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Blue Star steamer Africstar, which left for Buenos Aires yesterday with a cargo and six passengers, returned to her dock here today with damaged bows as a result of a collision with the Norwegian steamer Charente off Kent in the English channel during the night.

The Africstar took off the 18 men comprising the crew of the Charente and transferred them to a Dover tug which attempted to tow the Charente to Dover.

The Norwegian craft sank, however, seven miles off Dungeness near where the collision occurred. The crew was taken to Dover.

Many people blame common winter ills on

But what they lack is good resistance!

We're all exposed alike to the rigors of winter. Why are some people so much more susceptible than others to certain ills?

Just being out in bad weather, or staying in a stuffy room—conditions that do not bother most of us—prove too much for them.

What these people need is extra resistance to fortify them in winter. They should lose no time building themselves up!

Squibb Adex Tablets are an especially rich source of the important factor which builds good general resistance—Vitamin A! They also provide an abundance of the sunshine Vitamin D.

Each Adex tablet supplies as much Vitamins A and D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil with Viosterol-10D.

No wonder they offer such protection in winter! And they are chocolate coated, pleasant to take. Begin now. Take them every day. Ask your druggist.

HERRIOT TELLS ALSACE OF NEW PLAN TO DISARM

France to Present Scheme at Geneva.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KEMBS, France, Oct. 9.—A new French disarmament plan will soon be presented at Geneva, Premier Edouard Herriot announced today in his speech at the inauguration of a hydro-electric plant in this town on the upper Rhine.

He did not go into the details of the project that is to replace the ill fated Andre Tardieu plan, so blithely presented in February the moment the disarmament conference got under way. The Tardieu plan conditioned French disarmament on French security and the Herriot plan is expected to do the same.

But now that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson has declared that neutrality in the face of war is unthinkable, Herriot is going Tardieu one better on security, it is understood, and perhaps one better on disarmament, too.

A Consultative Pact.

The French premier is believed to be preparing to propose a consultative pact and putting teeth into the Kellogg pact with America as a signatory. For he has said already that he understands that Mr. Stimson now is ready to sign such a pact.

"France," he said, "is finishing a constructive plan aimed for organization of peace and progressive disarmament which will be introduced to the disarmament conference as soon as the necessary opinion has been received and the government has deliberated. We ask only the delays necessary for methodical action in good faith."

"How," asked Herriot, repeating his now habitual plaint, "can any one suspect the motives of the French government that since the day it was created has never ceased to work day by day for peace. We want understandings, but sincere ones, and loyal ones. There is no other ideal behind our policy. Thus, if goodwill like ours could be found elsewhere such an effort would mark an important contribution towards the conciliations of peoples."

Expresses Affection for Alsace.

Herriot, as well as President Lebrun made clear again France's attitude toward Alsace-Lorraine.

"Never have the eastern provinces been considered as distinct from the other provinces in spite of special privileges," Herriot said. "They have always been and always will remain French. The government never will tolerate the slightest attack on the indivisibility of the republic."

"Your destiny is a double one," President Albert Lebrun, who presided at the opening of the power plant, told his Alsatian audience. "One is to mount a vigilant guard at the gates of 'la patrie,' and the other to raise on the banks of the Rhine a shining monument of French culture."

Concessions Are Demanded.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Paris newspapers viewed the new French progressive disarmament plan today as both demanding concessions by the United States and fitting in with American proposals.

The Petit Parisien said the maximum French plan appeared to involve an effort to bring the United States, by concessions under the Hoover plan for disarmament, to accept reinforcement of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact and to renounce "benefits and privileges" of neutrality toward belligerents.

Geneva dispatches said the plan, as drawn up by the French delegation there, included a so-called maximum proposal setting forth the extreme limit to which France is willing to disarm providing the powers submit to armament control and engage themselves to enforce sanctions.

The Petit Parisien said if the United States was unwilling to abandon its "traditional conception of neutrality" it remained only for France to fall back on its minimum plan, which was described as the point beyond which France feels unable to disarm, provided conditions of security are no greater than those believed by France to be indispensable.

The maximum plan, it said, would obtain from Great Britain, "which thus would no longer fear complications with America in policing the seas," participation and mutual assistance in limiting armaments in Europe with sufficient guarantees of security.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—In place of a four power conference in London to settle the Franco-German dispute, it now seems certain there will be a conversation here this week between Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot by themselves, with the Germans and Italians left out.

Diplomatic circles in London are puzzled as to why MacDonald should issue a private, personal invitation to the French premier which is bound to be resented by the Germans and make them more stubborn than before in their demands for arms equality.

It is believed in London that Herriot will try to convince MacDonald that the new French plan for disarmament should have British support as the best device for bringing the Germans back to Geneva and getting a generally approved program for arms reduction.

ESCAPED STEER LEADS POLICE A MERRY CHASE

An escaped steer startled several sections of the west side early this morning and led a dozen policemen an hour's chase before it was captured.

The animal was first sighted at Maypole and Crawford avenues. Sergt. Robert Welling and his Fillmore street squad investigated but could not find the fugitive. A few minutes later residents at 130 North Karlov avenue raised an alarm that a cow was grazing in their backyard. Sergt. Welling and his men returned to the hunt and found the steer.

Policeman Frank Olis lassooed the animal and tied him to a tree. The steer snapped the tether and charged out of the yard and into the street. He headed south to Fillmore street, the long rope trailing on the pavement. Sergt. Welling ended the chase by modern strategy. He drove his car over the hope, halting one tire upon it and holding the steer. The animal was led to the station garage and locked up.

Prince Michael Quits Paris to Attend Carol's Birthday

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Young Prince Michael of Rumania left Paris today for Bucharest so that he would be on hand tomorrow, for the birthday of his father, King Carol, Oct. 16. The lad was suddenly recalled to Rumania from London, where he had been visiting his mother, the former Queen Helen, for two weeks. Princess Helen charged the recall was "an act of persecution" on the part of King Carol.

NEW POSTOFFICE QUIZ WILL OPEN HERE THIS WEEK

Rentals paid by the government on postoffice substations and the circumstances of acquiring sites and erecting postoffices upon them are to be inquired into again when a subcommittee of the national house of representatives starts hearings in Chicago on Wednesday. Representative James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.] is chairman of the committee and will conduct the hearings. The sessions will be held in a Municipal court room in the city hall.

A similar inquiry conducted by a senate committee headed by Senator John J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] in 1930 and 1931 was featured by sensational charges, all of which brought denials from Postmaster General Brown, and the findings of the committee were subsequently shelved.

"We are going to begin where Blaine left off," said Congressman A. J. Sabath, author of the resolution calling for the investigation, yesterday.

"We are going to find out the reason for the exorbitant rates paid by the government to steamship and airplane carriers of mail. We believe the railroads, too, are paid too much, but the railroads have troubles of their own and we won't go into that phase just now.

"We have received many complaints that the government pays as high as 33 1-3 per cent of the cost of buildings in annual rentals, and we want to find out why this is done."

12 PHILIPPINE GUARDS SLAIN IN MORO AMBUSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 10 (Monday).—Twelve soldiers of the Philippine constabulary, including First Lieut. Vicente Alagar, were killed in a Moro uprising on the island of Jolo in the southern archipelago yesterday morning. The number of rebels killed is not known.

The Moros, who are Mohammedans, ambushed a patrol under Lieut. Alagar near Culi Culi on the south shore. Theye were led by Imam Ibra and killed the officer and nine men. Four soldiers escaped to Jolo on the north coast and reported the ambush. Capt. Leon Angeles, provincial commander, leading a relief detachment of fifty, attacked and captured the outlaw camp. Two more constabulary men were killed, the fight continuing until nightfall.

Simple to Lose Pound of Fat a Day a Full Stomach

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on sweets and desserts. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. *The diet takes off fat with food that turns to energy instead of weight.

If you are tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

REGISTER TOMORROW.

Tomorrow the polling places will be open for the second and last time for the registration of voters. The poll books used in previous elections have been destroyed. Any one in Chicago and some of its suburbs who expects to vote for President but did not register on Oct. 1 must do so tomorrow or lose his vote. The polling places will be open in Chicago until 9 o'clock in the evening.

The results of the first registration day were disappointing. Only 760,000 names were listed, in contrast to 835,000 on the corresponding day four years ago. The indifference of the voters can be explained, in some part, at least, as a reflection of the lack of enthusiasm for either candidate for President. If no one were to be elected on Nov. 8 but the President, the refusal to register might be accepted as inevitable. But citizens cannot afford to overlook the fact that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt are by no means the only candidates. At the same election Illinois will choose a senator and all its representatives in congress. Any one who wishes to make his views count for or against prohibition can do so far more certainly through the choice of his representatives at Washington than through the selection of either candidate for President. Any change in either the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act will be initiated in congress, not in the White House. On the congressmen, likewise, depends all hope of federal tax reduction.

Lack of interest in the presidential candidates ought not to blind citizens of Illinois, either, to the clear issue presented in the choice of a governor. Voters, and there are thousands of them, who think that Gov. Roosevelt is much the same kind of man as Mr. Hoover, cannot believe that Judge Horner is only another Small. The choice of the next governor of Illinois is a crucial matter to every taxpayer in the state and every one jealous of the state's reputation. The election of state legislators is scarcely less important at a time when demands for additional taxation for all sorts of purposes are being pressed upon legislators. Moreover, the legislators chosen in November will be the men intrusted with the task of drafting any changes in the state's liquor code which may follow the repeal of the Volstead act.

Cook county must choose on Nov. 8 its chief law enforcement officer, the state's attorney. The danger of crime and civil disorder is greatest in times of depression and it is therefore particularly important this year that the man who is to hold the prosecuting power in his hands shall be well chosen.

Any one who wants his voice to count in the selection of the President, in the framing of national and state laws, in the executive mansion at Springfield and in the Criminal courts of Cook county must register tomorrow.

THE ALIMONY RACKET.

Some Cook county judges might do well to follow the example of Judge Leonard of Champaign who has just refused to send a man to jail because he has not paid alimony he could not earn. The man was divorced in 1931 and has been brought into court five times for nonpayment under an alimony decree ordering him to pay $20 a month, $75 solicitor's fees, and $163 on a property settlement. He is out of work and alleges, plausibly enough, that he cannot find any. Judge Leonard held that no proof had been offered to show the defendant had received money, and that he was not to be jailed because he had none.

Courts should certainly take judicial notice of conditions affecting earning power at this time and restrict their discipline to clear cases. Alimony has become in many cases a racket for unscrupulous women and lawyers. Especially where there are no children involved and divorced women are capable of self-support, pleas for alimony should be carefully scrutinized and grants made to conform to justice rather than false sentiment.

THE UNDERFED SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Probably the greatest reproach to civilization is a hungry child. All Americans will go part way with the theory of individual responsibility and some will go all the way. It may be that the further we go the better off we'll be, but modifications have to be made for the child. They are written into the laws of even the most individualistic modern state, giving, among other things, the reason why the child is in school. A hungry child in school, a child undernourished and unable to make the physical and mental effort required by the schooling, is not only a reproach to society but an injury. Malnutrition can defeat in a large measure the purposes of the school appropriations.

Tribune readers last year contributed to a fund collected by this newspaper to provide lunches in the schools for children who otherwise would not have sufficient wholesome food. Because times are hard the problem has been more than ordinarily difficult and it has been a heartbreak to teachers, themselves the victims of payless months, to see many of their pupils plainly undernourished. The fund is open again this year, giving an opportunity for citizens to volunteer their help. Many contributions of small sums will do the work until the regular methods of school operation can be resumed. The cause will appeal to all people who consider the consequences involved in a failure.

WHERE THE REDS HIT HIGH.

Stalin, his predecessors in the Red and his associates have never been given full credit for their real achievement. What the collectivists have really done is to wreck the one large country in the world which could have weathered the world depression with the least trouble if it had been in the control of rational men. The docility, stolidity, and fateful sense of the Russian masses, their acceptance of whatever autocracy prevailed, gave them over to the Reds without the struggle inevitable in a people of greater tradition of freedom. The characteristics which submitted the land to the dogmas and experiments of the soviets would have been invaluable if the government had been different.

In the United States a farmer who has a herd of cattle, some wheat or corn fields, a wood lot and pasturage, some hogs or sheep, a barn, silo, garden patch, a house with a sound roof, an automobile and a concrete road in front of his place regards himself as busted. He is the primary victim of the hard times, and some people say that his condition is the cause of them. In Russia he would be a kulak, a rich man, a capitalist. As such he is exterminated by the Red state for the good of the state. His belongings are taken from him because he is too prosperous. He represents an odious class not indoctrinated with collectivist philosophy, dangerous because he is competent and obnoxious because he enjoys the use and increase of private property.

If the great majority of the people of Russia had been free to work for themselves and enjoy the profits of their labor it is altogether probable that Russia would now be the envy of the less fortunate. The Russian people, not being highly industrialized, could have contained themselves upon their land and could have produced sufficient to supply their needs in every respect. What they desire is within their reach. Being attached to the soil, they can make it satisfy their lives.

Herds, flocks, crops, barns, etc., are still wealth and not ruin in Russia. Witness again the kulak who gets too rich on what makes the American farmer too poor. The economic world which went broke with riches in its hands could not have spread its wreckage over a country which still knows how to live on the land. Russia has joined the ragged countries because the productivity of the people has been restricted by fanatic collectivist orders, because goods have been confiscated and the ambition of the people to work for them has been destroyed.

The real achievement of the soviets, undertaking to create an industrial system with a people untrained for it at a time when industrialism has been cracking the world over, has been to destroy a country capable of sustaining itself happily on the soil if released from the blundering hand of tyranny. As an achievement that will rank high in the world's records.

THE FLIGHT SOUTH.

Ornithologists may know whether the migrating birds regard Chicago, or any other great city on their route, as a lark or a terror. A myrtle warbler twenty stories up grubbing at the Bedford stone may be stout hearted, dumb or merely a good tourist. His fragility has a tremendous background, but the breed survives two trips a year along the old trail which with its obstructions, its decoying lights and its storms might seem to defy feathers to make it. A human guess would be that migration is the supreme test of the birds, the survival of which is the price of their existence. The fellows whose instincts do not insist upon the Caribbean coast or South Africa for their winter seem to have all the luck.

The cardinal and the chickadee can see the thrush and the white throat sparrow take off for the tall grass while they remain for the snow. If it were a matter of judgment the customers who rely on winter forage would have the best of it. The great waves of travel have passed on. The hermit thrush and veery followed the wood thrush; the juncoes are on the tail feathers of the white throats and song sparrows which went on a wave with the black and white warblers, myrtle warblers, and all the tribes of warblers and sparrows, buntings and finches. The wind is soft, but it is bringing down the leaves, the flurry is soon over and we sew in for the winter in brown woods with the old feathered standbys.

PAYING "FARMER" BROWN.

[Omaha World-Herald.]

Those who pay an extra penny postage whenever they mail a letter—

Or fork up an extra nickel when they go to a movie show—

Or have to postpone buying a flivver because of the extra tax—

Will be extremely interested in the story of "Farmer" Brown, ballyhoo artist in chief for the federal farm board.

"Farmer" Brown is one of the many, many reasons for the extra heavy taxes, for the difficulty in balancing the budget, for the general demoralization of the federal finances.

And he is also one of the reasons for the growing revolt against bureaucrats and bureaucracies, for he illustrates perfectly the danger of giving a few men control over an immense sum of money for spending purposes.

"Farmer" Brown is traveling over Nebraska giving radio talks and farm bureau speeches telling the farmers how happy they should be because the farm board helped bring down the price of wheat and corn and oats to the lowest figure in years.

His salary of four thousand dollars a year, plus a generous expense account for a futile and worthless campaign trip, are part of the treasury ledger debits that must be met by every taxpayer, even though his taxes be limited to that extra penny of postage.

Any sincere policy of federal economy would have fired the "Farmer" Browns months ago. Until such items, which are multiplied by the hundreds in the pay roll, are eliminated government will continue to be costly, expensive, wasteful, and extravagant.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. BY F. R. L.

"ASSURANCES of Republican success," says Everett Sanders of the G. O. P. national committee, "appear in every quarter." But, gosh, Everett, most of us haven't got a quarter.

THE W. C. T. U. IN CANADA has begun a campaign against the use of the word cocktail in referring to tomato appetizers, fruit mixtures, and other nonalcoholic concoctions. They fear the use of the word cocktail, which is one of the death snares of old Demon Rum, will have a bad effect on the young. It is all right by us; we're always scared stiff in Canada, where they have had both kinds, that when we said cocktail the waitress lady would bring us a glassful of sliced tomatoes with French dressing on it. Which would be far from what we had in mind when we said cocktail.

TREES IN AUTUMN.

So Autumn comes to you, my forest friends:
Your feathered hosts depart; your lustrous dress
Of verdure fades; and there is weariness
Upon you; while the waning moon that bends
Above you is a harvest moon that lends
But retrospective dreams. The sun's caress
Has lost its soothing sorcery. The stress
Of life subsides, and joy of living ends.

The lull of Lethe's waters sings to you,
The surge of deep, dark winds that ebb and flow
Among your palsied branches; and, anon,
Slumber will fall, and you will say adieu,
And care for naught but rest; and, resting so,
Attain the refuge of Oblivion.

EOLUS.

WE ARE BEING CONTINUALLY HECKLED by letters calling our attention to the fact that our peerless leader, Norman Thomas, is receiving very little support in the straw ballots. To which we haughtily reply that the followers of Norman Thomas seldom condescend to vote in straw ballots. Nor at any other time.

AND IT MAY WELL BE that we were all wrong about our ideas of how Tammany selects the mayor of New York. On again looking over the long list of chief executives of our great sister metropolis we believe now that Tammany summons all its members when the time comes and has 'em stand in the big council hall. Then a blindfolded billygoat is led into the room and turned loose. The first man the blindfolded billygoat runs into is immediately proclaimed the next mayor of New York. Anyhow, if you look over the list of mayors New York has had, this sounds fairly reasonable.

"ALL SIX Candidates for Democratic Nomination to Speak in Illinois." But it could be worse; suppose they had had ten candidates.

"GENS. O'RYAN AND HARBORD Mentioned by New York Republicans for City Mayor."—Headline. The "Gens." is probably perfectly good English, but whenever we see it we wish we spoke only Choctaw or Sioux. It gives us convulsive shudders up and down the spine. Two Colonels together would be probably spoken of as "Cols.", which is quite correct and very dreadful, but imagine two Majors being referred to as "Majs."! And two College Presidents, of course, would be "Presses.", leaving the impression that they might be either printing presses, cider presses, or cotton presses. There are many otherwise pleasant people who give fearful screams of awful anguish and sometimes faint at the sight of a split infinitive, but we can gaze on a split infinitive with merely a slight shudder and a look of loathsome disgust, but when we think of "Gens.", "Cols.", and "Presses.", we walk right over to the dictionary of the English language and give it a swift kick in the pants.

THE ETERNAL VAGABOND.

No blazing hearthside welcomed him,
No open door called "Stay!"
He passed them when the nights were dim,
And at the break of day,
Nor ever envied them their ease
Nor their profound securities.

For him a fragrant brushwood fire
In some remote retreat,
Light of stars and a windy lyre
Calling his restless feet
O'er rugged mountains, through valleys fair,
Following on to God knows where.

Ke knew where earliest violets bloom,
And wind-flowers by what streams;
Where freesias offer faint perfume,
And where arbutus dreams;
Narcissus for his soul be bought,
A crust was all his hunger sought.

All the highways of the world
Were his, to have, to hold,
The year's bright seasons round him hurled
A plenitude of gold
To buy a song and a laugh to share
On vagabond trails to God knows where.

JEANNE OLDFIELD POTTER.

"SEVENTY-FIVE Impoverished Noblemen Apply for Job in N. Y. Night Club."—Headline. We hope the duke that washes our automobile doesn't see that; he might start off hitch-hiking to Broadway after that job. Oh, well, if he does, there's a couple of marquises, two princes, and nine lords who are waiting in line to get the auto washing job. And there's another man hanging around after the job who says he's a king. But we tried the king once and let him go, as we let several other kings go. Our experience with kings is that while they're fair auto washers they always want to be addressed as "Your Majesty," and, besides that, they're always stealing the soap and drinking up the gasoline.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FISHERMAN'S ERYSIPELAS.

PRESENTLY we will be hearing something of a new disease. It is a skin eruption, somewhat akin to erysipelas.

As a matter of fact it is not at all new. Men have had it for a long time, but there was not much use talking about it. It was never fatal. It always got well in two to four weeks. Why tell the doctors, since they knew nothing about it and what they prescribed had no effect?

Among fishermen it is known as fish poisoning. It is even older than that. The farmers know it as swine erysipelas. At one time, long ago, it was confused with their deadly enemy, hog cholera.

Dr. J. V. Klauder appears to have put it on a good working basis, so far as its relation to the human animal is concerned. It is due to a bacillus which is not of any disease producing family. This bacillus is at home in decomposing animal and vegetable matter. It is especially apt to be found in the slime found on fish skin, though by no means limited to that. The men who have most of it are professional fishermen. Amateur fishermen are less subject to it, and men who handle fish in markets and elsewhere removed from the base of supply are still less prone to develop it. It has been noted in butchers, men who work in meat packing establishments, cooks, veterinarians, meat inspectors, "a man who cleaned a rabbit," "a man who carried a possum by the tail."

A typical sequence is this: A fisherman was stuck by a fish spine. He got some of the fish slime in the wound. This erysipelatoid eruption followed.

After fish have been cleaned and skinned and their fins cut off they are less dangerous. Dead fish are less likely to infect than live ones. Well cleaned, ice packed fish are reasonably safe.

It can be contracted by butchers and cooks from handling meat, especially that from hogs with swine erysipelas.

The essential symptom of the disease is an eruption which usually starts around a wound on the hand and spreads for a certain distance over the hands and up the arms. As a rule this eruption looks like a mild erysipelas. Occasionally blisters form. In severe cases there is a swelling of a joint or two, and then acute rheumatic fever may be suspected. There is little or no fever or other constitutional disturbance.

In most cases the man affected lays up about a week or ten days; not that he is very sick, but to give his hands a chance to get well. The rule is that in three or four weeks the skin is clean and he goes back to his job.

The ordinary treatments for eczema and erysipelas are of no service. The man who lets nature take its course gets well about as quickly as the one who applies boric acid dressings, gauze, ointments, and other remedies. If any local application does any good it is heat and light. Dr. Klauder advises the use of a serum prepared from the bacillus of hog erysipelas, the cause of this disorder. Cases injected with this serum get well in less than half the time required by nature to cure.

FLEAS IN LAUNDRY.

Mrs. J. T. P. writes: My laundry is infested with fleas and a few have been carried into the house. Will you please tell me how to rid my place of them, as they bite my children and cause sores on their legs? I do not know if they are animal fleas or the kind that appear to be in a lot of gardens this year.

REPLY:

Flake naphthalene is the best flea remedy. It is dusted in socks and under garments. If a rug is suspected, beat it and dust heavily with this powder fleas will be driven from the room. It is a good dusting powder for dogs and cats. Fleas breed in dust and cracks. Scrubbing, cleaning, and sanitation are of great service in getting rid of them. They prefer cats, dogs, and rats over laundry.

TREATING BOILS.

D. M. writes: I would like to know how to get rid of boils. I am 16 years old. They are usually on my face and arms.

REPLY.

Have your urine examined for sugar. If diabetes is found, diet for that.

NOT UNHEALTHFUL.

Mrs. B. writes: Is it unhealthful to sleep in the same room with a canary which has asthma?

REPLY.

No. Occasionally some one gets a disease from a bird, but asthma is not on the list.

A BAD PRACTICE.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—Can't something be done to restrain the shoe store, baggage shop, and also the owner of the building, who lives in the rear part of the building where we live, from burning their refuse and garbage in the parkway between the curb and sidewalk? Our front steps is covered with burnt paper and we are compelled to keep our windows closed because of this practice. M. N.

Report is made that owner of property was notified to discontinue practice of burning refuse and garbage in parkway or failing to do so court action would be taken to enforce compliance. Assurance was given there will be no further cause for complaint. Location will be kept under observation.

BARBED WIRE PROHIBITED.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a law preventing a landlord from putting up a barbed wire fence in this city? There is a fence in our street about three feet high with barbed wire on it within easy reach of small children who pass on their way to school. The other day I saw a small child rip his hand on it. J. G.

A city ordinance prohibits barbed wire along the fine of any thoroughfare. Violations should be reported to the police.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SUIT NOT WARRANTED.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a person rents a garage and a door which cannot be repaired sees to make good can the mother who is eighteen, be held liable for the amount of damages, totaling $5.50? M. G.

In general, a tenant is obliged to return the premises in as good a condition as they were when received, but the amount involved seems too small to make court proceedings worth while.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 10, 1916.

NEWPORT, R. I.—The wholesale raid on foreign shipping near Nantucket lightship on Oct. 2 was the work of one submarine, according to reports of American naval officers. Rear Admiral Albert Gleaves, commanding the torpedo boat destroyer flotilla which did such remarkably speedy rescue work, said that the reports of all his officers agreed that, to the best of their observation, one raider only was concerned. This boat presumably was the German U-53, which called at Newport last Saturday. Today the raiding had ceased, at least for the moment. The known list of the victims of the U boat's Sunday exploits remains at six—four British and two neutral—notwithstanding reports from the Nantucket lightship that three other ships, the identity of which could not be learned, were sent to the bottom.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—Secretary of State Lansing, it was announced, will come here tomorrow for a conference with President Wilson concerning German submarine raids off the American coast. The announcement confirmed the impression gained here earlier in the day that the American government considered the attacks on vessels off the American coast by a German submarine as fraught with grave possibilities. At the same time it was made clear that there is nothing in the reports so far received to show that international law or the earlier promises of Germany have been violated.

PARIS.—The steamship Gallia, an auxiliary cruiser, carrying 2,000 Serbian and French soldiers, was torpedoed and sunk on Oct. 4 by a German submarine. Thirteen hundred soldiers and 62 men picked up by a French cruiser and landed in boats on the southern coast of Sardinia have been accounted for thus far.

LONDON.—Serbian troops in considerable force have crossed the Cerna river in Macedonia at two points and are advancing to the northward. They have captured the village of Skochivir, taking 100 Bulgars prisoner, dispatches from Athens and Paris say. In an official account of the Macedonian operations Berlin verifies the advance, admitting that the Serbians have forced a passage of the river and have obtained a foothold on the northern bank.

PETROGRAD.—The great battle in Volhynia, east of Vladimir-Vlynski, is continuing, the war office announced, and the Russians have succeeded at some places in entering the Teutonic lines. The positions taken have been consolidated. In the Brzezany region, southeast of Lemberg, the Austro-German forces assumed the offensive, but were stopped in their attacks by the Russian fire. An Austrian advanced trench in this sector was taken.

LONDON.—The official communication from British headquarters in France reads: "As a result of local operations we gained ground north of Stuff redoubt, inflicting serious losses on the enemy and taking more than 200 prisoners, including six officers. We successfully entered the enemy's trenches south of Arras. Southeast of Souchez a strong enemy party rushed our fronting our lines, but was immediately ejected with heavy casualties."

CHICAGO.—The Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which has been in session at the Olivet church, Adams street and Keeler avenue, adjourned with the reading of the appointments by Bishop Thomas Nicholson. Earlier in the day Bishop Nicholson warned the ministers that some of them would have to accept appointments at a decreased salary. He did this when he announced he had prepared a tentative schedule of the appointments and said the district superintendents might be free to discuss the matter with the ministers concerned.

A SURVIVOR OF THE GREAT FIRE.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—On the evening of the big Chicago fire, Oct. 9, 1871, I was in St. Paul's church, corner of Wabash and Van Buren street, at the services. When going home on the north side small sparks were flying in the air. Not thinking of fire we retired. At 2 o'clock in the morning a policeman rang our doorbell and told us to get up, as the city was burning, and to save ourselves. We carried some of our household goods to the lake shore to a spot that was called the Sands, but were driven to the mouth of the river and crossed over to the south side on the last trip of a tugboat. We walked down Michigan avenue to 22d street, took a street car, got off the car and went to friends on Lake avenue.

Is there any person that was at church at that time still in Chicago? I am 85 years old. My good wishes to any old Chicago fire sufferers of 1871.

MRS. HENRY S. SPALDING.

GARNERED IN WILMETTE.

Wilmette, Ill., Oct. 5.—When the gentleman whom The Tribune has so aptly termed "Postoffice Jack" insisted on a fine, new postoffice for every town, the members of the Wilmette Civic league voiced unanimous protest against building a postoffice in Wilmette. The chamber of commerce lodged a similar objection, and also the president and the board of trustees of the village.

Now, it seems, Wilmette, without any Democratic help, is going to have a $200,000 postoffice, just the same.

Congressman Chindblom is said to have stated that the money has been appropriated for the building of postoffices and Wilmette might just as well have it, because if one isn't built in Wilmette, where it is not needed, it will be built somewhere else where it is not needed.

It is said that the rent for present postoffice quarters is about $7,000 a year; the space is adequate and the location convenient. A $200,000 postoffice will probably cost about $20,000 a year for upkeep.

Assuming the figures are as stated above, it seems that Wilmette citizens will have another opportunity to object to unwise government expenditures. Let them set another example of objecting to the use of the pork barrel whether the expenditure is local or otherwise.

WHY THE MARKETS BROKE.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Inevitably, though contrary to prevalent expectations, President Hoover's Des Moines speech was followed by a sharp decline in prices of stocks, grains, and other commodities. Consider:

When Mr. Hoover came west he was no longer the odds-on favorite candidate for President, but was trailing Roosevelt, as indicated by the betting, the numerous straw polls, etc. Hoover, relying upon his record, had not thought it necessary to stump the country, but Roosevelt's clever speeches in western states had changed the picture.

Then, for the first time in this campaign, the nation heard President Hoover in a masterly presentation that included amazing facts hitherto undisclosed, convincingly warning voters of the nation's perils ahead should the Democratic program prevail, at the same time noting and demonstrating the vicious character of Democratic legislative action and efforts in the recent session of congress.

The country heard and believed. For the first time in this campaign holders of securities were shocked into a realization of the menace to business in the Democratic tariff tinkering and fiat money program. If Roosevelt is headed for the White House, why hold on to stocks, bonds, and wheat at present prices? Overboard with them! The wave of selling was the greatest possible testimonial of confidence in the soundness of President Hoover's analysis.

If the trend toward Roosevelt now has been reversed and if the crystallization of public sentiment, which usually comes in the final fortnight of a campaign, indicates President Hoover's re-election, yesterday's losses in stocks and commodities will be quickly erased and replaced by a sharp upturn in harmony with the improving business news. The country wants to hear former President Coolidge, who, in addition to his New York speech, is to speak in Chicago on Oct. 25, which may be news to you. Then watch the ticker tape!

PAUL V. PERRY.

THE HOOVER DIALECT.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Four years ago Al Smith lost the votes of hundreds of thousands of our nice people because he didn't pronounce the word "radio" to their liking. Last night I heard the man who defeated him mistreat the English language in such fashion that those same nice people who listened in must—if they were sincere in 1928—have suffered untold agonies. Here are a few examples: comparable, addrese, revenoo, solicitoode, opportoonity, gratitoode, hickry nuts, pursoo, reckuless, experence, however, institooshun, perductive, perdoose, mentain, pertect, pertective, amilerate, goverment, futher, of-ten, peraries, and benificent.

Of course, a candidate's pronunciation should not influence a voter in determining his qualifications for office. But then, neither should it have in 1928.

THE 73D CONGRESS.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Blaine was beaten by Chapple principally because Blaine is in. The same cause, to a less extent, gave Kohler the nomination. Henry Field defeated Brookhart for the same reason. If Chapple, Kohler, and Field had been ins and Blaine, La Follette and Brookhart outs, the results would have been directly opposite to what they were. This is a bad year for the ins.

You are hammering at the so-called radicals in congress. Wait until you hear from the 73d congress and you will have cause for pulling your hair. The men that you condemn will look like lambs brought up on a nursing bottle compared to some of the new blood. Grover Cleveland had to veto 363 bills passed by the congress elected in 1834. Roosevelt does not seem to possess the intestinal fortitude required to stem such a tide. Perhaps it will be better so. At times it would seem that it would accrue to the benefit of the country were the presidential office left vacant for a spell.

HARRY HANSEN.

AL SMITH'S MOTIVE.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—At a time like the present, when every one worth while is watching for the slightest opportunity to serve his country, I would hate to be the one to inject anything mercenary into the situation; but it does look to me as though the Happy Warrior might be planning another Bryan coup in case there is any future cabinet making.

KING'S MISTRESS OF CENTURY AGO EXCITES BERLIN

Coffin Secretly Taken to New Grave.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—Favorite and mistress of Frederick William II., whose life and reign she influenced profoundly, admired by Napoleon, who went out of his way to help her, "the German Mme. Pompadour" this week again was the talk of the German capital.

Her "peace in death" was broken, for a time at least, when the secret leaked out that her body had been removed from the Catholic St. Hedwig cathedral—in sight of the former imperial palace—to a small cemetery in the plebeian suburb, Reinickendorf, present day haven of communists.

Her Beauty "a Headache."

Recently the church was renovated. From its subterranean crypt, Berlin's only catacomb, 85 coffins were removed, among them the sarcophagus woman known to history as Countess Wilhelmine von Lichtenau. Under cover of night motor lorries were loaded with this grewsome freight which was taken to Reinickendorf and placed in a common grave—except for the countess' coffin which was placed separately in a chapel.

Born 1753 in Dessau, the daughter of a poor musician named Enk, she grew to one of the most beautiful women of the age. "Her beauty was so exquisite," said one writer, "that it gave one a headache to look at her."

King Is Smitten.

The Prussian king, nephew and successor of Frederick the Great, fell madly in love with her at first sight. Her breathtaking beauty was supplemented with keen wit, good taste and an avid mind which she improved by training.

The gallant king built her a charming pavilion in the park of his Charlottenburg castle; then a stately mansion on Unter den Linden—the "Dutch Palace" of the Hohenzollerns—with its own theater in which the countess reigned over Berlin's artistic life. A house in Potsdam, the later residence of the Hohenzollerns, was the king's next present.

The Fräulein Enk was raised to the rank of a countess. Two of her five children were given the titles of count and countess of Mark. Then, when the king became ill in 1796 she nursed him for weeks with devotion rarely shown by royal spouses. The king seemed to improve, doctors made the countess rest when she seemed on the verge of a breakdown.

Loses Her Protector.

The sound of soldiers marching into her bedroom told her that the king had died. Frederick William III., his successor, hated her. She was tried, charged with "misdirecting" the late king, and the royal court sentenced her to life imprisonment in Glogau fortress, Silesia. Gifts of the king and her queenly belongings were seized. Later she was pardoned, but exiled, fleeing to France.

At Saint Cloud she sought and was granted an interview by Napoleon. Struck by her beauty and charm he asked the Prussian court to rescind its ban. No one then could say "no" to Napoleon and the countess was permitted to return to Germany.

But the queenly days were no more. Friends who once craved a smile and dreaded a frown turned the cold shoulder. She died in 1820, lonely and forsaken. One last honor was conceded, a niche in the crypt of the Catholic cathedral, in sight of the imperial castle—the last concession of the Hohenzollerns to the mother of the children of Frederick William II. Now the Berlin clergy have denied her that.

MILITIA AT PANA AFTER ROW LAID TO MINE QUARREL

Pana, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A flareup between groups of coal miners who have been working in the Peabody mine at Kincaid and men said to live here and members of the Progressive Miners of America, at a dance here late last night, caused six auto loads of militiamen to be dispatched to Pana at 1 o'clock this morning. The men investigated an alleged attempted assault upon the Kincaid miners, two of whom were John Ward and John Costello.

The guardsmen found seventy-five men congregated near the dance hall and others assembled on the street. Ward had telephoned the militia. Costelle was assaulted, he claimed, by four men. The guardsmen cleared the streets and searched some of those congregated. Business men were forced back into their places of business at the points of bayonets, although many of the persons on the streets assailed the militia with epithets and boos.

There has been no mine trouble in Pana. This is the first time in thirty-three years the militia has been called here.

RETURNS HOME

MISS COLLETTE HALEY.

Streator, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Miss Colette Haley, 22 years old, a school teacher, who disappeared Sept. 7, allegedly the kidnaping victim of the Rev. William Courtney, 40, a Catholic priest of Alexis, Ill., was back home today. She returned last night from Chicago where she was met by members of her family.

Sheriff E. J. Welter of Ottawa learned of Miss Haley's return today and questioned her. She charged that Father Courtney kidnaped her from her school at the point of a gun, and took her successively to Chicago, Grand Rapids, and St. Louis.

TWO WITNESSES IN MURDER TRIAL FLEE FROM JAIL

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Cleo Drew and James Wofford, two prisoners held in the county jail here to testify for the state in the trial of two former prison guards for the murder of a young convict, escaped today.

Drew already had testified for the state against George Courson and Solomon Higginbotham, former officers at Sunbeam prison camp, where Arthur Maillefert of New Jersey, was found strangled to death in a sweat box, his feet in heavy stocks and a chain about his neck.

Wofford had not testified. He was serving 33 years for armed robbery in Dade county. Authorities said he formerly lived at Louisville, Ky.

Drew was serving fifteen years for breaking and entering in Seminole county.

Night jailer Sam Cahoon said two other men in the same cell, who were awaiting trial, were preparing to escape when he discovered the delivery.

$23,000,000 DUE ON CITY BONDS IN 3 MONTHS

When the finance committee of the city council meets in special session today its members will be confronted with the problem of selling city and board of education tax anticipation warrants not only to pay past due salaries but also to meet bond principal and interest payments due on Jan. 1.

The session of the committee on Friday, in which the aldermen agreed among themselves that the city can no longer finance school board pay rolls through sales of city warrants, adjourned just as Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controller, began an explanation of the bond principal and interest payments that must be met within less than three months.

The obligations of the city and the school board that mature on Jan. 1 and Feb. 1, 1933, total $23,489,190.

"The aldermen," said City Controller Szymczak, "should decide now upon a method of financing these bond principal and interest payments so that the cash will be available on the maturity dates to avoid a default."

WILL CO. BOARD VOTES TODAY ON ECONOMY PLAN

Supervisors of Will county will hold a special meeting in the Joliet court house today to reconsider a petition to allow the voters to ballot on abolishing the board of supervisors as an economy measure. The petition, signed by 10,931 voters, asked that the county be allowed to vote on Nov. 8 on a proposition to centralize the county and township governments under three county commissioners.

The measure was adopted at a stormy meeting of the board on Sept. 14. William W. Mollan, secretary of the Joliet Real Estate board, presented the petition and held that a switch to the commission form would cut the per capita cost of government in half. However, the supervisors voted to reconsider their vote endorsing the validity of the petition and retained Attorney Joseph Kelg to examine it. The attorney later reported the discovery of 1,700 fraudulent signatures, which brought the number of signers below the necessary one-fifth of the county voters.

The special meeting was called for today after champions of the petition had asserted that they had been deprived of the right to decide the government question at the polls.

Both Kane and DuPage counties recently rejected like petitions. The Kane county supervisors voted down the proposition on the grounds that the petition, filed on Sept. 19, should have been presented at the regular board meeting five days before.

FALL FROM BED IS FATAL.

JAPAN'S TROOPS SEEK RELEASE OF CAPTIVE BRITONS

NEWCHWANG, Manchuria, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A fresh effort to rescue Mrs. Kenneth Pawley and Charles Corkran, British citizens who were captured by bandits and held for ransom on Sept. 7, was made by Japanese authorities today.

A Japanese army captain and a detail of 30 men left for Panshan under orders to open direct negotiations with the bandits and to coöperate with the British authorities.

Go-betweens have brought several letters from Mrs. Pawley and her companions asserting that the bandits plan to kill them unless heavy ransom is paid.

From the Counting Stones of the Romans Came Our Word
CALCULATE

The ancient Romans had no adding machines. Few could even read or write. So their counting and reckoning was done with the aid of little stones used as counters. The Latin word for the pebble used in this way was calculus, derived from calx meaning "limestone." From calculus was developed the verb calculare, "to calculate," and this is the immediate origin of our word calculate.
The branch of mathematics which we call calculus was named directly from the little counting stone of ancient Rome.
Every day you use hundreds of words whose origins are as interesting and surprising as this. You will find their fascinating stories in
WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
The "Supreme Authority"—The Merriam-Webster

BROKER
Originally a Vender of Wine
Broker is derived from the old French brequier or brokier, a dialectal form of brocher, "one who taps a cask in order to draw the liquor." Thus, the broker was in the first place a retail vender of wine, hence in general, a middleman, an agent.

NEIGHBOR
Once Meant a Near-by Farmer
In Anglo-Saxon neah meant "nigh," "near," and gebur meant "dweller," "farmer." These two words were combined into neahgebur, meaning, literally, "a near-by farmer." The word appears in modern English as neighbor, with a meaning that has changed with the evolution of civilization.

The coupon below will bring you free an illustrated booklet of word-origin stories. Not only do these stories make the most interesting reading, but to know them will give you an effectiveness in speaking and writing that can come in no other way.
The Merriam-Webster gives you the whole word power of the English language. In its 3,000 pages there are 437,000 entries, including thousands of new words; 12,000 biographical entries; 32,000 geographical subjects; 100 valuable tables; over 6,000 illustrations.
The Wealth of Information covered in the encyclopedic treatment of words in the Merriam-Webster is really amazing. For example, the word coin is defined in twelve lines. But following this definition are four columns of information giving the coins of the world, their names, the metal, the native equivalent, and their value in U. S. and British money. In addition, further information is given under the name of each of the important coins, frequently with an illustration. And besides all this there are two full pages in color illustrating the coins of the world. Architecture is another example. Under this word there is a full page showing historical styles with examples and structural features and this is supplemented with a very large variety of pictures. There are in addition two full-page plates of Architectural Statues and Monuments and Notable Examples of American Architecture.

Constipation is Serious
Copyright, 1932, Standard Brands Incorporated
DR. JULIUS STERNBERG, the noted clinic head, explains danger of constipation by means of X-rays. Fresh yeast "tones up" sluggish intestines, he states.

"You can correct this trouble"... says Vienna's noted DR. STERNBERG!

"WHY do I tire so easily?" "Why do I have so many headaches?" "What causes these fearful dizzy spells?"
Serious questions, these ... affecting your whole future health. Yet in most cases the reason for such troubles is well known!
"The poisons formed by constipation," says the great Vienna surgeon, Dr. Sternberg, "seep into the blood . . . and produce grave digestive disturbances, headaches...nervousness, depression ... Constipation may cause ... colitis, hemorrhoids (piles) ... appendicitis," he explains.
Yet constipation, he adds, can be corrected—"not by cathartics and laxative drugs, which . . . irritate the mucous membranes; but by a simple, natural means—fresh yeast—which will soften the intestinal contents and stimulate normal... action."
Eaten regularly, three cakes a day, Fleischmann's Yeast has a truly remarkable effect in cases of constipation.

Dr. Fritz Huxmann, 84 years old, 2832 Burling street, a retired dentist, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at Diversey parkway and Sheridan road. He died a few hours later in the Columbus Memorial hospital and Lincoln park police started a search for Thomas Lantry, 4215 Sheridan road, driver of the car which struck him. Lantry had been permitted to leave the hospital after the accident, when it was first thought that Dr. Huxmann was not seriously hurt.

Dr. Huxmann came to Chicago from Germany in 1862. He once conducted the German-American Dental college at 220 Wisconsin street and for years was active in a number of German American societies. He is survived by three sons, Fritz Jr., Paul, and Richard.

John Rogus, 21 years old, of 825 North Kolin avenue and George Tomarch, 17, of 541 North Harding avenue took him to St. Anne's hospital. Questioned by police, they admitted that with Landish and two other boys they had stolen the car a few minutes before the accident. They said the other boys were Stanley Rogus, 17, a brother of John, and Edward Frank, 18, of 534 North Harding avenue. The stolen car belonged to Frederick La Jeuneffa of Milwaukee.

The deaths of Dr. Huxmann, the boy, and three other persons increased the Cook county motor toll to 878 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Mrs. Rosa Eitler, 58 years old, 1928 Bissell street. Died in St. Joseph's hospital of injuries suffered on Sept. 12 when she was struck by an automobile in front of 849 Center street.

Roy Jones, 32 years old, 5746 Cottage Grove avenue, a Negro. Died in the county hospital. He was brushed off the running board of an automobile Saturday.

Lee Junkins, 62 years old, 4733 St. Lawrence avenue, a Negro. Died in the Chicago hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when an automobile which had collided with another car plunged on to the sidewalk and struck him at 46th street and St. Lawrence avenue.

GENERAL LINKED WITH KILLING OF SERB KING DIES

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Gen. Milan Milovanovic, who for a while during the world war was chief of the general staff and secretary of the secret organization "Unity or Death," and whose name was linked with the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga in 1903, died here today. He was 57 years old.

King Alexander Obrenovich ruled Serbia from 1893 until his death. While Alexander's father was at Carlsbad making arrangements to obtain the hand of a German princess for his son in 1900 the king announced his engagement to Mme. Draga Mashin, a widow and former lady in waiting to Queen Natalie.

The father, who had abdicated in favor of Alexander, gave up his post as commander in chief of the Serbian army and a crisis developed. King Alexander introduced a liberal constitution for Serbia, but suspended it long enough to perform monarchial functions in March, 1903. It was feared that the new queen's brother might be proclaimed heir to the throne. A military conspiracy was organized to place Peter Karagjorgjvic on the throne. The conspirators gained access to the palace and murdered the king and queen on June 11, 1903.

Kill that COLD before it takes root!

Danger Lies in Letting a Cold Settle in the System!

Get at It Quick, from the Inside!

Never neglect a cold. Even a "slight" cold may be the start of something serious. Treat a cold quickly and treat it thoroughly. Don't fool yourself with half-way measures. A half-cured cold is a cold never cured.

A cold calls for a COLD remedy! Preparations good for half a dozen things besides cold can't be as effective as a cold calls for. Many popular remedies often only make the cold worse because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold calls for internal treatment. A cold is an internal infection and only internal medication will reach it. Local, or external applications are only surface treatments and can't reach the root of the trouble or prevent the infection from spreading within the system.

The 4 Things Necessary

Ask your doctor and he will tell you, the wisest thing you can do when you feel a cold or grippe coming on is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This is the treatment a cold calls for. It is direct, internal and complete. It does the several things necessary. First of all, it opens the bowels, a vital step in expelling a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies it against further attack.

Relief with Comfort!

Grove's Laxative Bromo-Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It is non-narcotic and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate, or make the head ring or swim. Thousands yearly depend on Grove's Laxative Bomo Quinine as their protection in all cases of colds and grippe. Thousands tell us that their doctors frankly admit they could write no better prescription.

Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine in convenient, pocket size boxes, cellophane wrapped. Taken promptly a few Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets will usually expel a cold overnight and thus prevent the infection from spreading within the system and becoming dangerous.

Life in Rome of Early Decay Told in Book

Historian Josephus Hero of Good Story.

"Josephus," by Lion Feuchtwanger. [Viking.] Published Oct. 7.

LION FEUCHTWANGER, on the publication of "Power" became almost overnight one of the most talked of historical novelists in contemporary literature. Following "Power," a novel set against the background of 18th century Wurttemberg, came "The Ugly Duchess," a vivid picture of medieval times, and finally "Success," Herr Feuchtwanger's first modern novel.

LION FEUCHTWANGER.

In "Josephus" the author has gone back to the time of Nero and Vespasian, to the Rome that was slowly being undermined by its lavishness and lasciviousness, though its outward magnificence and supremity were as yet undisputed. Nevertheless the faint oder of decay hung over the city.

Josephus, one of the most distinguished of Roman historians, was, according to the author, a precocious and brilliant student of the law and a high priest of Jerusalem. When still a young man [he was born in 37 A. D.] Josephus went to Rome on behalf of three Jewish priests who were his friends and who had been unlawfully imprisoned in Rome. He made friends with a Jewish actor who was a favorite with Nero. This actor obtained an audience with Poppæa, the empress, and introduced his young friend. Poppæa granted the pardon for the three incarcerated priests and with this success began the great drama of Josephus' adult life.

Before returning to Jerusalem he wrote a book that attracted the attention of literary Rome, and in Jerusalem he was looked on with admiration and awe for the courageous part he had played in the release of the three prisoners. He joined the fanatical party of the Avengers of Israel and resisted the subjugation of Judea by the Romans. He was sent to Galilee to persuade the inhabitants of that province that a peaceful allegiance to Rome was the best course. But Josephus acted contrary to all that was expected of him.

Later he wrote a book trying to prove his innocence in encouraging the Jews to rise against Rome, but it was fairly obvious, as the author makes plain, that if he were not primarily responsible for the uprising that ended in slaughter he at least did nothing to prevent it, and closed his eyes to all the insolent wild schemes that were carried through.

After his capture by Vespasian he bowed his head in a willing and almost inexplicable subservience to Rome, attaching himself first to Vespasian as a slave and then to Vespasian's son, Titus, in the company of whom he witnessed the burning of Jerusalem. He became a Roman citizen for the sake of a lovely Egyptian girl whom he married and subsequently left. Back in Rome the reader leaves the curious, noble, fanatic, talented and unscrupulous Josephus preparing to write his history of the war against Judea.

The character of Josephus, drawn from documents of the day and largely, it seems, from the hero's own writings, remains, even after 504 pages, an enigma. The reader will remember Josephus more for his paradoxes and contradictions than for his consistencies. From time to time the reader receives the impression that the author is trying as hard to justify the character of the hero as the hero did himself over 1,800 years ago. But here he is as nearly flesh and blood as fiction can ever make human beings, weak and strong, noble and mean, loyal and disloyal. He was a Jew in the finest sense of the word, but he also grew into a citizen of the world, which excluded the desire to be only a Jew. He was a politician, a great historian, and a fascinating personality who kept within himself, whether or not outwardly, the flame of his faith.

The writing of this book, even in translation, has austerity, dignity, vividness, all based on a true and carefully studied interpretation of the times. There is never any cheapness, nor is there lushness in the description of the age. The impression of deep and honest scholarship lingers longer than any other impression. The battles, the contemporary personalities, the life of the imperial courts and of the lowly man, the saint and the sinner, the great glamorous triumphal processions, the game of politics, played shrewdly and unscrupulously—all this data are transcribed with power, with memorable and almost unsurpassed understanding, without any facile psychology that characterizes so many modern fictional histories, and with a literary and historical genius that makes a past age live as significantly and really for a few hours as our own present age.

"Josephus" is the Literary Guild's choice for October. It will increase Herr Feuchtwanger's reputation as outstanding and reliable among present day historical novelists. M. D.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932, by Inter-Syndicate Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE INSPECTOR GETS IT.

"O, God, how terrible — how terrible!" moaned the girl as Fordney held a glass of water to her lips. Inspector Kelley was more concerned about the man seated at the desk—head resting on outstretched arms—blood still oozing from right temple—than he was about the girl. Just another dame to him.

"Who are you?" he demanded, examining a recently fired revolver.

"Margola Field."

"Well?"

"I just returned from Europe today and as I had seen Mr. Cargo's wife there I came here to tell him about it. I found him very despondent over his lack of success as a portrait painter."

"So he killed himself, eh?"

"Yes . . . that combined with the news of his wife's unfaithfulness . . . was too much."

At the inspector's disgusted look she added: "You needn't blame me. He showed me a note to her in which he threatened suicide! I thought I had dissuaded him, but when I reached the door on leaving, he called to me and as I turned he whipped a revolver out of his pocket and shot himself. After I phoned the police I must have fainted."

"Found two bullets in his left coat pocket and take a look at the disorder on the desk, Fordney. The note was clutched in his left hand . . . BUT . . . he shot him . . . Say, you!" turning abruptly to the girl. "What do you take me for! Suicide! Come along," bellowed Kelley.

The professor smiled. She had almost "taken in" his friend.

WHY WAS THE GIRL DETAINED?

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

For real comfort in the kitchen a little garbage pail which swings or pulls out from the kitchen sink is "it." No more stooping or bending over a low pail. If one hasn't the newest type of sink, equipped with such a feature, there are separate pails which can be easily installed. Pull out pails they are, of aluminum or metal, attachable to pipes under the sink. Have them attached at the height which suits you. Consisting of an outer container and an inner pail, they are easily cleaned.

Romance Gets Play in Latest Dress Fashions

Newest Models Go Back to Grandma's Day.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

WILY old politicians, big brawny football players and the wandering male about the town are in for some grand surprises this fall.

Romance fashions have returned . . . and how the modern gals have welcomed the lovely old revivals . . . the models that snared and charmed many a vacillating swain long ago when grandmother was going about breaking hearts and practically ruling the world without the frenzied fuss and sputtering her great-grandchild seems to decide is inevitable.

If you wear the newest fashions this season you'll look like a very charming lady, from the tip of your bewitching small hat that shadows your face with the shallowest and straightest of brims and sort of pauses on your curls like a bird because of the perky bows, feathered wings and quills, to the quaint short capes of fur and fabric and the slender waist lines accentuated with long flowing skirts and huge leg o' mutton sleeves.

Even the colors are romantic—quantities of dove gray costumes that are almost beyond description are hanging about the smartest shops awaiting the appreciative gasps of the rapturous shoppers. Lovely soft gray frocks of thin, sheer wool for street, some trimmed in 1890 splendor, in gray krimmer, others with yards and yards of soft gray squirrel bands and others with contrasts of brown fur and buttons and braid.

Gray coats with luxurious capes of fur, and others with dashing Russian effects of gray kidskin and Persian lamb are enormously chic and distinctive for something different in coat styles.

Another glory from the past is fringe . . . we can revel in literally yards, even miles of this fascinating stuff, for you see some of the smartest and newest of evening gowns trimmed with deep swinging silk fringe in harmonizing or contrasting color.

One shop that really does things for small shoppers . . . that is, features small sizes that are designed with all the distinction and artistry of the well stocked sixteens, eighteens and twenties . . . has a lamb of a dancing dress made of two shades of red, wine and ruby . . . the bodice of the dress is trimmed with fringe in the dark color, instead of a matching cape.

This dress covers the shoulders a bit differently . . . two square 'kerchiefs, one in wine, the other in ruby are bound with long dripping fringe around each square. Then one corner of the wine red 'kerchief is tied in a double knot to a corner of the ruby red square, and there it is, the newest brain child of a thinking designer.

All gray costume collectors who have been hunting for matching gray handbags, will find some stunning new models that will make them beam with pleased discovery.

Gorgeous shades of pearl gray, dove gray and pumice gray in all sorts of fabrics, leathers and subtle combinations are now available.

Knockout rough woolen fabrics fashion some new arrivals that contrast this roughness with frosted silver clasps, dark gray crystal decorative fastening devices and bone frames and clasps.

Depression charts must have been weeks ago, for the shops have been crowded with flocks of buying shoppers and filled with the most unusual clothes and costume accessories that clothes hungry females have seen in many a long month.

Good Morning!

Here's a film aimed at the heart of the polo fan! For the speedy sport of polo holds prominent place in the story's development.

It's a heap better for a picture to start slowly and speed up to a satisfactory finish than to begin with lots and end with little. "This Sporting Age," a bit torpid at first, warms up after a reel or so, captures your interest and holds it from that time on.

This movie provides Jack Holt with a rôle that differs from his usual line of parts. Customarily, you know, he's the chap the girls jilt for Ralph Graves, the ill starred husband, mayhap, or the luckless "other man." Here he impersonates a western army post captain, champion polo player of that part of the country.

Capt. Steele has a daughter, Mickey, to whom he is devoted, and she, in turn, idolizes "Skipper," as she calls her dad. "Skipper" wants to send Mickey to an eastern finishing school. Mickey [she manages the family exchequer] has other ideas and spends the school funds for one Grey Ghost, a polo horse she knows her dad yearns for with a mighty yearn. . . .

Steele's remarkable playing causes him to be sought out to play with the ritzy Long Island Seabrook Polo club team in a coming international match. The youth who does the seeking has two reasons for desiring Steele's presence in the east. Mickey is the other one.

Well—Steele takes furlough and goes east. Fate frowns . . . Unexpected clouds of tragedy gather and break . . . Cheerup—there's a sunshiny ending!

"This Sporting Age" boasts some magnificent horses and some splendid riding. Mr. Holt, always a likable and reliable actor, sure knows how to sit in a saddle! Evalyn Knapp plays his daughter with sincerity and charm. It's nice to see the child about again! She was laid up for such a long time with that broken hip. J. Farrell MacDonald is lovable as an old Irish orderly. Hardie Albright pleases in the romantic male lead and Walter Byron is snaky as the villain.

The production is pretty well directed, and will be accepted by most fans as not great—but good.

See you tomorrow.

Three Day Liquid Diet Will Make Excess Weight Vanish

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Speaking of short fasts to reduce those of six, eight or ten extra pounds that have crowded up on you:

The short fasts, usually of liquid diet solely, are undeniably reducing. They're good to take if one is the kind who goes up and down in weight and waist measurements. But for longer than a three day period, or a week at most, they should not be undertaken unless they are done under medical supervision.

A much overweight person, one with from twenty to fifty pounds surplus, should by all means reduce slowly, which would exclude the fasting process except for a three day abstinence that almost any one can undertake who is not afflicted with some constitutional disorder. The trouble is, however, that most obese patients often develop through their obesity some internal disorder. It may be mild, it may be serious, but better let the physician determine.

There have been historical cases of men living on water for forty days, but there is always the danger that fasting, while reducing the weight, may produce problems more serious than the overweight.

But women of normal health can undertake a fasting spree over a limited period without harm. And skipping a meal a day never hurt anybody.

These liquid fasts, when properly directed, correct intestinal intoxication with which most overweight persons are afflicted. They facilitate a thorough cleansing of the system. Much water should be drunk during any fast. One glass every other hour is not too much for the purpose you have in mind.

During the first day or two the head feels heavy or empty. The breath is apt to become offensive, the tongue thickly coated. But about the third day a new feeling of well being is experienced. You are alert mentally and physically and this in itself is something to get after a probably long overweight period of dullness and slothfulness.

Reception of Historical Society Gives Preview of New Building

Beautiful Structure and Historic Treasures Are Atmosphere for Festive Party of Pioneer Families.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH the reception which the trustees of the Chicago Historical society gave yesterday afternoon in the handsome new Georgian Colonial building in Lincoln park was simple, informal, and lacking in most of the adornments that dress up the average affair, the guests who filed past the receiving line from 3 until close to 6 o'clock found themselves at one of the most festive and intriguing parties ever given in Chicago.

The committee in charge refrained from the use of the floral decorations which ordinarily lend atmosphere to the opening of a new building. There was atmosphere enough in the beautiful structure itself and in the wealth of historic treasures it houses.

The only flowers in evidence were in the bouquet which Mrs. Charles B. Pike, wife of the president of the society, held. The bouquet, which was sent to Mrs. Pike by Mrs. Robert G. McGann, was a prim old fashioned one of tightly wedged tea roses, sweet peas, and carnations against a round paper fringe—just the sort of floral offering which an early Chicago belle would have loved.

Others in Receiving Line.

Mr. and Mrs. Pike headed the receiving line at the entrance to the foyer, which is a reproduction of Independence hall in Philadelphia. Assisting them at intervals were Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey. Mrs. Pike wore a beige tunic dress and matching hat; Mrs. Palmer wore a black satin afternoon dress and a black turban with a twisted band of red, and Mrs. Dewey was in brown with a sable scarf.

The guests wandered through the rooms hunting former possessions of their ancestors, tracing families down through history, and viewing some of their own gifts to the Historical society.

George Henry High, just back from a summer in the east, was explaining to friends in the Victorian room that the rosewood furniture, considered to be one of the most perfect examples of its kind in existence, had been given by his wife. Originally the property of Mrs. High's grandmother, Mrs. Tuthill King, the lovely mellowed old pieces were brought to Chicago by boat in 1834, and miraculously survived the Chicago fire.

Gifts of Prince in Same Room.

On the mantel in the same room is a gold and bronze clock and a pair of candelabra given to the late Dr. Charles C. Spencer by King Edward VII., then prince of Wales, and inscribed "In memory of three very pleasant days on the western plains." They were recently given to the society by Dr. Spencer's daughter, Mrs. Eliphalet W. Cramer.

The guests, many of whose families have been affiliated with Chicago since the days of its early youth, included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who returned a few days ago from their summer stay in California; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mr. and Mrs Albert Blake Dick, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Scott S. Durand, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, whose collection of furniture and objects of early pioneer days is assembled in the Early Pioneer room; Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Nancy Taylor, Col. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze, Mrs. Dexter Fairbank, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Botsford Young.

At a luncheon on Saturday for about thirty young people Mrs. Walter Clyde Jones of Evanston announced the engagement of her daughter, Helen Gwendolyn, to Gair Tourtellot Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gair Tourtellot of Evanston. Miss Jones was graduated from Smith college in 1927 and her fiancé was a member of the Dartmouth class of 1926. The wedding probably will not take place until next June.

Miss Hallinan Becomes Bride.

A charming Saturday afternoon wedding was that of Miss Frances Hallinan, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Redfield Hallinan, to Donald Hiard MacGuineas, son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacGuineas of Oak Park. Dr. Edward Scribner Ames performed the ceremony which took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Willer-Petersen, Windy Pines, The Grove, Ill.

The bride was given away by her cousin, Robert Redfield Jr., whose small son, Robert Redfield III., attired in a green page boy's suit, was ring bearer. Little Lisa Redfield scattered rose petals in the path of the bridal party. Mrs. Bradford Van Dusen and Miss Esther Fisher, bridesmaids, in green taffeta, and Miss Avis Kennicott, maid of honor, in apricot taffeta, carried arm bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums and pernet roses. Martin Hayes was best man.

The bride's gown was trailing white satin and her long veil was bound with orange blossoms. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. MacGuineas, both of whom are recent graudates of the University of Chicago, will reside at 643 Roscoe street.

The second day's performance of the Indian Hill Riding club horse show went on as scheduled yesterday in spite of the rain. The entire program was given and a large crowd of spectators, protected from the weather by raincoats, umbrellas, and heavy sports clothes, watched the proceedings from parking spaces and from the rail.

The Indian Hill Challenge cup for the best pair of horses owned by a member was awarded to William B. McIlvaine Jr. and the Longmeadow Hunt cup for the best hunter went to Ira C. Darling.

One of the most applauded of the children's exhibitions on Saturday morning was the parent and child class, in which Frank W. Ketcham and his daughter Joan Ketcham won first prize; Clark J. Lawrence and his stepdaughter, Nancy Blaine, second honors; and Porter Fox and Nancy Fox, third.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

SHADOWED.

Rachel rejoined Neil with a distressed announcement. Natasha was at that moment packing her bag to go and stay at the inn.

"Nothing will dissuade her. She's got some stupid notion that if she's dragged into any unpleasantness over this affair it will make it hard for Giles. Utter nonsense, of course, but what am I to do?"

Much as he shared her dislike of the arrangement, he knew very well how hopeless it was to shake the girl's determination.

"I suppose you'll have to let her go, but I shouldn't worry. After all, the George is nearby—you can see her in the morning, when I daresay she'll take a more sensible view of things. I'll go across with her to see she's made comfortable—if she'll let me."

They eyed each other uncomfortably, but before either could add anything Natasha appeared, wearing her coat and hat. With swift contrition she put her arms about her friend and pressed her cheek against the dark hair.

"Good night, darling. I'm sorry to have made so much trouble for you. Please tell your brother how ashamed I am of myself."

In spite of a mute protest on her part, Neil took her bag and accompanied her over to the inn. The fat manageress, drawn from conversation with the barman and two commercial travelers, stared at them with a forbidding mien.

Picking it up and handling it lingeringly, he was conscious of a scarcely known emotion permeating his entire being.

"Miss Andreyev will want a fire," ordered Neil. "And send up two whiskys and sodas right away. Sandwiches, too," he added, remembering that neither of them had eaten any dinner.

"Pretty grim," commented Neil with a look round at the wallpaper, splashed with brown cauliflowers, but Natasha merely gave an indifferent shrug and sinking on to the bed began mechanically to take her belongings from her suitcase. Once again she showed a groping effort to muster her faculties, possibly for some immediate purpose, though what was in her mind he could not imagine.

As he poked the smoky fire into a blaze, one of her slippers tumbled near him—a green morocco mule, shabby and worn. Picking it up and handling it lingeringly he was conscious of a scarcely known emotion permeating his entire being. Tenderness? Perhaps. At all events it was something vastly different from the turbulent desires which till recently had raged within. Many times during the past weeks he had dwelt on the pleasure it would have given him to see her arrayed in beautiful clothing. Now, quite suddenly, what he wanted more than anything else was to undress her very gently, put her to bed, and watch beside her while she slept. Strange that till this morning he had never felt like that towards any woman. Even the fact that she cared nothing for him only increased his longing to minister and comfort.

When the sandwiches arrived, he urged her to eat, but plainly she could not. However, she managed to sip a little of the whisky, and began to lose some of her deadly pallor. With the thick tumbler tightly gripped in her hand she made him tell her again all he knew about her aunt's murder, listening to his recital of details with a fixed, bewildered stare.

"It's as though some ghastly trick had been played on us," she whispered. "To think that after all my suspicions against the Tilburys this should happen, out of a clear sky, and—if what you say is true—not have any connection with either of them!"

"Yes—I'm afraid it's useless to suppose they had a hand in it. There's no doubt that Tilbury was laid up all that evening with a severe attack of some kind. You can see for yourself how genuinely ill he's been. Besides, what could they hope to gain? I daresay they're both feeling pretty sick over losing a good living."

"And yet there were times when . . . But why go over all that now? It only goes to show how little one can see into the future. Who would have thought . . . Robbery! Do you really think it was robbery? And what took her to Bristol?"

"She may have been conveyed there after she was murdered. You see, nothing definite is known, except that she was put into the ditch after nine o'clock on Friday evening. That, of course, is why it's so important to get a clear line on your movements, for you mustn't forget you had the car and could do as you liked with it. If you could give me even a partial account, I'd go to London tomorrow to check it up."

He put forward the suggestion tentatively, quite expecting another refusal. He was surprised, therefore, when she nodded assent.

"I'll do my best, though I warn you it may not be much better than my first attempt. Not now, though. If you'll come round after breakfast when I've had some rest, I'll furnish you with a few more facts."

"That will do perfectly—but there is just one thing I haven't yet mentioned, something no one but me seems to have noticed. You know the little key your aunt wore around her neck? Well, it's gone."

She looked at him sharply. "Key? What key?"

"It belonged to the bag she lost. I thought you knew about it."

Although she shook her head, he fancied she had grown a shade whiter again. Before he could pursue the topic, however, the church clock struck ten. Instantly she sat down her glass and jumped to her feet.

"Better leave me now," she said rather hurriedly. "Thanks for looking after me—and tell Rachel not to worry."

On the stairs he paused to listen to the voices mounting from below. The blonde manageress was holding forth to the select company before mentioned on the subject of the new guest.

"Cool as cool, like as I'm telling you—with her own flesh and blood lying not twenty miles from here, battered and butchered! That's the sort she is. Shouldn't wonder if the vicar's turned her out—a good job, too!—but I can't say as I relish her coming to us. What would you 'a' done? Think the police'll be down on us?"

A man drawled: "And what if they do arrest her? Good for business, if you ask me. You mark my words, there's going to be some excitement in this dead-alive hole. Nothing like a good murder to put a place on the map."

How, in God's name, had this hideous rumor got started? For an instant Neil's heart stood still, and the next he was so enraged that he had difficulty restraining himself from plunging into the gossipers' midst and laying them out one after the other. When he did descend the talk ceased pointedly.

Partly to give himself time to calm down, and more because of an indefinite uneasiness caused by his abrupt dismissal, he turned into the dark church yard, resolving to keep his eyes on the twin rectangles of light which marked the room Natasha occupied. When their milky radiance blacked out he would go in, but not before.

Five minutes passed. He was about to light a second cigaret when something made him extinguish the match and get quickly into the shadow of the largest yew tree. In the name of all that was damnable, what did this mean? He had just seen Natasha, still in her outer attire, issue from the door opposite and walk with rapid steps towards the top of the street!

Incapable of reasoned thought, he had but one impelling desire—to follow, find out her coming move. From yew to yew he dodged till, crouching behind the furthermost wall, he saw her standing at the deserted crossing, eyes fixed expectantly on the Bath road. Waiting—but for what?

At last his vigil was rewarded. A ramshackle car approached, slowed, halted beside her. The door opened, she stepped on to the running board. Was she going to get in? Apparently not. He saw her holding a brief converse with some one unseen, then a man's arm went round her in a swift embrace. Ten seconds more, and the car rattled off, leaving a lonely figure to gaze after its vanishing tail light.

Parents Can Do Their Part in Child's Studies

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

This subject of homework has a way of spreading itself out. Here we are on it again today. But if you could see the power it has to upset homes you wouldn't wonder, especially as that is frankly described in some of my mail. Such scenes!

First, there's the stumbling block of "But my teacher doesn't do it that way," which usually results in some sort of emotion on the part of the parents who are helping. Sometimes they insist their way is right, or argue about it. Sometimes they get annoyed and say, "Well, let her teach you then, if she knows so much more than I do."

Then, there's often lack of patience, and family crankiness. Also, there's irritation as for example, when a child can't understand an explanation immediately. Sometimes too, discussions will arise between several members of the family about the lesson. Even real temper or anger will result. And the poor child, who is only too anxious to get her homework done and get it right, is all worked up or gets to feel stupid—and so less and less able to think and do the lessons assigned.

Often the homework hour ends with a child wrought up and miserable—perhaps even in tears—and the whole family in a turmoil.

What is the answer? Well, first and last and all the time, regardless of whether you can help with the actual arithmetic or grammar or history, you can at least behave like a responsible person. That is, you can be calm and good natured and reasonable. You're the senior member of the household; you're the captain of the ship. It's up to you to determine the atmosphere that is going to prevail during the homework hour. Otherwise how can you expect your children to accomplish what they have to do, especially if it is beset with difficulties?

If we want to be the arbiter of our children's fate, so to speak, surely it is up to us to act like mature human beings.

the Junior league, who are running the second hand clothes sale to be held on Thursday, Oct. 20, have not found a store suitable for the sale yet, for they must have plenty of doors, having found that two aren't enough for the crowds that throng to the sales each spring and fall.

Mrs. Roger White, the business manager, is scouring the neighborhood where they want to hold the sale and she hopes to locate a place downtown, between Madison street and the river, that will have enough entrances and exits to accommodate the hundreds who will want to buy the clothes.

This season's collections are especially nice, the girls say, and include some of the prettiest of last year's debut dresses.

Mrs. Coleman Helps Benefit.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, who has been president of the Woman's Aid society of Passavant hospital for 25 years, has almost entirely recovered from the serious illness which caused her retirement from active social leadership a few years ago and is able to lend energetic assistance to the committees working for the Lawrence Tibbett concert to be given on Nov. 6 at Orchestra hall for the benefit of the Passavant free bed fund.

The Women's aid members have opened an office in the Congress hotel for the sale of tickets and are doing a thriving business. All of the boxes have been sold and additional demand for boxes may make it necessary to construct some on the stage. Mrs. Laurance Armour is to be hostess at a luncheon tomorrow at the Casino for the press and publicity committee, which is headed by Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum.

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, who goes early each spring to her summer estate in the Berkshires, has closed her house at Pittsfield, Mass., and gone to Rumford Falls, Me., for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Kimball and Mrs. Charles Abbott before returning to her Chicago residence at 1100 Lake Shore drive for the winter.

Mrs. Frederick T. West of 232 East Walton place is closing Court Hill, her Pittsfield residence, and will return to Chicago next week after a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Shepard, at Geneva, N. Y.

Mrs. Linn to Give Luncheon.

Mrs. Howard Linn will give a luncheon today at the Casino for members of the Olivet institute benefit committee for the opening performance of "When Chicago Was Young," to be given on Nov. 7 at the Goodman theater.

The committee's call for the loan of costumes worn by early generations of Chicago's pioneer families has brought in several exquisite gowns with bustles, petticoats, and long lace fringed pantalettes. Many of these are too fragile to be worn after having reposed in tissue paper for so many years, so copies will be made for the play and the originals will be placed in the lobby for exhibition.

Miss Lillian Dudley departed last night for a 10 day visit in Buffalo with Miss Ruth Mitchell, who has been Miss Dudley's house guest during the last week. Miss Mitchell came to Chicago for the wedding of Miss Elinor Durbin to S. Prentice Porter on Sept. 27 and visited Miss Jeanette Peterkin before going over to the Drake hotel to be with Miss Dudley.

Miss Dudley will return from Buffalo in time to help her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, supervise the final details of decoration for their new apartment at 1420 Lake Shore drive.

They gave up their former apartment at 179 Lake Shore drive a few weeks ago. Mrs. Dudley's sister, Mrs. Fred C. Rounds of Pasadena, who has been in Chicago since late June, will return to California in about three weeks.

Red Cross Busy With Garments.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock's annual departure for her winter estate at Palm Beach, where she is a prominent social leader each season, will be delayed this year because of the arduous job she has promised to supervise for the American Red Cross.

Under her direction 3,000,000 yards of material are to be converted into garments for more than 150,000 families receiving relief from the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair are expected to return to Lake Forest this week from a summer stay abroad. They have leased the lovely modern house of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. for the hunting season, which ends in late November, after which they probably will occupy their town residence at 2700 Lake View avenue. Mrs. Clow is in Canada at present.

Dr. and Mrs. Vernon B. Herbst and Mrs. Herbst's daughter, Miss Elinor Rosenwald, arrived in New York yesterday on the Europa from three months' travel abroad. They will remain in the east for two or three weeks before returning to Chicago.

Are Husbands Afraid of Their Better Halves?

Author Claims They Surely Are.

BY DORYS BLAKE.

Are men afraid of their wives?

What part does this male fear complex play in the durability of marriage?

Sherwood Anderson, well known author, was recently quoted as saying: "Show me a married man and I'll show you a man who is afraid of his wife."

Does this fear work for good or ill in the marriage romance? We'd say that marriage is more likely to survive where the male fears his mate's displeasure or pain than where he is incapable of the emotion.

Also, we believe with Mr. Anderson that the average American husband is "scared" of his wife. That if he did not possess a reverential awe, let's call it, for his little woman, she would be at her wits' end trying to decipher the motives and conduct of this member of the male species of hers.

The fear, as the average husband feels it, is not a vice, nor a masculine weakness. It's one of the humanizing male virtues, really. There is much of anxiety to avoid the woman's displeasure in the emotion common to husbands. There are solicitousness and anxiety to avoid pain, also. It is not cowardly fear. The naturally meek and timid mate constitutes a very small group of males who feel apprehension about the wife's reaction. One of the amusing observations on married pairs is to see a husky male mate, dominating, ruthless possibly in his business contact, cowering in small boy fashion before some little pint sized woman, who has him "skeered to death" of her.

It's probably the old mother complex reasserting itself. Anyway, whatever it is, lucky is the woman, we claim, who manages to inspire it—providing she doesn't overplay her hold, as some women are known to do. In this event, the man may become so scared he runs away, too fearful ever to return. On the one hand, this fear on man's part may be responsible for his unbelievable alibis; on the other, it keeps him from committing many a folly that would bring embarrassment, pain, and heartache to his wife.

Report Shows How Lunch Gift Aids Children

Nickel Buys Meal for Hungry Pupil.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A WEEK has passed since THE TRIBUNE hungry school children's fund issued the announcement that it would again accept contributions to feed needy children in the public schools. During that week $1,320.50 has been given toward this year's fund.

The need this year is greater than last. Following are facts gleaned from the annual audit completed Sept. 1 by THE TRIBUNE of the books kept by Miss Frances L. Swain of her distribution of the hungry school children's fund by TRIBUNE readers last year.

The fund expended $48,567.89. This served 209 elementary, junior high school and senior high schools, the average being slightly less than $225 per school. Only in three cases in the poorer districts did the disbursements exceed $1,000 to any one school.

When the schools undertook to administer the fund the superintendent appointed an advisory committee of representatives of organizations working closely with the schools in other matters. They were Mrs. James Graham and Mrs. T. B. Stephenson of the Parent-Teacher association, Mrs. Samuel Lawton and Mrs. C. P. Schwartz, Chicago Federation for Child Study and Parent Education; Miss Louella Chapin, Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. A. Richard Frank, Scholarship Association for Jewish Children; Mrs. Phillip Schwartz, Chicago Woman's Aid, and Miss Swain.

No part of the fund was used for operating expenses. The regular employés of the household arts office carried on the routine work and volunteers gave many hours of service to bookkeeping. The checks were sent to the principals of the schools bimonthly.

"Principals and teachers in many schools where there was no lunch room found children in obvious need and set themselves to help," Miss Swain said in her report. "Volunteers gave their services, emergency equipment was gathered and many children were helped in these neighborhoods. The Parent-Teacher associations were active in many of these cases.

"It is very difficult to measure the results of the work in any exact terms. In some districts the teachers frankly say the children are in better condition than in past years. From others come stories of case after case of recovery from a condition of under nutrition. For the most severe cases cod liver oil and additional milk and fruit have been provided. We expected physical improvement and our hopes have been more than realized.

"We were not prepared for the striking effect on behavior, disposition and learning ability," Miss Swain continued. "We counted on the influence on school attendance, and we found the duties of the truant officer lightened. More than this, however, is shown in the altered attitude toward life and a change from restlessness, irritable or sullen behavior to one of coöperation and cheerfulness.

"Such testimony as the following is given by many teachers: 'From a listless, somewhat surly boy with a haughdog look Robert has become a good pupil who feels himself a responsible member of the school. He has gained in weight, in animation, is improved in conduct and school work. The lunches have made a new boy of him.'"

The hungry school children's fund, through the careful management of Miss Swain was able to serve nourishing, appetizing lunches. Some of the following are examples served at a cost of five cents in the elementary schools:

1. Vegetable soup, rye bread and butter, chocolate pudding, milk.
2. Spanish rice, peanut butter sandwich, apple sauce with cereal, milk.
3. Lima beans with cole slaw or sauer kraut, bread, milk, apple.
4. Beef stew with vegetables, bread, pineapple, milk.

Funds supplied the junior and senior high schools were used in the regular school cafeteria. Plate lunches were planned to supply an adequate meal for the older boy and girl at a cost of fifteen cents. Some examples of these menus are:

1. Liver, baked potatoes, cole slaw, bread, butter, cookie.
2. Frankfurter, potato salad, bread, butter, cocoa or milk.
3. Hash, creamed peas, bread, butter, cocoa.
4. Pork sausage, noodles, bread, butter, baked apple.

The hungry school children's fund hopes to provide free lunches to at least 200 schools again this year. Readers who wish to help may send their gifts to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, accompanied by the coupon on this page.

Puffy Omelets Add Interest to Daily Menu

Here Are Tips on Making Savory Dish.

BY MARY MEADE.

If you suddenly fell heir to a cozy little tearoom equipped nattily from the brass door dog at the front to the flower boxes peeking in through the garden window, you would at once sit down to figure out what tantalizing special you might cultivate which would set your small refuge for the starving as something deliciously apart from every other human refueling station. You would ponder upon cream puffs and weigh the appetite appeal of smothered steaks and Danish pastry. You might even turn Bohemian and specialize in spare ribs or goulash—but would you ever think of staking your reputation on omelets?

Yet that is just what one flourishing tearoom around the corner is doing—feeding omelets by the hundreds every day to dainty debutantes and busy society matrons, big business men and cops off the corner. For this tearoom chef has a flair for glorified omelets. Golden yellow half moons the color of warm sun tan, steaming with goodness and, not content with this, hiding in their fat middles mysterious treasures of lusciousness. Each day the little yellow slip in the corner of the menu announces three kinds of omelet—a man sized meat or cheese filled creation bursting with savoriness, one chockful of delectable syrupy fruit, and the third holding a steaming vegetable. And each day that slip changes as new inspirations in these three types pop into the head of the versatile cook.

Of course, the highly pleasant thing for us who peer and nibble—and then dash home to try to do the chef one better—is that the inspiration and a few well calculated tips are all any one needs to sally forth on a practically never repeated series of glorified omelets served straight from the home kitchen. Soufflés may be conceded to be a bit tricky, but a plain omelet, well filled, is an art any one may gracefully acquire in two sittings or one.

First, since an egg has a mind of its own and gets decidedly tough about it if abused while cooking, the application of slow, even heat is the important thing to remember. This will give the omelet an even brown without toughening the egg proteins. Then, no matter what your recipe says, add water to your whites when beating them stiff—nearly one tablespoon per egg white. This water should be added when the whites are about half beaten and acts to dilute the egg protein and helps in giving volume and lightness. Or a little lemon juice or tomato juice added will have the same effect and will lend a pleasantly elusive flavor. The tomato flavor blends most happily with meat, cheese, and vegetables, while the lemon flavor delicately complements fruit fillings and sauces. Especially if you are accustomed to adding milk to omelets will you notice a pleasant increase in volume and lightness, for the milk—probably because of its fat content—seems to destroy the properties which make the egg foam and puff up so gloriously. The addition of other fatty foods to an omelet mixture will work the same mischief.

Then, one more matter to consider in making omelets. There are two possibilities of error in beating the whites—beating them too much and beating them not enough. Usually our difficulty is in underbeating, and the result is an omelet in which the volume is small, the texture watery and tough. The yolks slink off to the bottom and form a harmless but unpleasant looking black compound called iron sulfide.

On the other hand, when the whites are beaten until very dry the omelet texture is poor, full of tunnels, and powdery. It is important, too, to combine completely the whites and yolks when folding. So much for specifications.

Cartridge Plaited Ruching Trims Day-Evening Frock from Vera Borea

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Ribbon trimming, particularly ribbon ruching, abounds on the afternoon dress side of French fashions. Many evening frocks are also thus decorated. Shirred bands of ribbon provide another type of ribbon trimming.

The day-evening frock, shown in our sketch today, is a ribbon trimmed dress from Vera Borea. It is made of the dullest of dull crêpe silks in a soft violet color, and is trimmed with cartridge plaited ruchings of violet velvet ribbon. The two gore skirt has four bands of this ribbon around the lower part. The bodice is joined to the skirt under three tucks, and a flap of the material folds over these tucks at the center front and back.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 9.—There was considerable surprise here when it was learned that Greta Garbo had mysteriously slipped into Holland disguised and is at present in Amsterdam. Her hotel immediately was besieged night and day by newspapermen, but Garbo refuses interviews, and hardly leaves her room except to visit the movies. Soon she will begin a tour of the Volendam and Marken fishing villages.

PICK WINNERS AT HALF MILER? IT OPENS TODAY

Better Horses Try Sportsman's Park.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The thrills and the uncertainties of half mile track horse racing come back to Chicago this afternoon when the National Jockey club opens a 19 day meeting at its new Sportsman's Park.

To the Chicago regulars who have been traveling either to the south side, north side, or west side to the races for more than five months, it is just another day of horse racing. They think they can pick as many winners at a half mile track as they have been able to pick at the major tracks in the Chicago district. But to the west siders it is a big event when the gates swing open at Sportsmen's Park.

1,000 Horses Available.

They take great pride in the fact that this is the finest half mile track in America and they patronized it so liberally during a short spring meeting last May that the attendance and betting jumped to such proportions as to compare favorably with the business done at some of the major tracks.

Like most of the other racing associations in the country, the National Jockey club has slashed its purses for the fall meeting. Yet this apparently did not dim the enthusiasm of the horse owners, for the steeds are at Sportsman's Park and at nearby Hawthorne in great numbers. There are about 1,000 horses available for the season.

Chutes to Improve Races.

They are better horses than those which raced over the half mile course last spring, and, too, they will not become so dizzy wheeling around the tiny oval. For since the running of the spring meeting two straightaway chutes have been added to the track, one for races at five-eighths of a mile and the other for races at seven furlongs. This eliminates all but one turn for races at these distances.

Among the horses awaiting the bugle call this afternoon are many owned by Chicagoans who prefer to keep their thoroughbreds nearby where they can see them run rather than to send them away to a more important point.

12 Named in Autumn Purse.

This is particularly noticeable in the Autumn purse, a dash at six and one-half furlongs which features the opening program this afternoon. Twelve horses were named overnight for the sprint and all but two of them are owned by Illinois turfmen.

These home state thoroughbreds include Stuyvesant Peabody's Martie Flynn, J. D. Milkel's Nusakan, Mrs. H. Johnson's Jean Lafitte, J. B. Theall's Durva, O. L. Foster's Outbound, Miss L. Hoffman's Dollar Princess, J. J. Coughlin's Frisky Worker, S. Gorbet's Martha D., F. T. Miller's Iskum, and L. M. Severson's Buster B.

In this field Martie Flynn is likely to rule as the favorite, although there will be stout backing for Dollar Princess, the aged Nusakan and the speedy Hot Shot.

Seven Races a Day.

The Autumn purse comes fifth on the program of seven races. It is the aim of General Manager Edward J. O'Hare to offer seven races each day with post time for the first race at 2 o'clock. He believes this will make it possible for the customers to reach their homes in any part of Chicago by the dinner hour.

Fields at Sportsman's Park will be limited to 10 starters in all races. The entries indicate limit fields in every race today.

Most of the horses appearing on today's program have been campaigning in Chicago throughout the season. But their form may not mean so much until they become accustomed to the sharp turns of the half miler.

SANDLOT GRID PLAYER SUFFERS BROKEN NECK

Central City, Neb., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Asa Mohr, 26 years old, received a broken neck on the opening kickoff of a football game between the town teams of Central City and Harvard today.

It was the first serious football injury reported in Nebraska this season. Mohr remained conscious, but his body was paralyzed. He was taken to an Omaha hospital.

Central City kicked off to Harvard and Mohr made the tackle. Cecil Willhost, a teammate, said Mohr apparently made an ordinary tackle, catching the Harvard man around the knees. Willhost said Mohr wore regulation head protection.

UBL HAS GOOD DAY; PRONOUNCED OUT OF DANGER

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Myron Ubl, Minnesota football player, had a good day today at University hospital where he is confined with pneumonia and complications. His physician said Ubl, who has been ill more than two weeks following an injury in football practice, has passed the critical stage.

Bradbury Robinson, right end, who was injured in the Purdue game yesterday, remained at the university health service today. Robinson was struck on the head. He will be released tomorrow.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

NATIONAL league hockey in Chicago is going back where it started. When the season opens next month the Blackhawks, who have been playing in the Stadium for three years, will use the Coliseum as their home rink.

MAJ. FREDERIC McLAUGHLIN.

It will be quite a change from the spacious, decorative west side arena to the old building on South Wabash avenue with only half the Stadium's seating capacity.

The change was necessitated by a disagreement over rental terms between the Stadium corporation and Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Blackhawks.

Mr. McLaughlin confesses he went into hockey for the sport of it, but it since has become serious business. At least until such time as he gets back the money he has invested. It is his opinion that it would be impossible to meet the Stadium's terms and show profit for the season.

The Stadium holds that it has the Blackhawks tied up to a valid lease and intends to prove it in court.

"I have been assured by attorneys that the Stadium has nullified our contract by refusing to grant us dates we requested," Mr. McLaughlin said yesterday. "I regret that it has become necessary to change our playing site, but I don't believe the shift will hurt us as much as it will the Stadium. The difference in rental of the two buildings will more than make up for any loss we may suffer in attendance," he stated.

"There were only six times last winter when the Coliseum would have been inadequate to accommodate the crowds we had at the Stadium. We expect to give the fans good hockey and I believe they will follow us in sufficient numbers wherever we play to make the sport at least self-supporting."

Mr. McLaughlin revealed that two or three hockey leaders had attempted to effect an understanding between himself and the Stadium. One was Charles F. Adams, owner of the Boston Bruins, which is said to be the most successful club in the league financially. Another was Frank Calder, National league president.

Both gentlemen were given permission by McLaughlin to make any kind of a lease with the Stadium they desired, so long as they could see a chance to break even or return a little profit for the season. Both admitted after conferences with James Norris and Sidney Strotz that they had failed. Mr. Adams, according to the Blackhawk owner, said the Boston club could not operate under rental terms which the Stadium demanded of the Chicago team.

The new lease which the Stadium offered was for five years. It carried a provision, according to Maj. McLaughlin, that the Stadium would pay $100,000 to the Blackhawks for the right to operate another National league team in Chicago. The terms were 37½ per cent. Whenever the rental exceeded $3,750 the difference was to be applied on the $100,000 for territorial rights.

For example, if the Blackhawks drew a $20,000 gate, as they did at the opening game last winter, the rental would amount to $7,500. The first $3,750 would pay for the use of the building for the evening. The remaining $3,750 would be applied on the $100,000.

According to Maj. McLaughlin's way of figuring, he and not the Stadium would be paying for the Stadium's territorial rights under this arrangement.

The old lease, which has a year to run, was broken, according to McLaughlin, by the Stadium last June. The Blackhawks, he said, were entitled to any 22 dates not contracted for before June 1. The club picked its dates, he stated, and submitted them to the Stadium. Then he was notified that he would have to confer with Stadium officials and owners of the Chicago Shamrocks about conflicts in dates with the latter club. This Maj. McLaughlin refused to do.

So it looks as if crowds of 16,000 at hockey games in Chicago are no more. At least for the season of 1932-'33. And the Stadium probably will be dark on 22 nights when it might be host to thousands who could enjoy its architectural beauty.

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packers defeated Portsmouth Spartans, 15 to 10 today. Despite a downpour of rain 6,000 fans witnessed the combat and were treated to one thrill after another.

After taking an early lead the Packers wobbled a bit in the third quarter and Portsmouth came through with 10 points. Then in the final quarter the national champions unleashed a slashing drive, which resulted in the winning touchdown.

Block Punt for Score.

About midway in the first period Lewellen punted 65 yards over Dutch Clark's head and the ball rolled to the Spartans' 10 yard line. The visitors attempted to punt out, but Joe Zeller blocked the ball and Rose fell on it for a Packer touchdown. O'Boyle added the extra point.

In the third quarter Portsmouth bunched four first downs in a row and a pass, Clark to Ebding, produced a touchdown. Clark kicked the extra point. A poor punt by Blood then put the Packers in trouble and Portsmouth capitalized with a field goal on a drop kick by Clark.

Hinkle Goes Over.

Portsmouth gave the Packers an intentional safety in the fourth period rather than take a chance on a blocked kick. Midway in the quarter the Packers started on their final touchdown, which terminated when Clark Hinkle slashed off tackle of 22 yards and a score. McKalip blocked the kick for extra point. BROOKLYN LOSES, 7-6.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Stapleton handed the Brooklyn Dodgers their first defeat of the National Professional Football league season today, winning, 7 to 6, at Ebbets field.

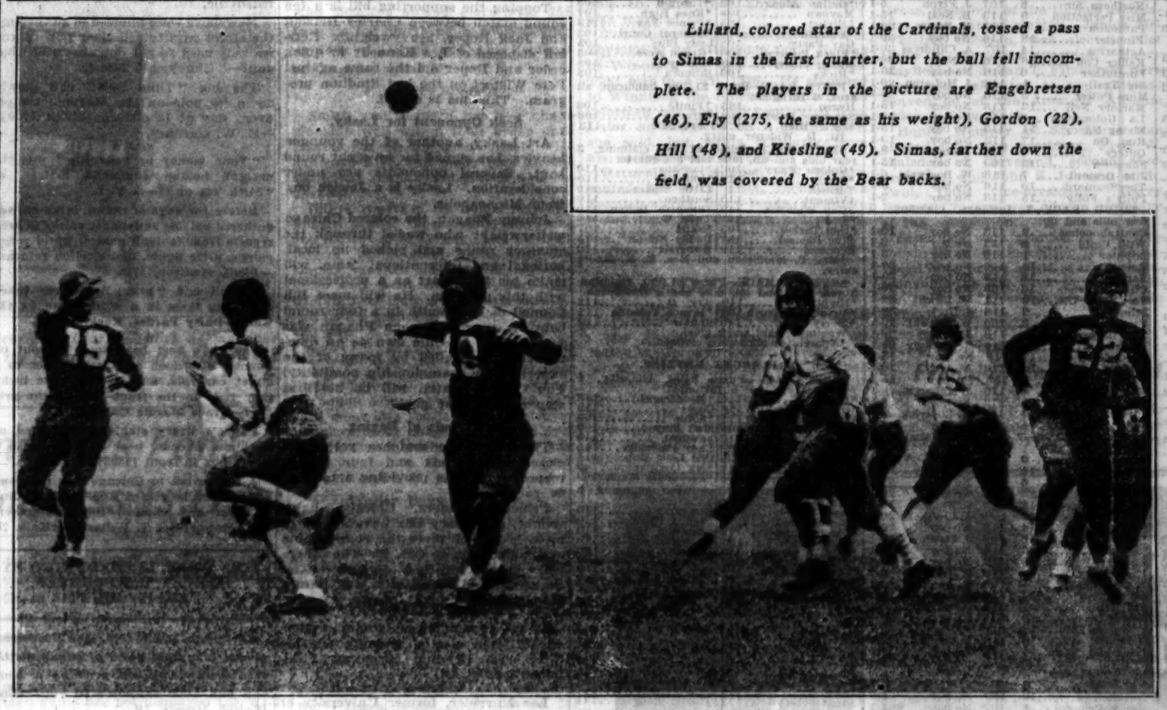
Brooklyn scored early in the opening quarter after Karcis, Dodger full back, blocked Ken Strong's punt and recovered on the Stapleton 25 yard line. Jack Grossman made 20 yards on the next play. Then Benny Friedman tossed a pass to Grossman for the touchdown but missed the try for point.

Early in the second quarter, Strong and Wycoff smashed away at the Dodger line in a 40 yard march that took the ball to the three yard line. Ledbetter, sub back, went through for the score and Frahm kicked the point that gave Stapleton the game.

Lon Warneke to Lose His Tonsils Next Week

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lon Warneke, youthful pitching sensation of the Chicago Cubs last season, will undergo an operation for the removal of his tonsils next week, he said at his home in Mount Ida today. Lon said he would not "bother" with an anaesthetic. Since the world series Warneke has been hunting in the Ouachita hills near his home.

RAIN + MUD = 0 AT WRIGLEY FIELD



Lillard, colored star of the Cardinals, tossed a pass to Simas in the first quarter, but the ball fell incomplete. The players in the picture are Engebretsen (46), Ely (275, the same as his weight), Gordon (22), Hill (48), and Kiesling (49). Simas, farther down the field, was covered by the Bear backs.

Molesworth, Bears' quarter back, breaks away in the first period of the opening National league football game of the season yesterday at Wrigley field. Shelley and Malloy, Cardinal backs, are in pursuit, while Hewitt, Bear end, dashes up in an effort to block the tacklers. The game, the 24th between the Chicago professional teams, ended in a scoreless tie. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Sing Sing Iron Men Win Again; Beat Army, 12-0

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Sing Sing's football team defeated the Irwin post American Legion eleven from Yonkers, 12 to 0, today. The Ossining Iron Men, coached ironically enough by John Law, former Notre Dame captain, lost their star tackle, Cy Stokes, in scoring the first touchdown. Stokes sustained a broken right arm.

Credit for the first touchdown went to Jumbo Marano, giant substitute full back, who went through the Veterans' line like a pickpocket through a subway jam. Marano carried the ball half the length of the field to the five yard line, whence Bingo Nelson, quarter back, plunged over. The kick for the extra point was blocked.

The second touchdown was scored in the last quarter on a series of line drives by Marano and Alabama Pitts, star Negro back. Pitts made a 20 yard run to the two yard line and then went through center on the next play. His pass to Marano for the extra point was grounded.

Two thousand fellow prisoners cheered the convict team and sang "Till the Last White Stripe Is Passed," the varsity march. Besides the prison population, there were 700 visitors.

Next Sunday Sing Sing plays its classic game of the season with the Port Jervis police department.

Big 10 Teams Start a New Race—for Fumbling Title

Intercollegiate football Saturday, which in the Western conference was marked by important title games and an intersectional tie between Chicago and Yale, scarcely afforded an upset in advance predictions. The best that can be found for those who like to see the little boy trip up the big fellow was Indiana university's 7 to 7 tie with Ohio State and Oklahoma's 21 to 6 victory over Kansas. Oklahoma tied for last place with Missouri in the Big Six conference last fall.

Fumbles offer a more fertile topic. They played a big part in Big Ten games. What Northwestern might have accomplished, except for fumbles, against Michigan in the long awaited clash of teams which shared in the 1930 and 1931 championships, will be discussed at Evanston for many days. And you may be certain that Northwestern's record of 11 first downs to 5 for Michigan will be vehemently offered as proof of Wildcat superiority.

An Old Michigan Custom.

What the average fan may forget is that a Michigan team always acts that way. A long time ago Michigan started counting points for its victories and not first downs. And there are several brands of fumbles. Apparently Rentner's fumble which gave Michigan its first scoring opportunity when Williamson recovered the ball on the Wildcat 8 yard line, was the result of hard tackling. This is much different from mere inability to hang onto the ball as demonstrated at Columbus by Veller of Indiana when he set up the stage for the Buckeyes' only touchdown.

Michigan's tackling, opportune forward passing, and Newman's ability to run back punts offset Northwestern ground gaining as shown by first downs. All of which is typical of Michigan football. The only time in its championship seasons that the Wolverines have not been able to pursue these tactics successfully was when the Buckeyes whipped them 20 to 7 last year.

N. U. Works Perfect Pass.

Olson's fumble on Northwestern's 40 yard line furnished Michigan with a second scoring opportunity, while Newman's 80 yard return of a kick to Northwestern's 8 yard line led to his place kick for the final three points in the 15 to 6 victory. For Northwestern Olson's pass to Potter for a touchdown was one of the greatest plays of the game. Other passes were not so successful, because of the alert Michigan secondary defense.

Purdue's 43 yard journey to a touchdown against Minnesota for a 7 to 0 victory started after a fumble by Lund, Gopher half back. It was Purdue's fifth threat in the first half, and the Boilermakers were due to score,

Carideo Nosed Out 65 to 0, Says Texas Spied on Practice

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Secret practice was ordered for the University of Missouri football team today by Coach Frank Carideo, who said he believed scouts for Texas university, which defeated the Tigers 65 to 0, yesterday, had spied on his team at practice last week.

"It is evident," Carideo said, referring to the big Texas score, "that some one in the stands during the last week scouted for Texas. It would have been impossible otherwise for the Texas team to have known where our tackles were to play. No man could ever have guessed as much about our defense."

In yesterday's game, the Tiger tackles played close in, in contrast to formations previously used.

The secret practice sessions will be started in preparation for the conference opening game with Kansas State at Manhattan next Saturday. The Tiger players will meet tomorrow night for chart studies demonstrating the Kansas State style of defense.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Bears and Cardinals battled to a scoreless tie in the opening National Professional league game of the Chicago season yesterday in the mud at Wrigley field. Eight thousand saw the contest, which was the fifth scoreless tie in the intracity series started in 1920.

It was the third successive scoreless tie for the Bears and the second tie for the Cardinals, who, however, counted one touchdown in their deadlock last week against Portsmouth.

Grange, Schwartz Hurt.

Red Grange, regular left half for the Bears, was severely injured in the first quarter. His right shoulder was dislocated, a recurrence of an injury two years ago. Schwartz, of the Cardinals, also was injured. Numerous minor bruises testified to the severity of the line play. Bill Hewitt of the Bears drew a black eye.

Without exception the game was played between the 30 yard lines. Practically no plays were made outside of the defensive tackle, which gave the plunging backs opportunity to carry the bulk of the offense. In this Bronko Nagurski and Herb Joesting, Bear full backs, had an advantage, but they could not link together enough gains to threaten.

Lillard Gains for Cards.

Joe Lillard, who played two games last year at Oregon State before he was declared ineligible because of professionalism, was the best ball carrier for the Cardinals. Lillard, a triple threat, had his difficulties with the mud, but he did quite well on returning the punts of Nesbitt and Molesworth.

Lillard also pulled the Cards out of a spot in the last quarter after Molesworth's short punt had dropped out of bounds on the Cards' one yard line. Lillard booted 50 yards and Molesworth was stopped on the Cards' 35 yard line.

Shortly afterward, Nagurski passed to Corbett for a gain of 18 yards to start another drive, but the Bears finally lost possession on downs at the Cardinal 29 yard line.

Rain Starts at Game Time.

Molesworth also gave his teammates a thrill in the closing seconds when he caught a Cardinal punt on his own five yard line and was tackled as he received the ball. Had he fumbled the slippery ball the Cards would have been within a step of victory. This kick had been made possible when the Bears fumbled on their own 40 yard strip.

The rain didn't start until just before game time, despite the threatening clouds. As a result most of the ground gaining was done in the first half before the drizzle took complete charge. Even so, neither team could get an offense under way. The Bears made seven first downs, five of them during the first half. Four were by rushing, two by passes and one on a penalty.

The Cards made their required distance four times, once by running, twice by passes and once by penalty.

Both teams fought with disregard of rules on use of the hands, generally the case when the Chicago rivals meet, but the rain and frequent penalties cooled the players down in the last half.

BRAVES, 14; GIANTS, 6.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Boston Braves today defeated the New York Giants, 14 to 6, for their first National Professional football victory.

An 80 yard march in which Jim Musick supplied the final drive brought Boston's first touchdown in the second period. Just before the first half closed the Giants put on a similar parade that ended when Jack Hagerty threw a pass to Red Badgro over the goal line.

Ernie Pinckert raced fifty yards for the second Boston touchdown after intercepting a triple pass started by Red Cagle. Henry Hughes kicked both extra points for Boston.

Hornsby May Get Action on Series Money Today

Rogers Hornsby, ousted manager of the Chicago Cubs, may get action today on his plea for a share of the Cubs' world's series prize. Baseball Commissioner Landis is expected to return to his office, after a week's illness due to a cold, to consider Hornsby's appeal.

COST OF DUCK HUNTING DOWN FOR NEW SEASON

Shooting Along Illinois River Starts Sunday.

[The Illinois waterfowl season opens Sunday, Oct. 16, at noon.]

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Duck Hunter, here are some late news flashes from the Illinois waterfowl grounds regarding the opening of the 1932 season next Sunday noon, Oct. 16.

First, our survey of open hunting places, known as daily fee shooting marshes in this state, shows that there is a tendency on the part of owners of marshes to reduce the charge for a day's hunting privileges. Secondly, one or two marsh owners down state will not permit hunting on their lands on the first day of the season, since there is only a half day's hunting on Sunday, Oct. 16.

The government is responsible for the regulation starting the duck season at noon next Sunday. It is not a state regulation. One marsh owner along the Illinois river has written us that his hunting hours are from 8 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Therefore, he won't handle daily fee shooters on the first day of the season.

Blinds at Putnam Are $15.

At Putnam, we find that two hunters may rent a blind and decoys for $15. This means from sunrise to sunset shooting during the duck season. Board and lodging are not included in this fee.

At Lacon, the charge for a blind with both live and block decoys and transportation from the town to and from the blind is $20 for two men. Board and lodging are extra. Both river and pond shooting are offered in that territory. When we were in this section a couple of years ago we hunted in the big marsh where mallards, pintails, widgeon, and teal were assembled. At this marsh this year we passed a number of blinds where the boys were getting some snappy bluebill shooting over stools of block decoys. We saw many mudhens in that part of the river, too, and a large number of coots in the sloughs.

Near Bath, which is below the town of Havana, we find a reduction of $2.50 per day in the charges to daily fee hunters for the use of a blind, decoys, and board and lodging. Last year the cost was $17.50 per day. This year it is $15 for everything. The report from Bath is: "Lots of early ducks here. If we had just a little more water conditions would be excellent. Natural feed for the ducks is abundant."

Ducks Numerous at Cairo.

At Cairo, the heart of the goose country, Horseshoe lake, the state game refuge, has lots of water. The ducks are fairly numerous on the lake. With plenty of water in the lake it appears that a great season is ahead for both ducks and Canada geese. The usual charge to duck and goose hunters at Cairo is $10 per day, including board and lodging. A hot coffee lunch is brought out to your blind at noon.

JOCKEY COUCCI IS REINSTATED; TO RIDE TODAY

Laurel, Md., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Completing his term as apprentice jockey today, Silvio Coucci, under contract to the Greentree stable, was back in the good graces of the Laurel race track stewards and eligible to ride starting tomorrow. Reconsidering their suspension of the youngster Monday for grabbing another horse's saddle cloth, the stewards yesterday reinstated Coucci. They said his straightforward story caused them to reduce his suspension to one week.

MILLS DEFEAT SQUARES, 4 TO 2; SULLIVAN VICTOR

Lefty Sullivan beat his former major league rival, Jim Vaughn, when he pitched the Mills to a 4 to 2 victory over the Logan Squares at Logan Square yesterday. The former White Sox pitcher held the Squares to 6 hits and fanned 11 men. The Mills collected only eight hits off Vaughn, but managed to pair them in the pinches to score in four innings. The Squares put together two hits and two passes in the ninth to score their runs. Score.

Bob Carey Wins Second Auto Race in Two Weeks

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Bob Carey of Anderson, Ind., won his second 20 mile automobile race in as many weeks today, traversing 40 half mile laps in 16:07.41. He led all the way. Gene Haustein, Detroit, was second, and Ira Hall, Detroit, third in the field of 10 starters. Howard Dauthin, Detroit, was seriously injured when his car went over an embankment at a turn and he was pinned beneath the wreckage.

Five Matches Support Ross Bout Oct. 21

Five matches will be served Chicago fight fans Oct. 21 along with the Barney Ross-Bat Battalino bout at the Chicago Stadium. This feature between Chicago's candidate for lightweight honors and the former featherweight champion is scheduled for ten rounds.

Matchmaker Nate Lewis has not closed all of the supporting bouts as yet, but he has done enough to give an inkling of what is in store when Ross faces the rugged Battalino.

Topping the supporting bill is a ten round match between Charley Retzlaff and Jack Roper, heavyweights. Retzlaff disposed of Les Kennedy in quick order and Roper did the same against Pete Wistort on the last Stadium program. This one is closed.

Seek Opponent for Lasky.

Art Lasky, another of the younger heavies, has signed for an eight round bout. Several opponents are under consideration. Lasky is a Jewish boy from Minneapolis.

Johnny Phagan, the colored Chicago welterweight who waded through the amateur ranks and picked up local, national and international fame, will make his first start as a professional with this program. He will meet Bill Connell of Monmouth in a four round bout. A year ago when Phagan was just coming into his own as an amateur he was hailed by many of the experts as a championship possibility. The Connell match will be his first step toward that goal.

40 Rounds of Boxing.

The other two matches yet to be closed will be six and four rounds respectively, thus providing a total of 40 rounds.

Prince Saunders, Chicago lightweight, and Tracy Cox have signed to meet in one of three ten round bouts at Indianapolis on Oct. 25. The others will bring together Sammy (Kid) Slaughter and Jack McVey and Danny Delmont and Willard Brown.

Les Marriner, former University of Illinois, football player, will resume drills today after being out of the ring since last July.

Promoter Grant Kromenaker has announced that his next card at the Rainbo Fronton will be presented on Oct. 19.

Harry Paul, Philadelphia middleweight, will leave tomorrow for Cedar Rapids, Ia., where he faces Kid Leonard on Wednesday.

EVERY ONE MEETS BILL AT STATION BUT GIRL FRIEND

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Bill Cunningham, 28, Irish and red-haired, who, to use his own modest words, "sure put Kansas City on the map," arrived home today to receive the congratulations a returning hero naturally would expect.

Bill, a railroad fireman out of employment, waited 10 days in front of the Yankee stadium in New York to win the honor of being the first fan to enter the world series.

"They ask me why I did this," said Bill. "I'll tell you—to bring the honor to Kansas City of having the first man admitted to the ball park, that's why."

Bill was met at the bus station by friends and newspaper men. His pockets contained newspaper clippings, fan mail, pictures of himself and Babe Ruth shaking hands, and his toothbrush.

There was only one fly in the ointment of Bill's homecoming. He said he had wired ahead to ask his girl friend to meet him. She was not among the welcomers.

RUSSO TAKES 25 MILE RACE AT WOODBRIDGE

Woodbridge, N. J., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Joe Russo of Indianapolis, Ind., today won the 25 mile feature of an auto racing card that was marred by accidents.

Russo's winning time was 25:57 4-5. Bob Sall of Paterson was second and Jimmie Patterson of Kansas City third.

In the 43d lap of the race the car of Johnny Hannon of Conshohocken, Pa., burst into flames. Harris Insinger of Philadelphia, who was following close behind, smashed into the blazing car, catapulting Hannon on to the track in the path of the other racers. Hannon rolled track the track, out of the way of the wheels of the other cars. He suffered only minor bruises and lacerations. Insinger was not injured.

In one of the preliminary 5 mile events Russo established a track record of 4:42. The old mark was 4:43 3-5. Russo also set a new half mile record of :27 2-5, two-fifths of a second better than the old record.

Londos Meets Coleman on Mat Tonight

Jim Londos makes his first appearance of Chicago's indoor wrestling season tonight when he meets Able Coleman, Russian Jewish challenger, at the Coliseum.

Londos is giving away ten pounds to his younger antagonist. Both are short in stature and apparently well matched. Four bouts have been arranged to support the main event.

One match brings together two scissors kings, past and present. Joe Stecher, who won the world's title a few years ago, will meet Jim Clinkstock. The Indian wrestler is said to have one of the best scissors holds ever used on the mat.

Both are giants, Clinkstock is 6 feet 5 inches in height, an inch taller than Stecher, while both weigh approximately 240 pounds. They will appear in the semi-windup.

Joe De Vito, New York Italian, makes his Chicago debut against Paul Harper, Texas, while Jack Smith meets Stan Lurik in the other bout.

In the third period O'Malley tossed an 18 yard forward pass to Lelinski, right end, who raced 14 yards for a touchdown.

DE PAUL BEGINS HUNT FOR SCORING PUNCH TODAY

Scoring punch will be the object of an intensive search this afternoon when the De Paul university football squad starts practice for its fourth contest of the season Friday night against Ripon at Loyola stadium.

De Paul's third game ended in a scoreless tie with Western State of Kalamazoo, Mich. De Paul piled up a total of twelve first downs against Western State's five, but was unable to score.

De Paul marched to the one foot line in the last moments of the second quarter, but the gun halted action on the second down. In the last period De Paul started its scoring assault too late, although Ernie Butcher broke loose for several spectacular runs.

Injuries also handicapped De Paul. Capt. Matty Steffen was kicked in the hip and was unable to play the second half. Jim Doody, first string quarter back, was also out with injuries.

HOPPE TO OPEN 3 CUSHION MATCH WITH HALL TODAY

The first important three-cushion billiard match of the season will start today when Willie Hoppe of New York and Allen Hall of Chicago meet in a match at Mussey's Wabash avenue room. Hoppe has accepted Hall's challenge for a twelve block match for 720 points.

Yale Game Convinces Fans on Midway Success Is Here

Few followers of the Chicago football team had actually expected the Maroons to beat Yale at New Haven last Saturday. The 7 to 7 outcome, while it fell short of the hoped for vengeance, was therefore regarded with no little satisfaction in dormitories and clubrooms on the Midway yesterday.

Mixed with the satisfaction, however, were more than the usual number of "ifs," through which Chicago might more properly have repaid Yale for the 27 to 0 drubbing it gave the home boys in Coach A. A. Stagg's fortieth anniversary game last year. Chief among these "ifs" was Pete Zimmer's 40 yard dash through the entire Eli team to the Yale goal line in the final minutes of play, which turned out to be useless by the breadth of a cleat when it was announced that Zimmer had touched out of bounds en route. Second were the field goals missed by narrow margins by Pat Page and Capt. Don Birney.

Zimmer, Sahlin Stand Out.

The fact that Chicago outplayed Yale, scoring eight first downs to seven for the Blue team, and outrushing Yale, 170 yards to 157, was held to be an honest barbinger of the better times to come in Midway football. Chicago undergraduates are not given to spontaneous outbursts, but there were indications yesterday that the Maroon team, which disembarks from the Commodore at the Englewood station today at 11:50, will be greeted with a collection of concise huzzas. Stagg and the team were the guests of the university's New York Alumni aassociation at the Army-Navy club in Gotham yesterday.

Chicago's threat for this season, it became apparent in Saturday's game, will be the open field running of Pete Zimmer and Vin Sahlin, and Stagg may build his attack to get these men into the clear. Zimmer has lived up to the promise he showed as a sophomore late last season, and while he lacks the shiftiness of Sahlin, he has a knack for running straight at tacklers and bowling them over. Surprises in Saturday's starting lineup were Bill Berg, a reformed guard, and Bart Smith, a sophomore, at the end positions, and Eli Patterson, another sophomore, at guard.

Knox Is Next.

Chicago's chance in Big Ten competition is still a moot question, particularly since Bates, which had also tied Yale, was beaten by Tufts Saturday, 14 to 0. It is known, however, that Chicago's 41 to 0 victory over Monmouth was not merely a matter of superior weight, since Yale outweighed the Maroons by almost the margin Chicago had over Monmouth.

Coach Stagg will have a chance this week to do further experimenting. Knox, next Saturday's opponent on the Midway, was trounced Saturday by Augustana, 27 to 6, and the Galesburg team should not be a serious menace to the revived Maroons.

PURPLE ATTACK FUMBLES.

An attempt to eliminate the fumbling which has characterized Northwestern football in two games this season, and which proved a contributing factor to Michigan's victory Saturday, will be the objective during the coming week's practice for Saturday's game at Urbana.

Opinion is unanimous among the Wildcats that their own fumbling rather than Michigan's superiority led to Saturday's defeat. These frequent fumbles presented the Wolverines with their scoring opportunities, which they seized speedily.

As in the Missouri game, the Northwestern line again proved it has strong defensive qualities. The Wildcat forwards held the Wolverines to one first down by running plays. If Coach Dick Hanley can get his linemen to block on offense and giving some support to the backs, the Purple should still be a threat.

Capt. Pug Rentner's inability to get off any of his long runs in the Michigan game has not dismayed the Wildcats.

Coach Dick Hanley was particularly pleased with the improvement shown by Ollie Olson at full back. Ollie not only passed effectively but he proved to be more effective than ever bucking the line. There is no question but that the youngster will be called upon for more of this type of work in the future.

ILLINI STOCK RISES.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Convinced that Illinois showed improvement against Bradley yesterday, especially in the blocking, which he characterized as its best in several years, Bob Zuppke began plans today for the Northwestern game here next Saturday.

Zuppke's search for a companion tackle to Bart Cummings seems to have finally ended with the play of Red Gragg yesterday. Gragg, a former full back, played three quarters of the Bradley game. La Verne Joslin and Bob May are other possibilities, but Gragg is strongly favored.

Another problem seems to have been solved by the performance of Larry Seamans at full back. Seamans did well enough yesterday to start the week a favorite for the varsity position.

Dave Cook, Chuck Andrews, and Fred Frink, who were unable to play yesterday, are expected to report tomorrow.

KIPKE CENSURES NEWMAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Michigan's football squad will receive its first letdown from the hard work of the last three weeks when it reports tomorrow afternoon. Coach Harry Kipke will spend most of the afternoon pointing out and correcting faults in the Northwestern game. Michigan will meet the same sort of attack against Ohio State next Saturday as it faced yesterday.

Kipke was critical of Newman's generalship yesterday, saying he believed Newman called too many forward passes in the first half, an attack that had the team pretty well fagged out at the half time. He spoke highly of Bernard, Petoskey, Fay, and Regeczi. He intimated also that he thinks enough of Austin to start him at tackle in place of Damm against Ohio. Damm, knocked out by a blow on the head yesterday, was discharged from the health service today.

ANDERSON IS SATISFIED.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—It is unlikely that Coach Hunk Anderson will make any changes in the Notre Dame lineup this week, although the second and third teams outplayed the varsity yesterday against Haskell. This is what Anderson expected and wanted. He is bringing his first team along slowly and he seemed satisfied after the game with its lackadaisical exhibition.

Anderson did little experimenting yesterday. He started his second team, substituted the first, and then ran in the third stringers. The only two times he deviated from his practice of sending in whole teams at a time was in the fourth period when he used the fourth team back field behind the third team line, and when he used Bill Pierce as an alternate at right guard with Joe Pivarnik on the third club. Both are letter men.

Hagen's 281 Wins St. Louis Golf Tourney

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Walter Hagen of Detroit swept to victory in the St. Louis open golf tournament today with a par breaking finish in which he shot a 65 on the last 18 holes, six under perfect figures.

Hagen's card was 281 for the 72 holes of medal play, five better than his nearest opponents, Macdonald Smith and Tony Manero of New York, who tied for second place with 286. In a tie for fourth place were Tommy Armour of Detroit and Abe Espinosa of Chicago, with 287.

Schwartz Is Sixth.

Smith and Manero had the championship well within their grasp until Hagen put on his great finish. He had carded 69, two under par, for the semi-final round. He scored a 75 on opening day.

Bill Schwartz of St. Louis, with 288, finished sixth. Close behind him came Joe Kirkwood of Chicago and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., with 290. Dudley cracked on the last eighteen holes and went five over par after holding first place at the turn with 210.

Hagen's card for the last 18 holes, and par:

Par—Out	453	434	435—35
Hagen—Out	453	423	336—33
Par—In	354	544	344—36
Hagen—In	344	334	344—32

Tommy Armour, who paced the field as it went into the last day, destroyed his chances by going two strokes over par in the morning round and just equalling par in the afternoon, carding a 73 and a 71.

Walter Bags an Eagle.

Hagen, who was six strokes behind Armour as the 36-hole final got under way, turned in four birdies and an eagle on the last 18 holes, and went over par only once. Hagen's purse was $1,000.

In the amateur division, Jimmy Manion of St. Louis was first with 291, six strokes ahead of Larry Moller of Quincy, Ill.

She Met Zbyszko at a Tea Party—and Now She Sues

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Stanislaus Zbyszko, three times wrestling champion of the world, who once sued a newspaper because it likened him to a gorilla, is pictured as an irresistible lover in a $100,000 breach of promise action filed in Supreme court, Manhattan, it was learned today.

Miss Gladys Buszek, a music teacher of Winnipeg, Man., said she spent the better part of three years preparing a trousseau that would befit the bride of the 240 pound wrestler, only to learn that Zbyszko already was married.

The music teacher said she first met Zbyszko at an afternoon tea. He was in Winnipeg for one of his matches. That was in April, 1926. He returned to Winnipeg the following month and informed her she had captivated him. Later he departed on a world tour, she said, but wrote regularly from his various ports of call.

Returning in August, 1927, he presented her with gifts, including a Spanish shawl, ivory beads, a camera—and paid her dentist's bill of $85, she added.

Svabeks Defeat Parrots, 6 to 2, in Midwest Game

The Svabek recreation team defeated the Berwyn Legion Parrots yesterday, 6 to 2, in a Midwest Football league game at Berwyn. Sevcik went over from Berwyn's three yard line for the Svabek touchdown. Berwyn scored when Sanders tackled Sevcik behind the goal line for a safety.

Eddie Mahlke was picked as one of the national referees while Theodore Gross, president of the Illinois association, was named starter. James McWhirter, Chicago, was elected chief timer in the championships. Harry Mayfield and Julian T. Fitzgerald were appointed delegates to the national convention of the Amateur Athletic union in New York.

Henry Kemper of St. Louis was elected first vice president, Fred W. Blaisdell of Cleveland, second vice-president, and John S. Johnson of St. Paul, third vice-president. Harry Berz of Chicago was chosen secretary of the convention.

K. O. Christner to Fight Frankie Wine on Nov. 1

BIG TEN TEAMS START RACE FOR FUMBLING TITLE

"Where's That Ball?" Is Conference Theme Song

judging by their vicious attack. The surprise of the game was Minnesota's play in the second half, featuring the completion of ten passes in 18 attempts, made possible largely because Purdue was forced to use seven defensive linemen to stop the charges of Jack Manders. And Manders once was stopped on Purdue's one yard line.

Purdue played smart football. It attempted no passes after securing a 7 to 0 lead and in this was quite different from Ohio State. The Buckeyes led Indiana, 7 to 0, only to have a forward pass intercepted by Opasik, whose return to Ohio's 18 yard line opened the way for the tie score.

Beware of Badgers.

Wisconsin's 34 to 0 conquest of Iowa should give Purdue a scare, for the Badgers visit Lafayette this week. One of Wisconsin's five touchdowns, the second, started from a fumble by Iowa. Passes featured the Badger attack, with Joe Lintor the outstanding ball carrier.

Chicago's tie with Yale, 7 to 7, is the best tonic Midway athletics has had for several years. The Maroon back field, as was suspected after the opening game with Monmouth, is very good and Zimmer, in particular, can run in an open field. He also threw the scoring pass to Sahlin, and returned a Yale kick to the 13 yard line, where he stepped out of bounds. Better judgment in obtaining position for a fourth down drop kick might have beaten Eli. As it was, Capt. Birney's kick from an angle narrowly missed.

Illinois Ready for Opener.

Illinois, which opens its conference schedule against Northwestern Saturday, defeated Bradley, 20 to 0, in final preparation.

Kansas' licking by Oklahoma doesn't offer much hope when the Jayhawkers play Notre Dame this fall. Incidentally the Irish elevens, three sets of linemen and four back fields, scalped the Haskell Indians, 73 to 0. Imagine gaining 673 yards from scrimmage with backs averaging more than 20 yards a play. Scores mount up when back field men are fighting for first team ranking. Chief among these rivalries were the Melinkovich-Banas fight for full back and the Lukats-Koken duel for left half.

SELLING SENDS GRAIN PRICES TO LOWS AGAIN

Wheat Declines to 1895 Figure.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Lowering of grain prices to new levels, due largely to general liquidation, led by eastern holders who have endeavored to advance wheat prices in the past month, has brought about a demoralized situation such as the trade has never before encountered.

A decline in security and cotton prices was mainly responsible for the liquidation by tired holders. Stop loss order selling predominated to an unusual extent, especially in wheat which influenced the decline in coarse grains. Supporting factors were not in evidence, except on the extreme breaks, and there was a decided lack of confidence. Back spreading operations in wheat between Chicago and Winnipeg furnished a large part of the business.

Export Buying at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg prices were supported by pool influence and by export buying while hedge selling and liquidation furnished a large percentage of the selling pressure. Spreading between Liverpool and Chicago was a feature, and at the close the position of these markets was materially changed, suggesting that American wheat markets had been brought closer to an export level, one seaboard exporter claiming that they were within about 3c of a trading basis. At the close wheat futures in Chicago were 4¼c lower for the week and at the same time all grains made the lowest finish of the season and in a few instances the lowest known.

Winnipeg wheat closed only 1¼@1⅝c lower for the week after making new low levels, with October 48¼c, December 50¼c, and May 55¾c.

Liverpool's position was improved widening its spread with Chicago, and closed ⅝c lower on December and 1⅜c lower on May, the latter being 55⅜c and December 55⅝c.

Wheat Lowest Since 1895.

Chicago wheat prices declined to the lowest since 1895, dropping to 48¼c for December, 53⅞c for May, and 55⅛c for July, with the close ⅝@1⅛ above the extreme lows. Ordinarily these low prices would have brought in new buying, and, while there was a fair absorption of grains on breaks buyers showed no pronounced confidence in the future, having been induced to enter the market because of the drastic declines. Buying on the belief that prices are low has cost the trade many millions of dollars of late years, but with wheat under 50c in Chicago the impression prevails that it may not go much, if any, lower and that accidents are in favor of the holder.

It was expected that President Hoover's speech to the Iowa farmers in Des Moines on Wednesday night would be bullish and bring in new buying and higher prices, but instead it started a heavy liquidating movement by holders of all grains and started the decline, which was only checked in the last hour of trading on Saturday.

Canadians Sell Wheat.

Canadian farmers continue to sell their wheat freely, and cash handlers there sold on an average of better than 500,000 bu a day for export. The feature of the Canadian crop this year is that there is very little grading below No. 3 and an unusual percentage of No. 2 and No. 1.

China was a good buyer of Canadian wheat, and it is said that negotiations have been nearly completed for farm board sale of 12,000,000 bu of wheat on credit, the legality of the

Continental to Vote on Joining National Banks

Stockholders of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company will meet at 10 o'clock this morning to vote on the proposal of the directors to nationalize that institution.

The move was suggested Sept. 6 by the directors. The new national bank will be called the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago. All departments of the present bank are to be operated by the new national bank.

Nationalization is expected to occur before the end of this month. The bank will have total invested capital of $102,500,000, distributed as follows: Capital, $75,000,000; surplus, $25,000,000; undivided profits, $2,500,000.

Stockholders will receive one share of capital stock of the new national bank for each present share held. The stock will have a par value of $100 per share and a book value of $136.36. In addition each share will carry with it proportionate trusteed ownership of the Continental Illinois company, the bank's security affiliate, which has capital and surplus of $2,500,000.

DEPRECIATED CURRENCY AIDS FOREIGN TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—A statistical analysis of the principal imports into the United States from countries now on depreciated currency bases shows that there has been no compensating rise in foreign prices to offset the depreciation in currency, and that as a result importers have been able to slash prices to a point which the American producer cannot hope to meet, according to the American Tariff league.

Results of the analysis are published in the monthly bulletin of the league for October. They show that currency depreciation in England, Canada, Japan and Norway was not compensated for by a corresponding rise in prices.

In England, which has shown a currency depreciation of 28 per cent, prices show no change from a year ago. In Canada the currency has depreciated 12 per cent and prices have fallen 6 per cent. In Norway the depreciation of currency has been 35 per cent, while the price level has advanced less than 3 per cent. The price level in Japan, in which the exchange is down nearly 40 per cent, is unchanged.

Brokers Disappointed by October Stock Trade

New York, Oct. 9.—The volume of business on the New York Stock exchange so far in October has been a disappointment to brokers, who were anticipating a considerably longer run of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 share days. Commissions have become slimmer, but many of the brokers remain hopeful that the present lull in trading interest will soon give way to more activity under improving business prospects.

CHANGED SET-UP OF ENGINEERING BLDG. OUTLINED

Loan of $350,000 Is Planned.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of the twenty-three story Engineering building, at Wacker drive and Wells street, is proposed in a plan just submitted to the holders of series A first mortgage bonds. This plan, formulated by the committee for the protection of holders of bonds sold through the American Bond & Mortgage company, is designed to give the principal beneficial ownership in the property to the depositing holders of series A bonds and enable them to benefit from the income of the property without the usual delay caused by the redemption period after foreclosure.

DAYTON KEITH. [Moffett Photo.]

The reorganization involves the payment of back taxes, the assembling of junior obligations, and the arrangement of financing with a loan of $350,000 which was secured for the purpose of taking the property out of the hands of the receiver and conveying ownership to the depositing bondholders.

The Engineering building is security for a $3,500,000 first mortgage series A bond issue dated June 1, 1927, and $210,000 in series B first mortgage bonds. There's also a $700,000 second mortgage bond issue and $355,864 in unsecured indebtedness.

Sale Set for Nov. 14th.

The series A bonds were called for deposit in June, 1930, following default in principal and interest. A final decree of foreclosure has been entered and the foreclosure sale is set for Nov. 14th. The committee purposes buying in the property at that time.

Proceeds of the $350,000 loan will be used to pay reorganization expenses; pay the share of the foreclosure sale price due nondepositing bondholders; to set up a reserve to meet 1931 taxes, and to provide working capital and funds necessary to acquire the equity of redemption and the junior liens, which have been assembled into one holding with the cooperation of Alexander F. McKeown Jr., one of the parties in the original owning corporation.

A new company is to be formed to hold title to and operate the reorganized property. There'll be only one class of stock—common, no par—which will be held by five trustees. Depositing bondholders will receive one share of stock for each $100 in bonds.

Reduce Fees One-third.

The bondholders' protective committee, composed of the following, Craig B. Hazelwood, chairman; Dayton Keith, Frank W. Blair, Frederick G. Curry, H. K. Hallett, Joseph E. Otis, Walter J. Sudgen, and Charles W. Weston, call attention to the fact that unless the plan is accepted by the depositing bondholders the ultimate reorganization may be delayed approximately three years.

In order to expedite the reorganization the committee and its counsel have agreed to reduce their customary compensation and fees approximately one-third, it is announced.

Income statements for the last three years show net profits of $203,646 for 1929, $242,568.89 for 1930, and $196,180.74 for 1931, which, after insurance premiums and taxes but before depreciation and interest, left a net income of $119,279.93 for 1929, $151,961.71 for 1930, and $127,360.41 for 1931.

Taxes up to and including 1930 are now paid in full. From receipts collected by the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver a total of $184,582 has been paid on general real estate taxes, and $52,076 has been paid on special assessments since June 17, 1930.

TRADE GROUP REPORTS SHARP BUSINESS GAINS IN CHICAGO DISTRICT

Indications of mounting sales by the majority of the local wholesale houses, sharp increases in the movement of merchandise of mail order concerns, new gains in electric power output, brighter hopes in the steel industry, and an upward trend in the volume in freight car loadings characterized the past week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

At wholesale, orders placed continued to tax the trade's facilities in handling, and in several cases the packing rooms were worked overtime, despite recent additions to the working forces. Foreseeing this increase in business and realizing the need of better facilities to handle larger numbers of customers, one of State street's largest department stores is now in the midst of a comprehensive rebuilding program and a large number of men are being employed for this purpose. The monthly sales report from one of Chicago's mail order houses showed an expansion of 13 per cent over the volume of the preceding month.

Though still below the normal seasonal increase in commitments, the steel industry entered the final quarter of the year with prospects for at least an improvement in October's business over that of September. Officials stated that the greater part of the present acceleration continues to come from miscellaneous consumers and in small lots for immediate shipment. Unfilled orders as of September 30 are expected to show a sizable increase.

Revenue car loadings of the principal railroads continued their upward trend, although still considerably below the volume attained last year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Because of the inability of Cheney Brothers to meet a maturity of $462,000 of 5 per cent serial gold bonds on Nov. 1 and to liquidate bank indebtedness, the reorganization committee for the company has evolved a plan for its reorganization in which all the creditor banks and holders of a substantial amount of bonds and stocks have concurred, John F. Grimm, chairman of the committee, announced today.

Under the plan holders of the 5 per cent serial gold bonds and bank creditors will receive for each $1,000 of bonds or indebtedness $1,000 new five year 5 per cent bonds and ten shares of new participating preferred stock without par value.

If the plan is consummated the interest on the bonds and the bank indebtedness will be paid on Nov. 1. Holders of the common stock will receive, share for share, new common stock without par value represented by voting trust certificates. Holders of the bonds and stockholders are requested to deposit their securities before the close of business on Oct. 31.

FORESEE LARGE CUT IN WINTER WHEAT ACREAGE

Dry conditions over a large share of the winter wheat belt no doubt have a tendency to reduce the acreage much more than the government reported Sept. 1, says the Cargill Grain company's crop bulletin. A large share of the eastern and central states have their land in good condition for seeding, but are holding off for the fly date, or the time when newly seeded grain will be free from damage of the Hessian fly.

In the southwest territory farmers are discouraged and are not able or willing to put in a very large acreage. The drought which killed their crops during the early months of the season, and the heat during the summer and more drought in the fall, put their land in very poor condition for plowing and seeding, and has discouraged many of the farmers. The greatest obstacle, however, is the unusually low prices offered for their products.

Majority of 100 Business Leaders See Trade on Mend

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Confidence that the extreme low point of the business depression has been passed and that revival, although it may be slow and irregular, is under way, was expressed by an overwhelming majority of more than 100 business leaders in replies to a telegraphic questionnaire.

The canvass of business sentiment was made last week by Lehman Brothers, private banking house, and the findings were made public today. The bankers' conclusions stated that in all but a few industries there is ample evidence of definite improvement and return of hope for a slow but sure climb during the winter and spring months.

Low Point Passed.

The opinion that the low point was passed in the summer was described by Lehman Brothers as "nearly unanimous." It was explained that "the large majority were definitely of the opinion that the bottom had been seen, while the small number who voiced no definite conviction were at least hopeful that this was the case."

Inventories were reported by nearly all as ranging from normal to very low.

The replies indicated, however, that there is not much likelihood of increased employment, except seasonal, until there has been an increase in business volume of around 15 to 20 per cent, the banking house found.

Excerpts from Replies.

Following are excerpts from the replies of a number of leading executives who were willing to be quoted:

Theodore Ahrens, president, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation—"We believe the low point of the business depression has been passed."

Thomas A. Buckner, president, New York Life Insurance company—"Loans applied for during September are below figures for same month last year. Indications and outlook are for steady but constant improvement."

John A. Bush, president, Brown Shoe Co., Inc.—"We look forward to much more active spring business than a year ago."

Colby M. Chester Jr., president, General Foods corporation—"We believe the lowest point of depression has passed provided the political situation is not considered."

Food Prices at Bottom.

Carle C. Conway, chairman, Continental Can company—"The general belief is that the prices of food commodities have reached bottom and indications point to somewhat advancing prices."

F. L. Dame, chairman, the North American company—"I believe that the low point of the business depression has been passed."

Edward D. Duffield, president, Prudential Insurance company of America—"Further actual improvement in our business depends largely upon reduction in unemployment, and we believe we see some improvement in this direction."

Otto H. Falk, chairman, Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company—"Believe that low point of business depression has passed."

A. R. Erskine, president, Studebaker corporation—"Outlook is good for substantial improvement because new models and values will undoubtedly stimulate buying and obsolete cars are of unprecedented number."

Expect Good Volume.

C. R. Gardiner, president, International Silver company—"We would advise that we anticipate that our volume for October, November, and December will be equal to, if not exceed, that of 1931 for these three months."

Clark Howell, editor, Atlanta Constitution—"We feel this year is undoubtedly low point and that next year will mark decided upturn."

K. R. Kingsbury, president, Standard Oil Company of California—"In my opinion the first step toward definite recovery in business is to put the unemployed back to work through the plan now being advocated by the banking and industrial committees of the twelve federal districts which aims to divide the jobs that exist among those capable of gainful employment."

John McKinlay, president, Marshall Field & Co.—"I believe that from now on business generally will improve. There will be fluctuations, of course, but the tendency will be for the better."

Hope Replaces Despair.

Arthur W. Milburn, president, Borden company—"Hope has displaced despair. This must precede commercial improvement, as to which there seems to be slowly accumulating evidence of existence."

C. R. Palmer, president, Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc.—"We believe that the low point of the business depression was passed at the end of July."

B. A. Rowe, president, W. T. Grant & Co.—"We feel sure that the low point of business has been passed and that we can look forward to steady improvement."

W. B. Storey, president, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway company—"Believe worst probably over, but recovery will be slow and will be determined largely by recovery of buying power by farmer."

R. E. Wood, president, Sears, Roebuck & Co.—"I believe that the low point of the business depression has been passed, though I can see little improvement unless there is a substantial rise in commodity prices."

SALES DECLINE IN SEPT., GENERAL MOTORS REPORTS

Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to American consumers totaled 34,694 units in September, as compared with 37,230 in August and 51,740 in September, 1931, the corporation reported yesterday.

September sales to dealers in the United States were 23,545 against 24,151 in August and 47,895 in September, 1931, while total sales to dealers, including Canadian and overseas shipments, amounted to 30,117 units against 30,419 in August and 58,122 in September a year ago.

WALL ST. HOPES FOR COMEBACK RECEIVE CHECK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Wall street's hopes of a millennium have undergone a rather severe slump in the last week. The backwardness of business and industry in stepping up to the high levels prophesied in their behalf, growing attacks on the dollar in foreign exchange dealings, uncertainties on the score of politics and the painful failure of the general public to play ball with the prosperity makers of the stock exchange have all combined to tone down optimism and set a period to the bull campaign.

The shrinkage in stock values during the first seven trading days of October has been enormous. The average price of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's fifty representative issues, calculated in the usual way, has suffered a net loss of $10.06 for the period—a decline unequaled by any previous full month since May. At the close of business yesterday THE TRIBUNE index stood at 54.95, or only 1.77 points above the level representing the halfway point of the July-September advance. In other words, a dip of less than 2 points more in the averages would wipe out a full 50 per cent of the gain scored in the sensational two months' "prosperity revival" movement.

Figures Tell Story.

Comparative figures on fifteen of the week's most active issues tell the story even more vividly—yesterday's close being shown in comparison with the highs of Sept. 8 and the extreme lows touched on July 8 or thereabouts:

	Close, Sat., Sept. 8.	High, Sept. 8.	1932 Low.
Am Can	47⅜	61⅛	23⅜
Allied Chem	72⅝	88¼	44½
A T & T	103⅜	121	70¼

Radio	6¾	13½	2¼
Westinghouse	27⅝	43½	15⅝
N Y Cent	22⅛	33¼	8⅝

The big question in the street now is whether the 50 per cent line is going to be penetrated before the decline is checked and if so just what effect the break will have on the market's immediate course. Some brokers to not hesitate to say that they would construe the development as evidence that the upward trend has been definitely reversed for the time being. Here and there, indeed, they are talking gloomily of the possibility

STEEL BUSINESS IN SEPTEMBER EXCEEDS HOPES

Magazine Looks for Gain During October.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Improvement in the steel industry exceeded all expectations in September and there are indications October also will record substantial gains, said Steel today.

The daily ingot rate in September was 37,502 tons, as determined by the American Iron and Steel Institute, the magazine said in its weekly survey. This indicated an operating rate of 17.3 per cent, an increase of 3 points, or 21.5 per cent over August and the highest since May.

Pig Iron Output Grows.

"Production of pig iron, as of steel, last month registered its first gain since February, the daily iron rate of 19,783 tons being the highest since June and implying a blast furnace rate of 14 per cent, a rise of 2 points, or 16 per cent," the magazine continued. "An increase of five in active stacks as of Sept. 30, when 46 were in blast, was the first expansion of capacity since February.

"With October one-third gone, there is every indication that this month also will record substantial betterment. Steel making operations in the week ended Oct. 8 gained another point, to 19 per cent, largely on the strength of expansion in the Chicago and eastern Pennsylvania districts, and a scheduled increase at Pittsburgh may put the industry up close to 20 per cent in the current week.

Small Orders Mainstay.

"While such major consumers of iron and steel as the automotive and building industries and the railroads are more active in the market, the rise in production continues a very direct outcome of numerous small, well diversified commitments.

"The tonnage order is the great exception, which not only is a promise of further improvement but also connotes that the markets have a broad base.

"Outstanding in the week's business and exceptional for its size is the American Can company's release of upward of 54,000 tons or 1,200,000 boxes of tin plate for delivery early in 1933.

"R. F. C. loans are expected almost daily to provide mills over 30,000 tons, chiefly plates, for equipment construction and repair programs by the Pennsylvania, Reading, Baltimore and Ohio, and Central of New Jersey railroads."

Tin Sells at 24.1 Cents; Lowest in Several Weeks

Spot Straits tin at around 24.10 cents a pound is at the lowest in several weeks. Buyers said to be holding off because of the uncertain tone of commodity markets generally.

New England Mutual Life.

Kindly give me information regarding New England Mutual Life Insurance company. I am holding a $1,000 policy in the company. Lately I have been approached by a representative of another company and found I could get the same policy for less premium per year.—R. H.

New England Mutual Life Insurance company [Boston, Mass.] was incorporated in 1835 and commenced business in 1843. It has had a fairly rapid growth. Insurance in force at the close of 1931 was one billion 208 million dollars, against $857,230,000 on Dec. 31, 1925; $309,700,000 on Dec. 31, 1915, and $165,816,000 on Dec. 31, 1905.

The company is purely mutual.

On Dec. 31, 1931, net reserve was $219,175,000 and surplus was $19,183,000. Policy holders' surplus appears ample and the reserve basis is strong.

Expenses are low and the mortality rate is favorable.

Income in 1931 was $56,336,000 and disbursements, including $10,828,000 dividends to policy holders, were $42,222,000.

Total admitted assets on Dec. 31, 1931, were $267,928,000. Invested assets were $252,988,000. Of the latter 1.61 per cent was in real estate, 27.36 per cent in mortgage loans, 21.64 per cent in policy loans, 47.86 per cent in bonds [amortized values], three-quarters of one per cent in railroad preferred and common stocks, three-fifths of one per cent in public utility stocks and about one-sixth of one per cent in miscellaneous stocks.

Railroad and public utility bonds, about equal proportions of each, constitute about 80 per cent of the total bond investments, with government, state, and municipal obligations comprising almost the entire remaining 20 per cent.

Alfred Foster, chairman of the board, has been associated with the company in an executive capacity since 1893 and President Smith has been with the company since 1904.

The company is licensed to do business in 37 states of the United States, the District of Columbia, and Alaska. It has an excellent reputation.

We are sending you an article on "Twisters." We caution against switching from one company to another without a full understanding of all the details involved. You would probably lose all, or almost all, the money you have paid in on your present policy if you drop it now. A good idea would be to have the salesman who is soliciting you to change your policy write out an opinion as to why you should. Then send this opinion to New England Mutual Life Insurance company for their comments.

Canadian wheat in Liverpool is selling very low and new Argentine wheat was offered in the Liverpool market at around 53c, a new low. Argentine crop news is mixed, and late cables suggest that rain is necessary in a few important provinces. Australia's wheat crop is in good condition. Russian news is bullish. Corn at Export Levels.

Corn prices in Chicago are practically on an export basis, with several hundred thousand bushels sold during the week for export by Montreal. There were also sales made by eastern interests at the close on Saturday, and unless prices are advanced sharply there are indications of a fair sized movement.

Speculators are giving corn more attention because of the uncertainty as to the action of wheat. Country holders are selling old corn freely, and little new is coming from central Illinois points, that should be kept back, as it contains around 25 per cent moisture. It sold at 18 to 20c in Chicago. Receipts are expected to continue liberal for some time.

The government report, due today, is not expected to make any radical change from that of 2,354,000,000 bu in September.

Corn futures in Chicago are the lowest since 1898 and closed with net losses of ¾ to ⅞c for the week. December being 26¾ to 26¾c, May 31¾ to 31¾c, and July 32c.

Likes Tribune Charts.

Financial Editor: The graphs of stock averages and of bond averages published in your paper in my opinion constitute one of the most practical and useful features of your financial section. It is a pleasure to find graphs that are large enough and clear enough to give one a true perspective of market trends. I hope you will continue your policy of publishing these two graphs at frequent intervals; in fact, I would be glad to see both of them appear regularly every week.

Chain Stors Losses.

Financial Editor: Karl Eitel's letter in THE TRIBUNE attracted my attention, for the present campaign of the chain stores for rent reduction is of vital interest to all owners of stores leased to any division of chain operation.

Mr. Eitel seems to have overlooked one very important point I have had to deal with here. Recently I was approached by an executive of a chain store system occupying premises under a 10 year lease, with 6 years unexpired, offering to cancel the existing lease and to renew it for 10 years at a reduction of about 40 per cent. He presented figures showing that unless rents were reduced he could not continue and that a number of lessors have accepted reductions to enable them to carry on.

I took the position that any reduction I would grant would be a contribution to their capital structure without hope of sharing profits and that I would be directly paying them a premium to fight the independent dealer. Not being willing to assume either attitude, I refused to alter or compromise the lease and they are continuing to pay on the basic agreement.

I believe if every owner will do likewise the situation will settle itself.

An Auditor Speaks.

Financial Editor: You have, with thousands of others, read of the crash of the Insull companies. This followed several other exposures. It is a fact that these exposures all came too late—after thousands had been deprived of their savings.

I am an American citizen and have been for about twenty years, but my early training was with chartered accountants in London. It seems to me that the British corporation law had some features which would help investors in this country.

As I remember them, it was mandatory that every corporation which sold any stock—regardless of how little—to outsiders or the public was compelled to have its books audited by certified public accountants and their report had to be printed in full and mailed by the auditors direct to every stockholder. Another feature was that the auditors in Europe are appointed by the stockholders and not the directors. The auditors attend every meeting of stockholders and report direct to the stockholders.

Under our rules in this country Insull the individual hires and fires the auditor, Insull decides who reads the auditor's report, and Insull allows the auditor to "cut in" on the gravy. Under such conditions—and all of us being human—what chance has a mere outsider and stockholder.

Your paper has the power to bring about a change in the law. Your paper could awaken the stockholders to the facts and force through a law which would compel every company with outside stockholders to have a certified public accountant as auditor, and compel every auditor to report direct to the stockholders. Such a law should forbid any auditor's being a stockholder in a company which is his client.

Debts Don't Change.

The most unfortunate thing about debt is its inflexibility. A loan made in 1929 at 6 per cent interest for five years carries the same rate of interest today, yet rents have been reduced and commodity prices lowered. The expense of owning property has not been adjusted on an equitable basis to compare with the buying power of a dollar.

In real estate financing, there are relatively no adjustments provided for and a debt must be paid according to the terms of agreement under the law. True, it would be difficult to provide for the adjustment of the rate of interest; nevertheless, taxes and assessments could be adjusted to correspond with the fluctuating value of the dollar.

During normal years very little thought is given to revising our foreclosure laws, there being no provisions made for the incumbered property owner in these abnormal times. However, under present conditions, many banks, insurance companies and loaning agencies have broadened their scope in the policy of handling real estate problems.

All in the Family.

TO THE EDITOR: My brother-in-law's property was sold at a foreclosure sale last December and he doesn't plan to redeem the property. I would be willing to purchase this house for $700 in excess of the bid at the time of sale. My brother-in-law doesn't want me to have this house and won't cooperate. The holder of the first mortgage who foreclosed is asking considerable more than the property will cost him and more than I am willing to pay. Is there any way I can buy this property without dealing with the mortgage holder or my brother-in-law?—W. M.

ANSWER: The property cannot be sold during the redemption period unless the owner redeemed and sold to you. In this case, the mortgage holder, in all probability, will have absolute title to the property at the time of expiration and he would be the man to deal with.

The early court of chancery in England would set aside foreclosure sales whenever, prior to the confirmation of sale, a better bid for the property was offered. Our Court of Equity has the power to set aside a foreclosure sale—yet, this privilege is seldom exercised except in the case of fraud.
